Congo Losing Generation Of Education, Says Speaker

By Ann Brooks
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The real tragedy of the Congo is that the country is not making any progress, said Lt. Col. Howard G. Neumann, of the Directorate of Intelligence, NORAD, at the Friday meeting of the Rotary Club of Colorado Springs at the Acacia Hotel.

Members of the native intelligentia, educated by the missionaries and trained by the Belgians for industry and government, have been primary targets of the rebels, said Neumann. "It will take at least a generation to replace the educational level destroyed in the last few months," he added.

A second loss to the country, he said, has been the emigration of foreigners. Of the 100,000 foreigners, mostly Belgians, in the Republic of the Congo in 1960, there were 50,000 at the beginning of the year, 32,000 at the last count, and an estimated 24,000-25,000 now, said Neumann. These were the managers, technicians, entrepreneurs, doctors and missionaries, he said. Thus, he summarized, "the indigenous talent is being

U.S. Will Buy Oleomargarine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said Friday that for the first time in history it was going to buy oleomargarine.

The Agriculture Department said the low-priced oleo would be purchased for distribution to needy U.S. families and charitable institutions.

There is not enough government-purchased butter to meet the demand of welfare families and institutions, the department said.

The department has purchased practically no butter under the price support program since last summer.

Report Predicts 70,000 In State Colleges in '73

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Enrollment at Colorado's state-supported colleges and universities will top 70,000 by 1973 and will be about 8,000 higher than previously predicted, the special Committee on Education Beyond the High School reported Friday.

The figure compares with 37,714 students enrolled at the eight institutions this fall.

The revised report was distributed at the statewide conference on education called by Gov. John A. Love as the 1,300 persons registered for the two-day meeting took up the problems of higher education.

It was developed by Miss Elaine C. Homan, executive secretary of the committee, working with the chairman, Rep. John G. Mackie, R-Longmont, and committee members. Based upon an elaborate system of projections it estimates

Kennedy Tots See Nutcracker Show Production

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy took her two children to the premier performance Friday of "The Nutcracker" ballet at Lincoln Center.

They were accompanied by Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill and her daughter, Teena.

Caroline didn't have much to say about the performance. Her behavior was described as that of a "perfect little lady."

But John was fascinated by artificial snow used in the performance, and by the long, artificial nose on one of the characters, "Herr Drosselmeyer."

The families were taken backstage during intermission, and John was introduced to Shaun O'Brien, who plays Drosselmeyer. He asked for and was given permission to play in the "snow."

The family's entrance about five minutes before curtain time caused no commotion. The afternoon performance was attended by a large number of children.

Memorial Plan for FDR Gets Approval

NEW YORK (AP) — A statue of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, surrounded by eight slabs each 130 feet high, is scheduled for construction in Washington even though the Roosevelt family is not pleased with the design.

The design, said Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., is "not in keeping with my father's rather classical tastes in architecture."

Despite its opposition, the family will take no action to block construction, he said.

A memorial commission voted approval Thursday of the design.

Beef Price Support Buying By U.S. to End

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Friday it would discontinue buying choice grade frozen beef. It has purchased 178.5 million pounds at a cost of $105.8 million since buying began last March 2.

Purchase of canned beef of cutter grade or higher will be continued, the department said. Purchases of frozen and canned beef since March 2 total 382 million pounds and cost $211.8 million.

The department said that supplies of frozen beef are now adequate to meet the needs of school lunch outlets through the 1964-65 school year.

The department's buying of choice frozen beef was designed to stabilize the fed cattle mar-

Rusk Next UN Ambassador, Say Allen, Scott

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Secretary Dean Rusk is slated to become U. S. Ambassador at the United Nations.

That's what Foreign Minister Gromyko is telling Soviet diplomats.

According to Gromyko, he was told this by Rusk personally during their hush-hush meetings in New York last week. The reputed shift from the State Department to the UN is to take place in the early part of next year.

To one satellite diplomat, Gromyko boasted, "My government was given this important information before the American people or press. That's the way we like to do business."

Asked about Stevenson, Gromyko replied he understood the present UN Ambassador would be offered a high embassy post in Europe.

White House insiders are indicating President Johnson contemplates a number of diplomatic shifts that will include new ambassadors to London, Paris, Rome, Bonn and Madrid. Also changes in top State Department personnel. — The Hall Syndicate, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

DENVER (UPI)—Justice Edward E. Pringle Friday was appointed chief justice of the Colorado Supreme Court for 1965.

Pringle, 50, will succeed retiring Chief Justice Robert H. McWilliams. The state constitution provides that the court select its own chief justice.

McWilliams Friday announced appointment of Philip G. Cole, Colorado Springs, to the State Board of Law Examiners. Cole is a law partner of Gov. John A. Love.

CC Profs Deplore Rioting

The Colorado College Chapter of the American Association of University Professors issued a statement Friday against "student violence and vandalism."

Thirty-nine professors, including department heads, signed a statement in the Friday issue of "The Tiger," the campus newspaper.

The professor's statement was prompted by events at the annual Colorado College-Colorado School of Mines, played this year at CC's Washburn Field on November 14.

There is a long-standing rivalry between the two schools and often as not there is some student friction at any athletic meetings between the two schools.

In this year's game, Colorado College led at half-time, 6-0, and wound up with a 13-7 victory over the visiting Miners. That was the only victory for Colorado College in an eight-game schedule, and the Miners

Such a Strong Breath

LONDON (UPI)—It really was quite embarrassing for a British parson. Every time he blew out the altar candles his breath caught fire. The story of the fire-breathing parson came out Friday in a letter to the British Medical Journal from surgeon Stephen Power of the Royal Homeopathic Hospital in London. Power said the cause was found to be an internal buildup of an inflammable gas due to a duodenal ulcer. After an operation, Power said, "the parson was able to carry out his duties in a more decorous fashion."

Romney Meets With Burch, Ike, Sees New GOP Chief

Hubbard Will Have Hearing

An appeal by Rex. M. Hubbard, 22, of Colorado Springs from a burglary conviction will be heard by U. S. District Judge Alfred A. Arraj in Denver Dec. 29.

Hubbard was sentenced to six and a half to eight years in the State Penitentiary May 4, 1962 for the burglary of the Charcoal Burger Inn in Colorado Springs and a further three to 10 years for the burglary of the Rocky Mountain Aluminum Co., June 25, 1962, both sentences to run consecutively.

The hearing was ordered by Circuit Court of Appeals on Hubbard's arguments that some evidence in his trials had been obtained through illegal search.

At one time Hubbard was charged with the murder of the Rev. John DeGyarmanthy who was found dead in the trunk of his car Sept. 28, 1961. The charge was later dropped when it was found the killing had taken place outside Jackson County where Hubbard was charged.

Hubbard admitted stealing the dead man's car but steadfastly denied killing the 72-year-old priest.

Urich Doubts Mrs. Gooch Could Have Shot Self

Mrs. Gloria Dean Gooch could not have fired the fatal shot which killed her, County Coroner R. Urich said in District Court Friday during the murder trial of Richard Olon Gooch.

Dr. Urich gave his opinion in response to a question put by prosecuting Deputy District Attorney Bob Russell. He told the jury that cause of death was gun shot wounds which had penetrated the heart. One shot, he testified, had been fired no further than six inches from the chest and the other about one foot away.

The doctor went on to say that either one of the shots would have stopped the heart immediately.

Under cross-examination conducted by counsel for the defense, Tom Gresham, Urich, in

U.S. Nun Thrown in River

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Congolese rebels have massacred another 10 whites in the northern towns of Mungbere and Isangi, it was reported here Friday. The victims included an American nun who was thrown into the Congo River with a Belgian nun.

White mercenary troops who discovered the deaths of two nuns, a novice and a Dutch priest at Isangi rescued another 52 white survivors, most of them missionaries, authoritative sources reported. Another 60 whites rescued in the area Thursday flew here Friday.

The American nun was identified as Sister Marie Antoinette of Our Lady of Wisdom Academy, New York. Her former name was Anna Donniecou.

Ten Belgian men and women were killed at Mungbere, 70 miles east of Paulis. Word was brought by arriving refugees who said they knew little about the fate of white plantation workers and missionaries in the area. But there were increasing

Martin Placed On Probation

Douglas Martin was given a suspended sentence of two to three years in the State Penitentiary and was placed on probation Friday for no account checks.

James Edward Bonner, 18, 2[illegible] Marion Dr. was given a deferred sentence and put on probation.

Bonner was originally charged with burglary and larceny and alleged to have broken into the Circle Drive In Liquor Store, [illegible] N. Circle Dr. and stolen 21 quarts of liquor valued at $[illegible].

County Board Permits Brick Cleaning on Tract

Permission to use a five acre tract located at 1620 S. El Paso St. for the purpose of cleaning bricks was granted by the El Paso County Board of Adjustment Thursday. The use permit was granted for nine months only.

Attorney Don Shook, speaking in behalf of residents of the R-1 garden home district, said that since there is no specific interpretation in the zoning code for a brick cleaning establishment, the nearest interpretation he could find was that of "junkyard," which was definitely an undesirable thing in an R-1 garden home district.

Shook also said that the neighbors objected to the noise and the dust created when trucks dumped the bricks.

The bricks that are to be cleaned represent 1/2 of the demolished Antlers Hotel, and are to be cleaned only, not sold, at the El Paso St. location. The location has been leased by the firm that tore down the Antlers.

Since the bricks were already there, said a member of the board, and since as much dust and noise would be created moving them out as moving them in, and since the additional expense of moving out the bricks would impose a severe hardship on the people involved, the board would consider granting a permit for interpretation of use.

Dale Seymour, speaking for Verne and Delores Dewitt, the petitioners, said that the noise of the actual cleaning of the bricks would be minimal, since this was done by hand, and that all efforts to keep down the dust created would be made.

Seymour said that he and his associates would also make every effort to get the bricks cleaned and moved out as soon as possible, since it was to their advantage as well.

Shook said that he would consider a use permit for a period of six months, rather than for one year, but Seymour explained that some 1,000,000 bricks were involved, and allowing for inevitable bad weather delays, the operation might not be able to be carried out in only six months, especially since the next six months might bring as much as two or three months of bad weather.

A compromise of nine months was granted, to allow for a possible three months of weather delays.

The board granted the permit inasmuch as it was to everybody's advantage to move the bricks out one way or another.

In other action, a petition by Merle A. Williams to construct an addition to an existing four-plex, making it into a nine-plex, was denied.

The addition to the existing structure, located at 624 Prairie Rd., would create non-conformities within front, rear and side-yard set-backs, as it is already having less area than that required in the zoning regulations.

The board offered to allow Mrs. Williams to withdraw her petition, and have her name redrawn, but Mrs. Williams accepted the board's denial.

The petition and appeal of J. Holmes for permission to construct an attached garage to be located at 70 N. Sunset Rd. was granted, inasmuch as the proposed addition did not add to the existing non-conformity.

The petition and appeal of [illegible] Braun to construct a 40-unit three-story apartment building at [illegible] S. Cascade Lane on a lot having less area than that required in the zone was granted, but for only 35 units.

The lot in question, which measures [illegible], is short on density for 40 units.

The architects were aware that a non-conformity would be created by the structure, but that this was created by the balconies, which being made of wrought-iron, would be permissible within the framework of the zoning regulations.

The petition and appeal of Robert Wyckof for permission to construct an addition to an existing dwelling located at 1624 Cheyenne Blvd., partly within a side-yard set-back that does not conform with the zoning resolution, was granted, inasmuch as the proposed addition would not add to the non-conformity.

RACES CANCELED

FLORENCE, Ky. (UPI) — Officials of Latonia Race Course canceled Tuesday's and today's racing programs after jockeys voted not to ride because of poor track conditions.

Judge Rules Both Drivers Not Guilty

In a companion case Friday, Municipal Court Judge Alan Asher found both defendants not guilty of disobeying a traffic signal, when he ruled that both had green lights.

The case involved an accident Nov. 17 at Pikes Peak Avenue and Union Boulevard when a car driven by Billy Hudson, 18, 2 Brentwood Dr., struck one driven by Air Force Capt. Elmo Tertune, 32, 2921 Drakestone Dr.

The accident occurred at a busy hour of the day, around 5 p.m. Hudson, eastbound on Pikes Peak, was waiting for the light, and Tertune, southbound on Union, was blocked in the intersection by a car attempting to make a left hand turn from Pikes Peak onto Union.

Hudson, in the right hand lane, did not see the officer's car as two other cars were waiting on his left. Drivers of these two cars saw Tertune's car and waited for him to clear, but the officer said he did not see Hudson's car until he was three feet from it. Neither car was damaged to any great extent.

Judge Asher ruled that it was an insoluble situation, based upon engineering at this particular intersection, and found the two defendants not guilty.

On their guilty pleas to reckless driving, Judge Asher fined Danny Southal $100 and Charles Westfal $75. Southal, 24, 506 E. Pikes Peak Ave., had his right to drive in the city suspended for 60 days, and Westfal, 49, 612 Williams Ave., was suspended from driving for 30 days.

A $10 bond was ordered forfeited by Gerald Fulton, 37, Newark, Ohio, on a charge of disobeying a traffic signal.

Mildred Cook, 39, was sentenced to 20 days in County Jail on a vagrancy charge.

Lee Hofman, 50, 1922 Pagosa St., was fined $25 on his guilty plea to drunkenness.

The gifts were then given out, with the revealing of "Secret pals." The little folks each got a thrill when they received a gift.

Mariner 4 Goes Through Meteor Shower Okay

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Mariner 4 spacecraft on an amazingly accurate course for a picture-taking rendezvous with Mars ran into a shower of meteors Friday more than two million miles from earth.

But scientists at Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) said the mission was not endangered by the meteors.

They said the space objects did not pose a serious threat to Mariner because they were small—the largest possibly being the size of a small stone. Still, they admitted, a hit by one of the larger meteors might temporarily knock Mariner off its navigation "fix" with the sun or cause other nuisances.

JPL remained highly confident the spacecraft will fly by Mars at the relatively close distance of only 5,400 miles to capture the first close-up pictures of the mysterious Martian surface with its high-powered television camera.

The historic rendezvous is set to occur at 9:10 p.m. EDT next July 14, climaxing a 7½-month-long, 325-million-mile interplanetary journey.

At 3 p.m. EST, Mariner was 2,287,772 miles from earth and traveling at a speed of 6,970 miles per hour.

Although Mariner's photographs are not expected to reveal whether some form of life exists on Mars, they may provide clues about the strange Martian "canals," which appear through earth telescopes as long, straight lines.

In addition to taking some 22 photographs with the television camera, Mariner will take scientific readings on radiation, magnetic forces and space dust surrounding Mars.

Probe of Airplane Crashes Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today made public its findings after investigations of two accidents early this year in Colorado in which four persons were killed.

One of the crashes was 8 miles southeast of Trinidad on Jan. 18. Killed were the pilot, Dr. Paul Daniel Pattridge, 40, a Batesville, Miss., veterinarian, and his passenger, George F. Young, 38, a Barrington, Ill., livestock researcher. En route from Hereford, Tex., to the National Stock Show at Denver.

The plane hit Fishers Peak at an elevation of 7,900 feet in snow and fog conditions. Cause: A pilot not qualified to fly by instruments "continued into an area of adverse weather, during which improper navigational procedures of an undetermined nature resulted in flight into obstructing terrain."

Another plane crashed on Stall mountain near Eleven-Mile, Colo., southwest of Denver, June 4, killing the pilot, Miles B. Woods, 46, and his passenger, Charles W. Bishop, 36, both of Lakewood, Colo. "No reasonable cause supported by evidence could be established."

Hungry Burglars Steal Meat at Cafe

Some hungry burglars broke into a local restaurant's store room and made off with meat valued at more than $30, between 10 p.m. Thursday and 2 a.m. Friday, police reported.

An employe of the Brass Rail Grill, 133 E. Colorado Ave., told police thieves forced open the door of the store room and made off with a turkey, a 20 pound beef roast, and six T-bone steaks. The employe said the thieves had forced open some metal rings through which the padlock for the door fits, allowing the padlock to be removed without opening it.

$360 in Cash Taken In Burglary Here

Three hundred and sixty dollars in cash were stolen from Chris's Grill, 1634 S. Nevada Ave. the sheriff's office reported Friday.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Walters said entry was made through the rear wndow and the money take from a locked towel drawer and a food freezer.

THE WAY TO DO IT—The Broadmoor Garden Club, along with the City Park and Recreation Department and local nurserymen, would like to see a lot of this kind of action next spring on treeless side parkings, especially in the northeastern section of the city. City Forester Bill Schacht said beautiful shade trees are a decided asset to any home, as well as to the neighborhood and the entire region.

City Outlines Suitable Trees For Parkings

Not every kind of tree makes an appropriate addition to the side parkings of Colorado Springs residences, says City Forester Bill Schacht.

Schacht and E. S. Richter, director of the City Park and Recreation Department, are engaged in an educational program on shade tree planting. The program is sponsored by the Broadmoor Garden Club in cooperation with the Park and Recreation Department and local nurserymen.

Schacht explained that the planting evergreens, except those which will not exceed two feet in height when fully mature, are not recommended in side parkings.

Such trees as spruce, cedars and junipers have a pattern of initial branch growth low to the ground which makes them a possible sight hazard for automobile traffic in the street beyond the parking, he said.

Other trees which are not considered suitable for residential parkings include the poplars (cottonwoods and aspen), willows, the Siberian (Chinese) Elm, and the box elders. These have shallow invasive root systems which invade drains and also may rob the surrounding soil of moisture and nutriants for lawns and plantings.

Such trees are also vulnerable to high winds and are apt to lift sidewalk sections as they grow larger.

Trees recommended for the parkings by the city forester include the budded varieties of honeylocust. These trees have no seed pods or thorns and their fibrous root systems are less extensive than the roots of other trees. They have a lacy shade which is not dense enough to discourage lawn growth beneath them. Furthermore, the budded honeylocust is a legume which will fertilize the surrounding soil by returning nitrogen to it.

Of the elms, Schacht suggests the "Christine Buisman" because it is most resistent to Dutch Elm Disease. Norway and Schwedler Maples are handsome and popular for parkings. Their slow rate of growth is their only disadvantage. The silver maple, on the other hand, grows fast and is just as beautiful. However, it should not be planted in parkings less than 12 feet wide due to its large extensive root system.

The Marshal seedless green ash is on Schacht's recommended list because it grows rapidly and has proven itself well adapted to the local climate. The same is true of the slower growing American linden which has been used widely in parkings in Colorado Springs.

The tree planting program, currently in the northeast section of the city, has brought enthusiastic response, according to the city forester. Any group of residents wishing speakers on the program from the Broadmoor Garden Club or the Park and Recreation Department may apply to the park office at 1400 N. Glen Ave.

Pikes Peak Impresses Doctor From Sister City

"Pikes Peak in the morning and evening, shown by the sun, impressed me most," said Dr. Akira Hada of Fuji-Yoshida, Japan. "It makes me feel as if I were in my own country."

Dr. Hada was speaking to the Thursday dinner meeting of the Colorado Springs Fuji-Yoshida Sister City Committee at Ruth's Oven where he was the guest of honor.

"I hope from the bottom of my heart to keep the friendship between our two cities," said Dr. Hada. Colorado Springs and Fuji-Yoshida have been sister cities since February 1962.

"I was most impressed by the smoothness of treatment and diagnosis at Penrose Hospital and the Colorado Springs Medical Center," said Dr. Hada, who is a pediatrician. "This visit will contribute much to the designing of the new public hospital in Fuji-Yoshida."

Dr. Hada is president of the Fuji-Yoshida Physicians' Association, and also president of the Fuji-Yoshida Lions Club. In November he attended a worldwide Virus Research Conference in Vienna, Austria. He is married, and has four children. He is the second official visitor for Fuji-Yoshida to Colorado Springs.

Interpreting his speech was Mrs. Charles Frazier. Yoighi Saji, the only Japanese exchange student at Colorado College this year, interpreted his remarks before the dinner.

Official visitors from Colorado Springs to Fuji-Yoshida since the two became sister cities have included members of four families: Mrs. Winifred McBroom; Prof. and Mrs. Carleton Gamer and their son Mike; Dr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, their two daughters, and their mothers; and the Rev. and Mrs. Robert H. Lillie. Rev. Lillie is pastor of the Parkview Christian Church.

Mrs. Frank Tucker reported on the Sister City Conference held in Washington, D.C., the latter part of June. In 1963, she said, there were 1500 organizations, with 50,000 members, engaged in the exchange with 54 foreign nations. Of particular interest, she said, was the Far East Asia workshop. There are more cities in Japan than in any other Far Eastern nation in the program: 51 of the 73 Far Eastern affiliated cities are Japanese. The "Working with your Sister City" program was also informative, she said, adding that an appreciative Indian sister city had sent Darien, Conn., a baby elephant. She also commended the sister city program in Portland, Ore.

Slides of Fuji-Yoshida, which has a population of 46,000, were shown by Rev. Lillie. Accompanying Rev. and Mrs. Lillie on their visit to the city in October were Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Mings, their son-in-law and daughter, who are missionaries in Osaka. Fuji-Yoshida is interspersed with rice fields, and is in a resort area. Silk is also a major industry. Above the city is the Mt. Fuji Hotel. Behind the city, with five lakes at its base, rises Fuji.

Also introduced at the meeting was Charles Heitman, honorary member, who represented Mayor Harry Hoth, honorary chairman, and City Manager John Biery, honorary member. Speaking briefly about the exchange of plants and seeds was Stewart Richter, city director of parks and recreation. "I hope one day we can build an authentic Japanese garden in one of our parks," said Richter. James Beechwood of Horace Mann Junior High School, and Sanford Orr of Washington Irving Junior High School commented on the student programs in their schools.

William Vandel, chairman of the group, expressed his appreciation to the Lillies, who were hosts of Dr. Hada; to Dr. Robert Smith, who arranged the trip through the Colorado Springs Medical Center and was Dr. Hada's host at the El Paso County Medical Meeting; to Dr. Bernice H. Tyner, who arranged the trip through Penrose Hospital and to Dr. J. A. delRegato, medical director, Penrose Cancer Hospital.

Dr. Hada was also a guest of the Colorado Springs Lions Club at their Tuesday meeting at the Acacia Hotel.

A. Earl Bryson, 14 E. Fontanero St., chairman of the Education Committee of the Charter Association, encouraged organizations to contact him to use the service.

"Over and above the question of choosing the best qualified citizens to fill positions on the City Council," Bryson said, "there is the important task of developing among the electorate a full understanding of the workings and requirements of our council - manager form of government."

Congo Losing Educated People, Speaker Says

liquidated and the foreign talent is departing."

Third, the economy has spiralled downward in the last year and a half, according to Neumann, and the development of natural resources has lagged. As for the Organization for African Unity, they "haven't solved a single problem yet," charged Neumann.

We can expect a political battle field — or a genuine battlefield—in the Congo, Neumann predicted.

"The rebel movement is not going to wither away"; it receives too much outside aid, said Neumann. He saw a likelihood that the U. N. will be asked to police the area, and this could lead to a conflict in the U. N. General Assembly. Belgium and the U. S. may have to extend aid and this will probably lead to protests that we are supporting neo-colonialism, he added.

Problems faced by Moise Tshombe are tremendous, according to Neumann, and the ANC (central government force) is a "ragtag, ill-disciplined, poorly led force." The only stabilizing force, the Belgian officers, was removed in 1960 with the granting of independence. New officers were elected from the ranks.

"Through October of this year, the ANC was more of a liability than an asset," said Neumann, and looting, pillage and rape were so frequent that the indigenous population often preferred the rebels. Peak strength of the ANC was 25,000, but there are now less than 19,000 troops, said Neumann.

Tshombe was saved — temporarily — by two factors, according to Neumann: European white mercenaries; and U. S. aircraft on loan, of both B-26 and T-28 types. Belgian paratroops were dropped Nov. 24 on Stanleyville and Paulis. The momentum of Tshombe's forces dropped off, however, after the paratroops left, Neumann reported.

The four most dedicated rebel leaders are still at large, stated Neumann. Christophe G'benye, "self - styled president," opportunist, racist, and fanatic, is alledgedly partially responsible for the holding, abuse, and murder of white hostages. Olenga, "self - styled general," allegedly implicated in the Nov. 24-28 murders, is still free. Pierre Mulele, a known communist, who spent three years in Communist countries, including one year in China, has not been caught. Gaston Soumialot, a Marxist, who reportedly started the eastern rebellion, is also still free, Neumann said.

Rebels still hold areas in Uele, Ituri and Nord Kivu provinces, the northeastern part of the country, according to Neumann, as well as areas of the Haut Congo and Cuvette Central provinces.

Briefly describing the country, Neumann explained that the Republic of the Congo is one-fourth the size of the U. S., but the population density is only 15 to 16 people per square mile, while it is 50.5 here. The country is "pathetically weak in transportation and communication," he said, with only 3000 miles of railroads, and 3500 miles of surface highways. It is "enormously wealthy in natural resources," however, he added, but there is a shortage of trained indigenous personnel.

"The most serious disadvantage is social compartmentalization on a tribal basis," Neumann said. Although most tribes in the area are classified as Bantu, there are actually over 400 separate tribes, and over 400 dialects are spoken.

When the Belgians were forced to grant independence to the Congo in 1960, they were in the process of training indigenous personnel for administrative positions, Neumann said. When Lumumba became premier, there were no constitutional framework, no trained administrators, and no national political organization. (Today there are 14 or 15 separate "parties," he said.) Within 48 hours of independence, rioting broke out; within 14 days the Belgians had to intervene; and by July 16, 1960, U. S. forces were en route, said Neumann.

The Republic of the Congo also faces hostility from its African neighbors, said Neumann. The Congo Republic has been hostile since 1960, and the Sudan has been a mainstream of arms and aid for the rebels. Uganda and Burundi have supplied arms originating in Communist China, and have been sanctuaries for the rebels. President Nkrumah of Ghana, Ben Bella of Algeria, and Nasser have been critical of the Republic of the Congo as well.

A financial report was given by Dr. Larry Kircher, chairman of the service fund of the club. He said recipients of funds from the Rotary Club of Colorado Springs the past year included: Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation, three different baseball teams in the Junior Baseball Program, Junior Achievement, the USO, Dr. James Wambach for dental equipment to be used in Guatemala), a child who received transportation money to a gifted child class at Stratton School, and foreign students at Colorado College and Palmer High School.

Club president Jack Martin was in charge of the meeting. Gus Jackson was in charge of musical entertainment. New members received were: Norman Smith, 102 S. Garland; and Wesley Jones, Wilshire Blvd.

Pop Singer Kicks Down Door --Is Shot, Dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Sam Cooke, a minister's son who started his career as a Gospel singer and became rich and famous as a popular recording star, was shot to death Friday by a woman hotel manager.

Police reported the 32-year-old Negro entertainer — seeking a female companion who had fled from his room — knocked down the door of the motel manager's office about 2:30 a.m. He was clad only in a sports jacket, police said. He grappled with Mrs. Blanche Lee Franklin, 55, the manager, and she picked up a revolver and fatally wounded him in the chest, police said. Mrs. Franklin was released after questioning.

Det. Sgt. Fred L. Thomas said Cooke and a woman identified as Elisa Boyer, 22, had registered at the motel as "Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cooke." The singer's expensive foreign car was found parked at the motel.

After the shooting, police found Miss Boyer in a public telephone booth at the motel. She said Cooke had forced her to accompany him to the motel from a Hollywood night club.

They entered the motel room, she said, Cooke took off his clothes, and she seized an opportunity to flee—taking most of his clothes with her.

Police, reconstructing the incident from accounts given by Miss Boyer and Mrs. Franklin, said Cooke jumped into his car and drove about 100 feet to the motel office.

The singer knocked down the door and shouted to Mrs. Franklin, "What did you do with her'?' Mrs. Franklin, fighting off Cooke, grabbed the revolver which was lying on top of a television set and fired three times.

Cooke was married and the father of two. With his wife, Barbara, and their daughters, they lived in the Los Feliz district here. A son, Vincent, 18 months, drowned in the family swimming pool last July.

Urich Doubts Mrs. Gooch Could Have Shot Self

reply to one question said he "did not think" Mrs. Gooch could have remained conscious for a further 50 seconds after the first shot was fired, though he admitted he had known instances of "short distance movement" after a bullet had entered the heart.

The first day of testimony was slow and few facts were presented to the jury. Much of the time was occupied with attorneys haggling over the admissability of evidence and objections from both sides on various points of law, several of which were argued out of the presence of the jury.

First witness of the day was Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames who told the court how he had gone to the Gooch home at 705 Main St. on the day of the incident, June 13.

He said he found the body of the victim on the bed with blood on her chest, two holes in her robe and her eyes open. There were also powder burns on the house coat, he added, and the gun was lying by her right side. The officer then called the sheriff's office and the county coroner.

Ames said he examined the gun and found two live rounds in it and two expended. He said the defendant appeared as though he had been drinking but was not intoxicated. He was rational, his voice steady, but he seemed "upset," said Sames.

Other witnesses were Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Littrell who said Dr. Urich had removed one of the bullets from the body and given it to the officer.

Otis Kirkbride of the police department told the court he had made certain tests on the gun and found it took four pounds of pressure to fire it in one position and eight from another position.

Gresham reserved the right to cross-examine Ames and Littrell, at a later date as he reserved the right Thursday to make his opening statement sometime in the future.

Gooch, a 38 Ft. Carson sergeant is accused of the slaying of his wife, Gloria Dean Gooch, 32, at the couple's home.

Attorney Bob Russel is being assisted by Charles West, also of the district attorney's office. Judge Hunter D. Hardeman is on the bench.

The court recessed Friday night at 5:30 and reconvened again this morning at nine. The trial is certain to run through part of next week.

Spaak Defends Rescue of Whites in Congo

Europe and "even to pit black man against the white."

Belgian paratroopers in U.S. transport planes rescued about 1,700 whites from Congolese rebels in the Stanleyville area late last month. Some 80 whites were slain by the rebels.

In the past two days delegates from Mali, Ghana and Congo Brazzaville have charged that the rescue represented an action taken by whites in disregard of blacks, and that many more blacks were slain than whites.

"I speak now because frankly I am at the end of my patience," Spaak said. "I have suffered two of the most evil days of my life. I have listened to distortions, insults and untruths.

"I have seen evidences of an inferiority complex, a display of mistrust and hatred that is painfully close to the type of racist feeling that has been so much denounced and fought against."

Spaak, who served as president of the first U.N. General Assembly, declared that the rescue mission was dispatched after Christophe Gbenye, the Congo rebel leader, threatened that the white hostages "would be devoured and gasoline fires set at their homes to cook them alive."

Spaak said he received a message from Gbenye "which I am ashamed to cite." He declared the rebel leader said his forces would make fetishes out of the hearts of the hostages and then "parade in their skins."

He said the rescue mission was undertaken only after prolonged negotiations that involved the rebels, the International Red Cross and representatives of the Organization of African Unity.

"What would have been the reaction if we had not carried out the operations at Stanleyville?" he asked. "We would have had the remorse and regret of not having tried to save the hostages, of abandoning them to death."

He said the paratroopers had been delayed on the British island of Ascension while hoping that a "miracle might happen."

Spaak said he had to turn in sorrow to the issue of racism raised in the previus debate.

"We do not consider, as charged, that the blood of one white is better than that of two colored," he asserted.

Spaak referred to a specific charge from Foreign Minister Charles David Ganao of Congo (Brazzaville) that the rescue mission was undertaken in order to massacre blacks.

"I challenge the representative of Congo Brazzaville to submit the slightest vestige of proof, of evidence, to support such an infamous accusation," Spaak said.

He described as "an abominable accusation" charges of aggression leveled at the United States and Belgium in connection with the rescue mission.

Theodore Idzumbuir, the ambassador from Congo Leopoldville, said the Congolese rebels tried to barter the lives of hostages for political advantage.

He said his government authorized the rescue mission with the understanding no restrictions would be made on actions by the Congolese army against the rebels.

He told the council many Congolese were victims of the most horrible forms of cannibalism at the hands of the rebels.

Romney Sees New GOP Chief After Meeting

to say who rhe favors as a replacement.

Burch told United Press International he initiated the session with Romney but "didn't get any encouragement" in his defense of his position. He met briefly with Romney at his office, then rode to the airport with the governor.

Meantime, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., told newsmen a conference of House Republicans Wednesday might well result in a definite move to replace GOP House Leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind.

"I wouldn't be surprised," Laird said in reply to a question on whether the closed-door conference might develop into a revolt against Halleck. The conference was called at the insistence of GOP "young Turks," some of whom are not happy with Halleck's leadership.

Asked then if Rep. Gerlad R. Ford, R-Mich., would be the likely choice as a replacement in the event Halleck were ousted, Laird again replied, "I wouldn't be surprised."

Ford was among GOP leaders whom Romney saw in a whirlwind visit to the Capitol. His first meeting, he disclosed afterwards, had been a breakfast with Eisenhower.

Without tying his estimates in any way to that talk, Romney told newsmen one factor in his strengthened belief that Burch is on the way out was the so-called "summit meeting" in New York this week between Eisenhower, Goldwater, and Richard M. Nixon.

Also a factor, Romney said, has been the "generally favorable reaction" to a policy statement issued by GOP governors in Denver which Romney and some others interpret as a clear call for Burch's replacement. Burch has said he does not view the governors' statement that way.

Rains Spread Over South, Eastern U.S.

a series of fatal accidents, including the collision of a school bus and automobile-carrier on a slippery Pennsylvania highway.

More than 6 inches of rain fell Thursday and Friday in Alexandria, La. Some 400 persons were forced from their homes when a rain-swollen drainage canal poured through a low spot in a levee.

More than 2 inches of rain soaked Jackson and Meridian, Miss., and Dyersburg, Tenn.

The school bus-auto carrier crash near New Castle, Pa., killed one child. Twenty other children and the bus driver were injured.

Three Kentucky State students, including a starting guard on the college basketball team, were killed Thursday night when two cars collided on a rain-slicked highway near Midway, Ky.

Fog reduced air traffic to a trickle at Chicago's O'Hare airport. Two smaller airports, Midway Airport and Meigs Field on Chicago's lakefront, also were shut down at times.

Freezing rain and sleet pelted sections of New York and New England. Cold held on in northern New Enngland. Morning lows included 10 below zero at Old Town, Maine, and 2 below at Bangor, Maine, and St. Johnsbury, Vt. There was 21 inches of snow on the ground at Old Town.

The department said the stabilizing efforts of the frozen beef buying will continue for several weeks, with deliveries continuing through January. It said that supply and demand situation for fed beef likely will be more nearly balanced by that time.

Purchases of canned beef of cutter grade or higher for distribution to needy families, the department said, will have a stabilizing effect at a time when cow marketings are continuing heavy.

1964 Car Stolen From Parking Lot

A 1964 model car, valued at $1,400 was taken from the parking lot of Wasson High School Friday, police reported.

Kenneth E. Hull, 4710 N. Nevada Ave., told police he parked the car in the parking lot of the school at 7 a.m. Friday, and it was ttiil there when he checked it at 10:30 a.m. He said that when he came out at 12:30 p.m., however, the car was gone.

Hull told police the keys to the car, which were supposed to have been with a friend, had been left in the ignition.

fears more massacres would be uncovered.

Isangi, where the four missionaries were reported killed, is 70 miles west of Stanleyville. Forty-two surviving nuns and missionaries and 10 white nonmissionaries hid in the bush around Isang and the agricultural research station at Yangambi farther east, and escaped death. They also were to be flown to Leopoldville.

The massacres at Mungbere and Isangi brought to 110 the number of whites known to have been killed since the Belgian paratroopers first landed at Stanleyville. Unconfirmed reports said three others were killed at Dungu.

Duane Averill Pleads Guilty To Burglary

Duane Earl Averill pleaded guilty in District Court Friday to burglary and innocent to conspiracy whereupon Deputy District Attorney Montell Dunn said the conspiracy count would be dismissed next week.

Averill, 19, Alameda, Calif., is accused of breaking into the American Electric Co., 30 W. Costilla St., Nov. 30 and conspiring with William Frederick Butcher, 20, 226 Bassett Dr., and Harold Wilburn, 21, 2405 E. St. Vrain St.

The case was continued to Dec. 18 for taking of testimony.

On Friday, Butcher, also charged with the burglary of the store and conspiracy, had his case put forward to Jan. 12 for arraignment.

His co - defendant Wilburn pleaded innocent to both charges. Trial date will be set Jan. 12.

Embezzlement Charge Filed Here Friday

According to the information against the defendant, she was employed by Montgomery Ward from Oct. 1 to Nov. 25 and during that period had $800 in her possession which belonged to the company.

It is alleged she stole the money.

Report Predicts 70,000 in State Colleges

70,896 students at the colleges and universities in 1973.

Half of the heretofore-unexpected increase will come at Colorado State University at Fort Collins, the new report indicates, and the school's enrollment will rival that of the University of Colorado at Boulder.

The projection shows the University of Colorado with a 1973 enrollment of 21,583 — about 2,000 higher than had been estimated by the committee originally — and Colorado State University with 20,261, more than 4,000 above previous estimates.

The report gives the University of Colorado enrollment for this fall as 13,380 and that of Colorado State University as 10,185.

It makes these enrollment forecasts for the other state colleges in 1973 based upon full-time students:

Colorado State College, Greeley, 10,849 compared with 5,534 this year.

Southern Colorado State College, Pueblo, 6,056, compared with 2,625 this year.

Western State College, Gunnison, 4,162 compared with 1,930 this year.

Adams State College, Alamosa, 3,479 compared with 1,741 this year.

Fort Lewis College, Durango, 2,178 compared with 1,211 this year.

School of Mines, Golden, 2,173 compared with 1,211 this year.

Only Fort Lewis showed a drop from previous estimates. It was down 77 students from the original projection.

The report shows that 30.34 per cent of the current high school graduates entering college next year expect to attend CSU, compared with 25.62 per cent planning to attend the University of Colorado. It also shows an unusually high retention rate of students by CSU.

"It is problematical," the report says, "whether or not Colorado State University will continue to show such high retention rates. . ."

It estimates that 37,579 students will graduate from Colorado high schools in 1973, compared with 23,576 this year, and predicts 18,038 of them will enter college.

The figures could change, Miss Homan said, if a college is set up in Denver.

Disagreement within the Association of State Supported Institutions of Higher Education over the role assigned junior colleges and the proposed Denver Metropolitan College in a master study was reported by President Harlan Bryant of Western State College. He is chairman of the committee which drew up the report for Gov. Love. It is entited "A Master Plan for Colorado Higher Education" and was made public in essence several weeks ago.

The report calls for a state supported system of junior colleges, in contrast to the present locally-supported colleges.

President Bryant noted in a conference talk that "the junior college advisory committee of the State Department of Education is opposed to a state financed and controlled system of junior colleges." He also observed that the junior college presidents urge that state aid for existing junior colleges be increased and matching state funds be provided for construction at schools which stay out of the state system.

He also reported that the University of Colorado and the junior college presidents "feel strongly that the Metropolitan State College (in Denver) should not be activated until a separate junior college has been operating in Denver for some time."

A changing pattern in higher education in Colorado was discussed at the conference by Dr. J. Stanley Ahmann, academic vice president at CSU.

The junior college, he said, is emerging as the "comprehensive community college," colleges originally designed primarily to train teachers are evolving into four-year general colleges, special purpose schools such as Colorado State College and Colorado School of Mines are developing higher programs in their specialties and are giving doctors' degrees, and the two state universities are "noticeably different from each other in terms of the professional areas which they include."

Changes in curricula, he said, "are the result of the kaleidoscopic existence we live."

President Joseph R. Smiley of the University of Colorado said the state must decide quickly whether to provide money needed to maintain quality of public education, whether to allow quality to deteriorate or whether to limit enrollments.

John W. Bartram, the University of Colorado budget officer, reported Colorado now spends $33.7 million a year in public money to support higher education. He said this will rise to between $74 million and $79.5 million by 1970, jumping at the rate of 20 per cent a year.

"With other state needs increasing, it is probable that additional income will be required beyond that which present sources can provide," Bartram said.

His remark came a few hours after Gov. Love said in the convention keynote, "As this vital service (education) requires more dollars, tax-paying citizens will pay for it." This was interpreted by reporters as a hint that he will ask a tax increase of some sort.

CC Professors Deplore Rioting Of CC-Mines

lost every one of their nine games.

It was the last game of the season for Colorado College. Students were mre and more elated as the game neared its end and at least one victory seemed assured.

The professors' statement said in part:

"We deplore the mindless riot at the football game with the Colorado School of Mines.

"We are concerned about incidents of vandalism in the library.

"We object to the reckless and dangerous use of motor vehicles on the campus.

"These acts of violence, vandalism, and lawlessness cannot be condoned in any civilized college community."

The AAUP statement said, "Its members were appalled by student violence and vandalism and by the failure of other students to understand that civil behavior on the campus is their responsibility."

They also said that students have ". . .misunderstood faculty attitudes about diversity, freedom and individualism in the student body."

CC Anthropology Professor Paul Kutsche disagreed with some parts of the AAUP statement, in a letter published in the same issue of the campus newspaper.

"This college community deserves better from its faculty," he commented.

The editor of the campus newspaper, Steven Frederikson, a student, termed the AAUP statement ". . .inconsiderate of many of the problems of this situation.

He echoed Kutsche, in saying: "I think that we have come to expect more from the faculty than chastisement and it is disappointing when this is all we get."

Impetus to the rioting were periodical scufflings in opposing stands, resulting in one huge halftime brawl.

With 3:45 left in the first period, some CC Bengal rooters made off with the megaphone belonging to the Mines and made for the CC stands.

Also moving toward the CC stands was a large band of Mines men. The game had to be stopped while the field was overrun with them. An attempt at kidnapping a Tiger cheerleader failed, and after much swinging and possible bonebreaking, the Mines retired with their megaphone.

The fans during halftime probably dug up more turf than the gridders. When the gun sounded, both bleachers poured onto the field, and fists flew. Fighting was spread over the whole field, and it was easy to see people getting their heads smashed by some pretty lethal blows.

Both sides regrouped their ranks and clashed in one big mass in the center of the gridiron.

president. The five already were members of the Jaycee board and were elected by the board to their posts.

Heading both the board and executive board for 1965 will be new Jaycee president Mac Harvey, KRDO Radio, and Robert Figgie, Figgie's Fillmore Texaco, chairman of the board. Harvey was elected president for 1965 at the December 3rd Jaycee meeting. Figgie, the 1964 Jaycee president, will serve as chairman of the board for 1965.

Newly elected director to the Jaycee board was James Paul. Each year one vacancy occurs on the board when the previous year's president becomes chairman of the board and the old chairman retires.

Harvey and the new board of directors will officially take office at the Jaycee annual banquet to be held January 9 at the Dublin House. Before that date directors will be assigned portfolios for the coming year.

Under his portfolio a man directs all Jaycee activities in a specific area such as tourist promotion, youth welfare, public service and membership. Board members currently are writing Harvey stating their assignment preferences and qualifications.

Since home decoration is always in season, everyone faced with the problem of hanging curtains and draperies usually has a need for valance boards. These can be made from inexpensive fiberboard, hardboard or plywood and, by following the pattern offered below, can be shaped like the one illustrated. To add the authentic Colonial touch, carved wood trim has been nailed to the top edge.

While stores everywhere provide excellent instructions on how to make and hang draperies, relatively few provide information on the construction of valance boards. The pattern offered below fills this need. It tells how to measure and make valance to size required, how and where to fasten in position to window frame. By following the full size pattern, you can make this attractive valance to any length required.

Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order for Window Valance Pattern No. 30, to Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor New York 10510. Send additional 50 cents for new Easi - Bild Catalog illustrating over 300 other easy to build pattern projects and home improvement books. Add 25 cents per pattern if you wish pattern mailed by Special Handling.

WHY NOT THREE BATHS?

A third bathroom, even in moderately priced homes, is becoming more commonplace says the Tile Council of America, trade association of the leading ceramic tile manufacturers. Many home owners place the third bath in the basement as an extra convenience. Walls and floors should be surfaced with a waterproof and easy-to-clean surface such as ceramic tile.

Give Your Home Yule Present This Year

Why not give your home a Christmas present this year? A atmosphere, for instance.

There's simply no substitute for the cozy intimacy of a den. A family room can't do it because it's too much in the center of activity. The living room is too public. A book corner in the bedroom might work, but best of all is the hideaway den in attic, basement or a quiet end of the house. Here is the place for true relaxation, the place to spin dreams, catch up with your reading — or just to grab a nap.

The den's size doesn't matter. Any space bigger than a closet will do, and welcome. But atmosphere does count, for this room must be warmly inviting, serene, and filled with personal treasures.

One of the easiest ways to instill warmth is with wood walls. There's something about the friendly texture and warm golden coloring of woods like western hemlock and yine that make them practically synonymous with a den. And today you can have your wood walls any way you like them — knotty, clear, striped, dark, light, rough or smooth as a satin pillow.

To get that smooth - as - silk look, select clear 1x4 inch tongue - and - groove panel boards and install them horizontally. These should be panel boards cut without a pattern at the joint. The boards are then sanded well and finished with wax, matte finish lacquer or a penetrating sanding sealer. Sometimes wallpaper lacquer is used.

Any of these products captures the true coloring of the wood, allowing its hue to deepen slightly in the first few months after installation. Hemlock reaches a rich champagne in color, while the pines turn more to a gold-brown shade.

Furnishing the den is a pleasant job because you'll want to use pieces that are long on comfort and tailored to your private taste. No need here to feel the pressure of style trends and changes.

You'll want a cushioney sofa and at least one lounge chair—a wing back with foot stool, recliner, upholstered rocker or whatever most suits you. Include plenty of occasional tables for books, ash trays, magazines, art objects, trophies. Bring your coin or stamp collection here and use it to decorate the room, or display your talents in ceramic work, embroidery or painting.

Use your favorite colors in this room, those that are especially relaxing to you, whether they're earth tones or vivid jewel shades. Remember, this is to be your very private retreat, built to please you alone.

PART OF THE PLAN

When you plan to finish the attic or add a room, remember that these new living areas will require heat as well as all the other features you have in mind. Plan the heating before you start the expansion, not after.

Here's the Answer

Question: Several weeks ago I put a new plug on the end of a lamp cord and it worked fine for a few days. When the lamp wouldn't work, I checked and found that the lamp cord wires I had connected to the screws on the plug had come loose. I reconnected them and once again the lamp operated perfectly. But now it's out again, and I'd like to know why the wires come loose from the screws after such a short period of time.

Answer: It is likely that, with this particular lamp, the plug is being taken out of the outlet quite often — and that it is being done carelessly; that is, someone is jerking the lamp cord rather than grasping the plug itself. But even that shouldn't unhook the wires so quickly unless your connections aren't solid.

The single most important thing in connecting the two wires to the two terminal screws is the manner in which the wires are positioned. Be sure they go all the way around each screw — and be sure they are wound in the direction in which you will turn the screw to tighten it, which is clockwise. If you wind the wires in a counter-clockwise direction, they tend to come loose as you turn the screwhead clockwise. After you are sure the connection is firm, clip off any wire strands that are sticking out from under the heads of the screws.

Question: I intend to put a translucent plastic roof on our patio. What kind of nails should be used to attach the roofing material to the wooden cross beams?

Answer: The dealer where you buy the translucent paneling can supply you with the proper nails. The type generally used is made of aluminum, has a special shank and includes a waterproof washer attached just under the head of the nail. Unless you hammer very carefully, the nail may cause the hole in the plastic to develop a raggedy edge. It is wise, therefore, to drill holes for the nails.

Keep Floors Looking Nice For Holidays

Probably the last thing any homemaker wants to do during the Christmas holidays is scrub dirty floors. Yet, with its heavy concentration of indoor activity, this is the season when floors receive some of their hardest wear.

Forunately this year, the homemaker has a wide assortment of work-saving aids at her disposal designed to insure nice looking floors with a minimum of effort. Among these are:

— A new one-step cleaner and wax for resilient floors that removes dirt and puts down a long-lasting shine, all in the same application. Great to use just before that holiday party.

— A new group of self-polishing waxes for wood floors designed to eliminate the tiresome chore of buffing. These are easily applied with a cloth or wax applicator, and dry to a beautiful satiny sheen in about 30 minutes. They also clean as they polish.

— A handy, disposable floor mark remover pad designed to remove stubborn scuffs and heel marks. A "must" if you have light colored floors in your home. Each pad cleans numerous marks safely, and simultaneously applies a new coat of polish to the cleaned area.

There are also several preventive measures you can take to keep floors in top shape during the holidays. Most experts, for example, recommend placing shoe mats at each entrance to the house to hold down the amount of dirt that is tracked in from outside. Also, it's a good idea to give your floors a thorough sweeping or vacuuming once a day or so. This removes loose particles of dirt and grit before they have a chance to become ground into the flooring surface.

If your floors show signs of "yellowing," there is probably too much wax built up on the surface. Now is the time to strip them of old wax before friends start dropping in for those unexpected holiday visits.

Floor Level Heating Can Be Problem

Your feet touch the floor almost all the time you're home, so if your floors are cold you will be uncomfortable.

Heat escapes your body through your feet when floors are cold. Small children, who are built closer to the floor, will be chilled. This is why floor temperature is one of the most important aspects of indoor comfort.

Seventy degrees is a ideal temperature for floors, according to authorities at the National Better Heating - Cooling Council. A temperature as low as 65 degrees may not be uncomfortable if it's the temperature along the outside edges of the room, but it shouldn't be any lower than that, warns the Council.

The Council reports that floors won't be comfortable unless they are warmed by heat such as that provided by modern hydronic (hot water) heating units.

These metal baseboard heating units are installed along the outside walls of each room. They resemble the conventional wood baseboard but hot water is circulated through them and the baseboard heating units give off radiant heat. Their location distributes the heat effectively along exterior walls where it is needed to combat outside cold. These units also heat the floor along the edges of the room and also much of the wall above them.

The Tydings - McDuffie Act, passed by Congress in 1934, provided for Philippine independence in 1946.

Have you longed for the warmth and comfort and that certain added Early American touch of the old Franklin stove? Familiar to many American homes for over a century, they're still valued for their heating capabilities and sturdy cast iron construction and they are adaptable to many kinds of installation. When closed, a warm heater; when open, a welcome fire. Wonderful for mountain cabins, or in a town home, as they are adaptable to either an electric log, real wood or coal. And so easy to install in just a few hours. Now available in Colorado Springs at HAS-TON PRODUCTS, Inc., 14 E. Bijou. adv.

Small Space Can Become Extra Bath

Is there a need for another bath or powder room in your home?

Such an added convenience can be yours, without overburdening your budget, even if the space you have available is no larger than 4 x 4 feet.

Space-saving toilets (including wall - hung models) and wash basins now make it possible to create an extra bath in a nook or cranny, such as space at the end of a hallway or in a spare closet.

Of course any bath should be built with sanitation and durability in mind. Easy-to-clean materials such as ceramic tile should be used on walls, floors and counters. Ceramic tile needs no care other than an occasional quick wipe with a damp cloth. It now comes in more than 250 colors and shades so that it can easily be matched or contrasted with any of the colors in which toilets, wash basins and tubs are available.

Tow of the new bath features are of particular interest. The corner basin is a great space-saver.

Colonial Cradle Can Be Proud Parent's Joy

By Ed Fleming

Making Colonial-styled furniture is a highly satisfying hobby. Not only is the end product always functional, but the early American touch is always a charming one. The colonial settler didn't fuss when he made furniture for his home. He designed it simply, built it sturdily and made it withstand the test of time.

Dad can tackle one of these colonial projects in the one presented this week in Sketchbook. It is the rocking cradle, design plan S-192. Our design is based on one type of the original settler's cradle, sometimes known as the New Jersey cradle.

The cradle is not a difficult one to build. The two units, the cradle proper and cradle stand, are made from standard size pine lumber. They are connected with a simple dowel and dowel stop arrangement that allows the gentle rocking motion of the cradle. The Sketchbook plan shows you in photographs the step-by-step assembly of the units, gives parts and lumber lists and all details of parts to guide you. Same size patterns are provided for the shapes involved. You are shown its dowel construction.

A standard 15" x 30" baby mattress fits the cradle snugly. Incidentally, you can follow the plan's designs and by halving the given sizes build a very handsome doll cradle that the little daughter around your home will absolutely cherish.

The Colonial Cradle S-192 is available, as usual, for 50 cents through this newspaper. Make this a family heirloom that will rock many a happy baby to sleep.

Other Colonial-styled plan projects that are popular with Sketchbook readers, each available for 50 cents each in the same manner as the above design plan, include:

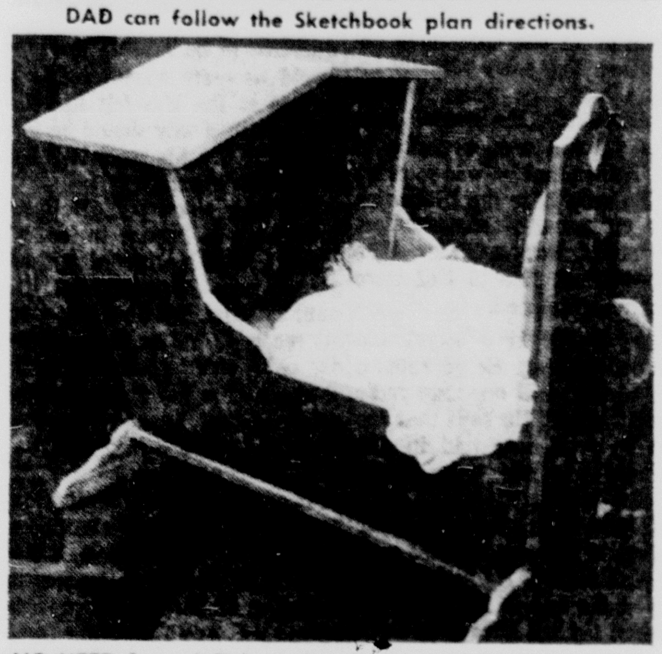
- S-171, the Dry Sink Hutch
- S-174, the Harvest Table
- S-164, the Colonial Wide Hutch
- S-169, the Shiprigger's Bench

DAD can follow the Sketchbook plan directions.



NO NEED for a lullabye, the gentle rocking of the cradle does the job.

To obtain Sketchbook plan S-192, the Colonial Rocking Cradle, fill out the coupon below and mail it along with 50 cents to SKETCHBOOK in care of this newspaper.

Tom Waller Stood Pat

Thomas K. Waller is out of jail. Whether or not he is out of difficulties remains to be seen.

The saga of Tom Waller is minor in event and epochal in implication. The story actually began a year ago when, on December 4, 1963, the Internal Revenue Service sent a notice to Mr. Waller that he was to bring all his records to the IRS office for purposes of examination. The notice was specific. His records from 1960 to 1962 were what was required.

Tom Waller is a 56-year-old disabled veteran. He operates a kind of marginal one-man radio repair service. He says that the best year he ever had in this business was one where he grossed $3,300.

After receiving this notice, Mr Waller, in retrospect, went over his past affairs. He had always obeyed the law in filing his tax returns. He had always paid his taxes. As a matter of fact, he had overpaid them to the tune of about $165.

So he inquired of the IRS if it wanted to charge him with a violation of some sort. No, the IRS said. Just sort of a friendly investigation. There were no charges, no evidence against him. They just wanted to look over his records. The IRS was making what is called a "routine audit."

That kind of bothered Tom. Was there anything in the Constitution that required him to furnish his records just to help some government agency make a routine audit? If the government had a case against him, let it say so. Let it charge him and serve him with a warrant according to the procedure that is set forth in the Fourth Amendment. There, as reference will certify, the following words appear:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Thus, as Tom looked at it, the "reasonableness" of the IRS demand could only be properly shown IF someone in the IRS would make an oath or an affirmation concerning some alleged shortcoming of his, and cause a warrant to be issued which would be quite specific. And if no one at the IRS felt like doing that, then why should he feel obliged to trot his records in for a "routine" audit?

So, Tom stood pat. He was summoned to appear in federal court . . . with his records . . . under penalty of contempt. He went to court, but he didn't take his records. And he testified under oath that he had always abided by the law and asked for evidence that he had not. The court had no such evidence. But U.S. District Judge Wesley E. Brown refused to consider Mr. Waller's testimony. He had been ordered to appear with his records. If he would not, he was in contempt of court. The records stayed put. And Tom Waller was sent to jail to think over his "crime" in failing to comply with the judge's order.

So, for 25 days Tom sat in jail. He didn't produce his records. Finally, Judge Brown directed that the jail disgorge its lonely occupant and Mr. Waller walked out. The court order simply reads: "It is hereby ordered that Thomas K. Waller be discharged from further punishment and released forthwith."

So, Tom Waller spent 25 days in jail. In that time his marginal business went over the margin. He was ruined. But when asked if he was sorry that he had displayed this much defiance, his answer was: "If we don't start standing up against the petty tyrannies of the federal government, we will end up in slavery."

What will he do now? Tom says he'll start again. "There's plenty of opportunity in this country if we don't stifle it by compromising the principles that made it great," he said.

And that's the end of the story, at least at the moment. Possibly some highly paid bureaucrats are burning the midnight oil trying to figure out what they can get on Tom. But he isn't worried. He's starting all over. And possibly his demonstration of civil disobedience may serve a good cause.

Call a Halt

If you no longer believe in the position you support, stop urging it upon others.

Conditioning vs. Value Understanding

The best information we have indicates that babies are born into this world without any inherited knowledge. They may inherit tendencies. The strength and the weakness of these tendencies have yet to be fully understood.

The training of the infant begins virtually at once. His parents, primarily the mother, become the teachers of the infant. Schedules are established. Rules are laid down. No one in all the world is governed more thoroughly than the infant.

The training is difficult and it is extended over a protracted period. The child, at the outset, learns more by conditioning methods than by appeals to its reason. If it behaves in an acceptable fashion, it is rewarded. If its behavior is unpleasant, unsanitary, uncooperative, it is not rewarded and often certain types of punishment are inflicted. Actually, the deprivation of an anticipated reward is a kind of punishment in itself. Gradually, certain acceptable responses are built into the subconscious mind of the child.

By the time the child is beginning to toddle, more subtle forms of instruction can be employed. Explanations can be made. It is astonishing what a child can learn from verbalizing in the language, which as yet it has not mastered.

No one knows precisely when the right time comes to begin visual education. Good results have often been obtained when the parents begin teaching the child the alphabet at the age of two, or even before. By four years of age, many children, if properly prepared, can read.

From this time forward, through the primary grades and high school, the child and then the young adult accumulates a vast store of knowledge. And it is here that we begin to discover the great vacuum in our present practices and current government school system.

Little time is given to developing in the child a reasonable and intelligent system of values. If he does learn certain intrinsic truths at home, they are apt to be "weeded" out when he enters a government institution. Indeed, certain instructors virtually glory in destroying the values of young people.

By means of pedantic ridicule they can cause the young person to come to feel that all prior efforts to teach him the "good" from the "bad" were simply done for purposes of controlling him. And, in candor, let us concede that sometimes this is so.

Nonetheless, a value system is important. Indeed, it is vital. It is not possible for human life to be lived without each person having within him a concept of what is better and what is worse.

But what will each person accept as a standard by means of which to determine what is good and what is bad?

The tendency today is to hold up as "good" anything that may serve to benefit the group. The shortsightedness of this tendency is quickly apparent. The spark of originality may be dimmed or even extinguished. Even the willingness of the individual to look after himself, to acquire traits of self-reliance, can be so blanketed as to cause the young person to feel that he must conform at all costs.

The merit of the educational experience is that through it the person stops being an infant and becomes an adult. If, as he moves toward adulthood, he is still treated like an infant, if mass conditioning methods are still practiced then it is inevitable that the graduate student will have been marvelously conditioned toward group orientation, and his own ability to be himself and to rise to the full dignity of manhood will have been atrophied.

This is why education in moral principles, in accumulating sound value judgments, in the making of independent decisions is so vital.

Unfortunately, at the moment, our educational efforts are geared almost entirely to obtaining group conformity. It is small wonder that today's physically mature people are so immature in their ability to reason and to shoulder responsibilities. We are becoming a race of infantile adults, thanks to our schooling methods. Nor will this process cease until we have removed political controls from our educational structure and placed a premium on a true understanding of individualism.

New Broom

Stranger Than Fiction

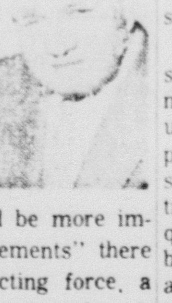
By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The other day I received a letter from a man who asked, "How goes the freedom movement?" While trying to frame a reply, I realized there is no movement, as such, only individual people doing the best they can to behave as self-responsible human beings and nothing could be more important. In "movements" there is always a directing force, a center. To the best of my knowledge, nothing of this sort exists in connection with the freedom philosophy. There is no overall organization, club, association or society, no single leader or director.



And yet an appreciable number of people seem to find ways and means to keep in touch with one another from various sections of the country. Among these, I find what would usually be called groups except that among those who recognize the fact that group action is a snare and a delusion, only cooperation and collaboration among a certain number of individuals exists.

When several of these individuals meet, an exchange of ideas takes place. Discussions are philosophical or in connection with specific market place ideas. Through these exchanges, we find that many small private schools for profit are now operating in different sections of the country and that many more are in the planning stage.

Many years ago, in connection with a business deal, I was advised to journey to a coastal city and register at a certain well known hotel. My boss told me a man would get in touch with me within two days, and on the second day a well dressed young Japanese stopped me as I walked through the lobby of the hotel and told me his employer had invited me to dinner. Now, if this is beginning to read like a detective thriller, forget it. The man I met that night was quite well known. He acted as an introducer, for a fee. This guaranteed nothing except that I would have an opportunity to meet certain people who might be interested in a product or service and that they would listen and would be in a position to do business with me.

I thought my boss had blown a fuse, at the time, but by the time I had called on a few of the people to whom I had cards of introduction I changed my mind. The "introducer" also made several appointments for me by telephone and I was busy for two weeks, at the end of which time the company I worked for had made an excellent profit and I was planning to spend an extra large commission check.

In a less organized manner, a similar condition exists in connection with several people who understand and subscribe to the principles of the freedom philosophy. There is no single "introducer" or go between, but quite a few people know somebody who knows somebody else and from these sources opportunities for mutual profit stem. To date, this thread of contact is very thin but it seems to possess amazing strength which is growing in importance.

Oddly enough, there is an astonishing lack of written contact between the people to which I refer. It reminds me of conditions an old friend told me he encountered during his exploring days. It also reminds me of stories my grandmother told me about the earlier days in Chicago when peddlers, hauling their wares in a wagon drawn by a tired horse, carried information from house to house, from person to person. It is interesting to note that quite a few of those peddlers eventually opened stores in which their former customers became stockholders.

We can't call any of this a philosophy of freedom movement. It is simply a natural evolution stemming from the actions of human beings who begin to move around and do things without waiting for a handout or bribe from government. Because it is not organized, it will not collapse. The stimulation of new ideas and individual action becomes a self-perpetuating force which requires no artificial respiration.

Look around you and listen and observe, and I believe you too will be encouraged.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

A MATTER OF METHOD

What's wrong with fighting poverty?
Pray can you tell me, Dad?
I think that all men will agree
There's nothing wrong with it per se.
It's the methods used that bugs them, see?
There are better ways, my Lad.

What's better than direct approach?
Pray can you tell me, Dad?
You've studied under a rotten coach
If you think government can poach
Or on our liberties encroach
And so help others, Lad.

What better way would you suggest?
Pray can you tell me, Dad?
There are many ways, but one is best.
Let government get out with zest.
The people themselves will do the rest.
That's all that's needed, Lad.

But what's so wrong with government aid?
Pray can you tell me, Dad?
It produces neither goods nor trade.
It reduces all to a lower grade
So just a few can have it made.
It's socialism, Lad.

But why can't socialism cure?
Pray can you tell me, Dad?
Because on earth one thing is sure,
For poverty the only cure
Is that our freedom should endure
To increase production, Lad.

According to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, there are "bleeding hearts" and "pseudo liberals" who want to raise the legal age of juveniles to 21 years. Hoover himself thinks it would be better to lower it to 16 years. He also thinks the parents of juvenile delinquents should be made to pay for property damage done by their children. Up until the era of bleeding hearts and pseudo liberals, the parents always had to pay for all damages done by their kids. The public was also made aware, through the press, whose kids were doing the damage — and we had fewer delinquents.

I wonder if the pseudo liberals who are trying to push the age of juveniles to 21 years, with the protection of leaving their names out of print every time they get in trouble, are the same ones who also want to give all 18-year-olds the vote? The "liberal" approach to any subject is certain to be the zany one.

To The Point

Subsidizing Enemies

By RUSSELL KIRK

To judge by the frenzied reaction of African radicals to the rescue of Europeans and Americans in Stanleyville, it is a natural right of war criminals to imprison, beat, ravish, and murder whomever they like — so long as the criminals are African leftists. How naughty and imperialistic of Belgium and the United States to snatch away such victims from the hands of their "progressive" tormentors!

The African states principally responsible for encouraging terrorism in the Dark Continent are three: Ghana (whose U.N. representative has been elected president of the U.N. Assembly, ironically), Algeria (whose dictator, Ben Bella, has promised arms and perhaps soldiers to aid the savage Congo "rebels"), and Egypt (where Nasser's despotism did not interfere with the burning of the Kennedy Library, instigated by the Communist Chinese embassy). All three regimes receive massive American economic aid. Nasser, indeed, could not remain in power without American subsidies.

If American aid to these tyrannies was granted on the assumption that somehow radical dictators would grow mild when bribed, that fond hope should have been exploded long ago. These regimes grow increasingly repressive at home, and meddle maliciously in international affairs. Nasser is engaged simultaneously in the Yemen war, subversion in Aden, intrigue in the Sudan, and ferocious designs against Israel. Nkrumah, in Ghana, secluded in his palace, desires the overthrow of what reasonably stable and tolerant governments exist in Africa. Ben Bella poses as the champion of African nationalism — and atrocity—against all Europeans.

So why does the American State Department continue to subsidize and flatter people who will play the Communist game whenever it suits their fancy, and who never can be friendly toward the interests of America and her allies? In part, the answer seems to be that the State Department is hopelessly bureaucratic and inefficient and overstaffed, so that its right hand never knows what its left hand is doing; and that many of its important personnel are timid and ineffectual, as critics like Professor Hans Morganthau point out.

How can American policy at once support Tshombe in the Congo and Ben Bella in Algeria? How can our people prate about democracy and progress in Africa — and shore up Nkrumah? How can we finance Nasser — who ships his spies by air freight — and expect the survival of the moderate governments he detests.

The failure of America's African policy is sufficiently suggested by the fall of the moderately pro-Western government of the Sudan, where the new 15-member cabinet includes five admirers of Nasser, and five Communists. The Congolese war criminals of the Stanleyville rebel "government" — Gbenye, Soumaliot, Mulele, Olenga — have taken refuge in the Sudan, after doing their worst to murder the white civilians they had taken prisoner.

These Days

Will the History of 1937 Be Repeated?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

"It's going through," said Franklin D. Roosevelt's irrepressible Tommy Corcoran about the Supreme Court packing plan back in 1937. Roosevelt had a whopping new majority in both houses of Congress at the time, and it did indeed look as if he had the votes for anything. Nevertheless, the packing plan was defeated after 168 days of bitter parliamentary maneuver.

The labor union chieftains are now exuding what can only be described as a Tommy Corcoran-type of confidence that they can get quick action in Congress to knock out the Taft-Hartley Act's 14B, which currently allows any individual state to pass a right-to-work law. But labor's congressional supporters may have to reckon with the counter-strategy that is already forming, a counter-strategy which scents the possibility that a fight over 14B can be turned into the court pack plan of the new Johnson administration.

Since there are 40 senators who come from right-to-work states, and since the unions have no absolute power over the rules committee or the labor committee in the House of Representatives, the counterstrategists have hopes that they can find Democrats to carry the ball. One gambit being considered is to "roll with the punch" when the unions insist on opening up the Taft-Hartley Act for revision. The idea would be to insist that if one section of Taft-Hartley is to be made subject to change, then other sections must also be open to amendment.

RULING

But what sort of amendment could help the counterstrategists? It so happens that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled, in cases appealed from courts in Georgia and North Carolina, that union use of dues for political activity is an infringement of the civil rights of individual union members. The cases have been returned to the lower courts for consideration of damages to those who brought the suits originally. Now, to let a court ascertain the exact amount of damage to complaining union members, the unions would have to open their books to show what percentage of dues money has gone to support legitimate collective bargaining activity, and what percentage has been used to further labor's political aims. The unions, of course, balk at any effort to apply mathematics to their use of money.

This is where the counterstrategists think they may have the unions on the hip when it comes to opening up the Taft-Hartley Act to amendment. The counterstrategists are tentatively proposing to offer an amendment to the particular section of Taft-Hartley that now permits union shop agreements in states that don't specifically prohibit them. To the clause that now allows union shop agreements, the counterstrategists would add a proviso that would limit union shop recognition to unions that "agree to limit the collection of dues and assessments to an amount equal to the cost of carrying out collective bargaining." This would force all union shop unions to operate in a goldfish bowl.

The counterstrategists are confident that the unions would rather forego a repeal of 14B than submit to pitiless publicity that might keep them from paying full salaries to officials who spend part of their time in political "education."

STRING ALONG

There is a distinct possibility, of course, that Lyndon Johnson may prefer to string the unions along in the matter of 14B repeal. Johnson was around in 1937, and he surely recalls what the court packing plan did to shatter the Democratic harmony that had been built up by the astounding landslide of November, 1936. If the President gets any hint that a fight over 14B might become a party-splitting matter, he would certainly ask labor not to press the issue at the very outset of his new term.

The unions, however, are hungry. The argument that they should be satisfied with such things as a new minimum wage law and medicare tied to Social Security does not go down with them. Minimum wage laws and medicare would benefit non-union men even more than union members and the union leaders could hardly sell them to union victory. Stronger meat is demanded, and the bruising congressional battle of 1937 may very possibly be re-enacted.

Wasteful System Of Wooing Firms

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Each of the 50 states is feverishly clamoring for industry. James Nance, Cleveland banker who heads the Ohio Research and Development Foundation, estimates there are over 1,000 industrial development groups at work throughout the nation.

Each of these area-boosting groups is striving to attract industry away from other areas. The chief methods used are advertising, tax forgiveness, and gifts of free facilities.

Of these the first has its merits. Through advertising, firms seeking plant locations can check each area. However, a more reliable way is for each firm to send scouts to the various areas. Knowing their company's needs, these "locaters" can quickly glean the unbiased truth regarding each area, so that by a process of comparison the company's officials can decide which is best. Some companies retain a firm of location experts to size up the alternative locations and make recommendations.

Forty-one of the states try to woo firms by some form of tax exemption. They do this in spite of such warnings as that of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston which in its October bulletin said:

"Tax concessions generally have insufficient influence on costs to be responsible for a regional or general area locational decision." However, after a certain region has been chosen by a firm, the choice of specific locality within that region may be swayed by a tax consideration. Thus, each town vies with its neighbor towns to see which can offer the juiciest bribe in the form of reduced taxes.

When a firm is lured to an area by tax exemption, the other taxpayers of the area are, in fact, being forced to subsidize that firm by meeting its share of the costs of local government as well as their own. This is hardly a fair shake. Were a taxpayer to sue a municipality for overtaxing him in order to relieve an incoming firm from taxation, he would have a morally strong case.

Many cities, using tax revenues, buy land and often erect plants which they offer, free or at low rent, to firms as an inducement to locate in the area. At least 20 states permit cities to issue bonds to finance such free plants. In 15 states, the state government itself loans money to finance such plants. Typical is the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority, which has loaned many millions to Pennsylvania municipalities for this purpose.

This is similar to tax exemption in that the public credit (that is, the ability of the taxpayers to continue paying their toll to the state) is being used as security to enable cities to borrow money which is given as a gift to favored firms. The fact that in certain cases the firms may buy or lease the land does not alter the fact that a gift or subsidy is involved, for the terms are always easier than the firm could gain in a purely private transaction; if they were not, there would be no inducement for the firm to choose this area over another. The 'gift' is the use of public credit, given to a private firm.

The Federal Reserve Bank quoted above also states that such gifts are the "most effective devices for attracting new industries." However, the bank fails to point out that these gifts are most effective in attracting the least desirable firms, that is, the firms that lack capital, are likely to be short-lived, and therefore are willing to accept a comparatively poor location just in order to claim the gift. Well-managed firms decide for themselves where they will locate. They examine many areas, size up each on such bases as abundance of water, availability of labor of the right skill and price, nearness to raw materials and markets, and transport facilities.

Citizens who assume it costs them nothing to mortgage the public credit to lure firms are in error. The "public credit" is simply the aggregate of the credit-worthiness of all the individuals who make up the "public." It is not unlimited. When used by the state to woo industry, it is not available for private uses.

The most effective industrial development policy for any state is to reduce its activities and thereby reduce the tax burden on all industry, home and foreign. Even more important, such a policy gives maximum encouragement to the state's young men and women to become business enterprisers and to create more industry within its borders. The area in which new enterprise is sprouting need offer no bribes to lure industry from outside.

SKULLDUGGERY

To the Editor:

Skullduggery is an old phrase used by most of our parents. It meant almost anything pertaining to illogical, immoral or illegal forms of actions.

We still have the actions in our everyday lives, but now we call them "politics" — and the people who do such actions are "politicians."

Perhaps we should revive the old phrase and convert it to SKULL-DIGGERY, a process of "thinking for ourselves." It is rapidly becoming necessary for us to question the actions of those who govern us. We have spent too much time being content to let others "think" for us, claiming that they know better than us what is "good" for us. Our likes and dislikes were not as important to them as they were to us, but we got them anyway — like it or not. It is time for a change in "thinking habits.

ROAD-PATCHING

To the Editor:

Mr. Porter's column in the Nov. 12 issue, "Chuck Holes No Chuckles," reminds me of a similar situation where once I lived. A stretch of disintegrated pavement lay between property owned by one with considerable political influence and his competitor. He assured the maintenance supervisor that there was no hurry to have the road put in condition as he knew there were so many other places in need of work and that there was a shortage of manpower, etc., but any time the supervisor happened to be in the neighborhood he was welcome to stop in for a drink or a meal, on the house. Can you blame me for wondering if any of the Pikes Peak Tour services (including Broadmoor) ever complained and requested better maintenance? Would not such road conditions discourage tourists from driving their own cars?

When the writer suggested that there was room for improvement in road-patching methods, the present road commissioner took it as an insult (but the miserable patching, and the potholes speak for themselves) and he put the blame on the lack of funds to purchase another $52,000 piece of equipment! Now, when the City of Colorado Springs needed a striping machine and a new one would cost more than the available funds would cover, the city shop got busy and out of available salvaged material built one for about one-fifth that cost. I trust the incoming commissioners will follow the example of the city and out of equipment already on hand (or a few purchases of salvaged equipment) make two or three road-patching outfits that will enable the crews to do smooth and lasting patching jobs.

CATTLEMEN

To the Editor:

Our mid-winter convention is now history, and from the reports that we have received, it was very successful.

The Colorado Cattlemen's Association board of control, our convention committee, and our association officers all join in saying they certainly appreciated the contribution which you made towards making our convention a success.

It would be impossible to stage this type of convention and have the state-wide interest of not only the cattlemen, but the general public, if it weren't for friends like you in the field of press and radio. Your generosity, cooperation, and interest are very much appreciated.

REMINDER

To the Editor:

Headlines (Several Months Apart): 1. Khrushchev says "We'll bury you"! 2. Johnson wins in a landslide!

Which reminds me that the Romans said the same thing to one man some 2,000 years ago. They discovered, however, that you can't bury a Christian; you can only plant them and when you do, they multiply.

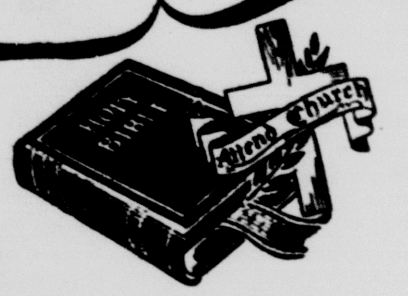
Prophets of the Long Trail



YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

After a week of hard labor from which they earned their living these men of God would drive many miles to break The Word of Life to a hungry people.

THESE men were God's men, first and last. They were committed to do His will . . . to bring His message to the careless, sinful and needy. They asked only for people who would listen. Their ministries were sincere. Their churches were sacred places which were used to mold men for God. *Disbelief of the inspiration of the Scriptures, or the divine origin of Christianity were not tolerated. ## BLIND POSTMASTER HANDS OUT MAIL

FORT FRASER, B.C. (AP) — The postmaster in this northern British Columbia community is a blind man.

J. C. Matthews depends on his wife to sort the mail, but he knows everyone in the district by voice and knows where each individual's mail slot is located.

Six years ago, Boy Scouts bought Matthews a seeing-eye dog. But now the dog, Roamer, is apparently going blind and a spokesman for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind says the institute is sad and worried about the possibility that the postmaster might lose his "great companion."

They have appeared in concert at the School of Music at the University of Colorado. During the school year the choir has presented two one act operas.

This Christmas season they will present ten Christmas Concerts, one of which is the one to be presented at 7:30 p.m. at the First E.U.B. Church.

Their director, Mr. Russell Hillock, is a member of First Church and a 1954 graduate of Colorado Springs High School where he was active in the choirs and band. He received his Bachelor of Music at the University of Colorado and in 1962 was awarded his 1962 Master of Arts from Adams State College. Mr. Hillock is in his sixth year of teaching music; this being the second year he has taught at Littleton High School.

Residents of the Colorado Springs area will remember his appearance as bass soloist with the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra in summer Pops Concerts; also his solo work with the Colorado Springs Choral on several occasions. He is currently a member of the Mario Singers of Denver.

The public is invited to attend this concert on Sunday evening.

Bishop Stuart to Speak At Trinity Methodist

Bishop R. Marvin Stuart will be guest speaker Sunday morning at Trinity Methodist Church when memorials which have been placed in the new church will be dedicated and those brought from the old church will be rededicated. Rev. Sigurd F. Burch Jr., pastor of the church, will officiate with Bishop Stuart at the service. There will be only one service at 11:00 a.m. with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m.

Bishop Stuart was pastor of the First Methodist Church, Palo Alto, Calif., before coming to the Denver area of the Methodist Church as its episcopal leader.

Many beautiful memorials have been given to the Church such as the cushioned pews on which the congregation will be seated, the Hammond Concert Model Organ with its stereophonic speakers which will provide music for congregational singing, and the altar which features a hand carved scene of the Last Supper.

All of the memorials have been registered in a "Living Memorial Book" which is displayed prominently for all to see in a memorial cabinet. The memorial committee and its chairman Mr. Coy Baughman have worked for the past three years to make possible the giving of these memorials. Committee secretary Mrs. Charles Brooks, a daughter of the late Rev. Stuntz one of Trinity's past ministers, is in charge of all memorial information.

The Chancel choir, the youth choir, and the children's choir, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Russell, will sing Christmas anthems. Sacred Christmas music will be played by Mrs. Jessie Atkinson, organist, with Mrs. Lillian Burch at the piano.

Following the service an informal potluck luncheon will be served in the church dining room. The public is invited to attend.

Love Will Meet With Colorado Legislators

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John A. Love will meet next Wednesday with Republican legislative leaders to consider specific details of revenue and expenditure proposals during the coming legislature.

Love met for nearly four hours Wednesday with GOP legislators. He said "both sides of the coin" of revenue and expenditure proposals were discussed.

Love said he hopes to hold a similar discussion with the Democratic leadership in the legislature before Christmas.

Love also met Wednesday with William S. Powers, GOP national committeeman; Tom Carney, 2nd Congressional District chairman, and Bob Waggoner, administrative assistant to outgoing U.S. Rep. Donald Brotzman, R-Colo.

The governor said only matters concerning party organization were discussed. He said no changes in Republican state leadership were contemplated.

Report on Smoking To Be Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Significant new information" on the subject of smoking and health will be made public on Jan. 11, a joint public-private council said today.

The date is the first anniversary of a report by the surgeon general's advisory committee which said cigarette smoking is a health hazard. The new report is expected to be a follow-up to that one.

The announcement came from the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health which includes the U.S. Public Health Service and certain other government agencies as well as a number of major voluntary agencies in the health and education field.

Emerson Foote, chairman of the council, invited newsmen to a meeting Jan. 11 and said: "The purpose of this meeting is to report to the nation significant new information resulting from nany selected educational and research programs in smoking and health."

During the past year, a broad range of programs at the national, state and local levels has been initiated to implement the recommendations of the advisory committee's report, he said.

Robinson Starts On Umpteenth Hollywood Film

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Edward G. Robinson celebrated his 71st birthday this week by starting work in his umpteenth movie.

No one in motion pictures has starred during a greater span of years — from 1924 through 1964—and apparently no one is less impressed than the long-time film tough guy.

But he does have an explanation for his professional longevity.

"Take Jack Benny and George Burns," he said, avoiding the obvious reference to himself. "You know why they are still around? Why they are still stars?

"There are three reasons. One, talent. Two, they're stage struck. Three, they are somebody on their own."

The same can be applied to Robinson.

He is a man of enormous charm and wit and listens and speaks with a youthful intensity that belies the years. At 71 he is gray at the temples and his goatee is more white than black. But his voice is rich and vibrant.

Back in 1924 Robinson starred in "The Bright Shawl," his only silent movie. This week he co-stars with Steev McQueen —who hadn't been born when Robinson made his movie debut—in "The Cincinnati Kid" at MGM.

"Perhaps my durability is due to enthusiasm and interest in what I'm doing," Robinson said. "It takes an understanding of people. You must always be contemporary."

Anti-Trust Suit Filed Against Music Firm

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Justice Department has accused Broadcast Music, Inc., (BMI) and 517 broadcasters who own BMI stock of combining illegally to monopolize copyrighted music for broadcasting.

The charge was made in a civil anti-trust suit filed in Manhattan Federal Court.

Acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said the suit asked that the broadcasters be ordered to divest themselves of BMI ownership.

BMI, headquartered in New York City, serves as a clearing house for licenses to perform copywrighted popular music.

The complaint said BMI and the broadcasters had tried to attain a monopoly over performance rights to music and over licenses to broadcast such music.

The scheme has denied composers a competitive market for the sale of licenses to their music and for its performance, and their royalties have been depressed, the complaint said.

It also charged that BMI competitors had been denied access to a free and competitive market for licensing rights and performance rights.

BMI and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) are the nation's two principal music licensing organizations.

Township Insists Pet Lion Must Go

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP) — Abington Township commissioners have passed an ordinance to get rid of Howard Sautter's pet lion, Leo. Sautter has until Dec. 27 to comply.

Sautter, however, immediately announced he will contest the new law all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Sautter's vow was made Thursday night after the commissioners adopted an ordinance banning keeping or maintaining wild animals in the township. Violators face a fine up to $300, or five days in jail.

Passage of the ordinance was the latest development in a dispute that began six weeks ago when the commissioners declared Leo a public nuisance, and told Sautter to get rid of him. A petition signed by 55 township residents prompted the action.

Sauter, who keeps the lion in his backyard, said he thought the ordinance was unfair.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Matthew's original question is one of the solutions to famous Burce Barton's lament about our failure to teach "creative imagination" and original thinking to our youngsters. So send for the Rating Scales below and learn how to be top-notch parents.

By - George W. Crane,
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-477: Matthew, aged 5, is the oldest of our daughter Judy's four youngsters.

During the summer they were all visiting us at our summer farm home.

As Matthew was taking his bath, he looked up at his mother and said:

"What is it that holds water even when it is full of holes?"

She shook her head, and Matthew then pointed to the sponge which he had been using.

Judy later recounted this story to me as evidence of original thinking on Matthew's part.

Bruce Barton, famous business philosopher, recently bemoaned the lack of school training in creative imagination.

Instead, he says most children are taught by rote. They meekly parrot ideas from textbooks and often are actually reprimanded for showing such initiative as Matthew demonstrated in the bathtub.

For many teachers, harassed and maybe irritable from a late date the night before that shorted their night's sleep, find that originality on the part of kiddies takes more of a teacher's time.

If youngsters can be pushed through the usual rote memorizing, there is less disturbance of routine.

Bruce Barton then wonders just how we can encourage youth to take the original pathway that produces an Edison or Pasteur or Henry Ford or Einstein.

Be more an 'asker' instead of an 'answerer' of your child's queries!

The usual parent is the target of an incessant barrage of who-what-why-when-wheres.

And before he can fomulate a simple, monosyllabic reply to his child's first question, the toddler has shot 20 more queries at his parent, so that carefully evolved reply to Number One is probably wasted, anyway.

In this case, teach yourself to use what I have called the "Reversible Why" technique.

Jesus employed it to confound his critics and avoid implicating himself too early on dangerous issues.

"Master, whence cometh thy power?" Christ replied. "And if you answer mine, then I'll answer yours. Whence cometh the power of John the Baptist."

This stumped them, for he had thrown a 2-horned dilemma right back at them.

Parents, you must stifle your instant tendency to answer and, instead, tactfully, "Pause and Praise"; then reverse your child's query.

Judy might thus have "paused and praised" by saying: "Matthew, that's a very clever question. In fact, I never heard of it before."

This will make the questioner feel elated and also stop him on that question.

Then reverse it by asking the child for the answer. And if you continue this strategy, you will stimulate creative thinking and a probing scientific outlook on the part of your youngster.

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Jewish Justice To Be State Court Chief

DENVER (AP) — Justice Edward E. Pringle, 50, first member of the Jewish faith ever elected to the Colorado Supreme Court, will serve as its chief Justice during 1965.

Retiring Chief Justice Robert H. McWilliams announced today the court's selection of Pringle as its presiding officer for next year.

Under the State Constitution the court selects one of its members annually for chief justice.

Pringle, a Democrat, will be given the oath as chief justice Jan. 12 at 11 a.m. in the high court chambers.

The new chief justice was a practicing laywer in Denver for many years and was appointed a distrist judge in 1957 by then-Gov. Steve McNichols. He was elected to serve an unexpired term in 1958 and was elected for a full term in 1960. However, Pringle was named by McNichols to the Supreme Court in 1961 to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice William E. Doyle who became a U.S. district judge. Pringle was elected to the court for full 10-year term at the 1962 election.

He is married and has two sons. He served in the Air Force during World War II.

McWilliams also announced the court has appointed Philip G. Cole, Colorado Springs attorney and law partner of Gov. John A. Love to serve on the unpaid State Board of Law Examiners. The board conducts bar examinations for persons seeking to practice law in the state.

Thunderbirds Bring Away 68-49 Victory Over Cherry Creek

McCalvey Leads Palmer Over Hinkley

Tribe Makes Comeback In Last Period 47-46

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Buoyed by veteran forward Bill McCalvey's bill-hawking and fourth period scoring on a rapid-fire fast break offense, Palmer High's Terrors dashed to their second victory in three non-league pre-holiday contests. Friday night with a whisker-close 47-46 decision over visiting Aurora Hinkley.

The last-minute heroics of McCalvey may have been too much for the slender Palmer letterman as immediately after the game in the Terrors gymnasium he was rushed to the hospital. Severe stomach pains brought fears of possible appendicitis, but the probable diagnosis was effects of the flu.

Nonetheless, McCalvey could have caved in from the pats-on-the-back of his teammates following his tremendous rally that brought the Tribe from behind in the final period. Off to a chilly beginning, the Terrors trailed Hinkley's Thunderbirds by 16-8 at the end of the first quarter and 25-16 at halftime.

Palmer tied the score for the first time at 38-all with 5:23 left in the game and then zipped ahead by three points on a great steal and driving layup by McCalvey, plus two free throws that followed. But the most excitement was still to come.

Battling hard for possession, Hinkley's Gree Phillip and Palmer's Bob Pearson tied up on a rebound and a general melee nearly resulted. There were a few wild punches thrown as the Palmer gym nearly erupted into a free-for-all and the two combatants were ejected from the game.

Following the fisticuffs, each team was awarded double shots from the free throw line for flagrant fouls and Aurora's Norm Beddow proceeded to pull his team to within a single point at 43-42 with 1:30 left as he potted both tries. Palmer's John Knudsen, taking the charity throws for the departed Pearson, missed on both his chances.

But Palmer gained the ball again and little Tom Espinoza put the Terrors into a two point lead again with another free throw, Dan Corwell added another via the line as Hinkley still fought for the ball, and then McCalvey salted away the Tribe's second victory by driving the length of the court to drop in th fielder for a 47-42 lead with but 30 seconds left.

The Thunderbirds managed to make good two more from the field before the final buzzer, but the last came with seven seconds showing and no time to get off a last attempt.

Both teams were playing without one of their stellar regulars, but the game lacked nothing for thrills in the final minutes. For Palmer, letterman guard Mike Romero was dropped from the team late this week for disciplinary reasons, and Hinkley's 6-9 center Mike Davis was not suited because of an injury in the T-Birds last game against Longmont.

McCalvey ended the game with 24 points, which was easily high for both teams, and he was helped out by eight from Espinoza, seven from Pearson and a half-dozen by 6-5 pivot Ed Fitzgerald.

Hinkley had two in double figures with forward John Fleming getting 14 and rugged center Phillip banking in another 13.

Both teams stuck with their zone defenses throughout the contest, and by intermission it appeared the Terrors would be unable to penetrate. The zone slowed the action to near a snail's pace until the last-minute thefts and fastbreak by Palmer that broke open the game.

The Terrors were getting most of the better opportunities in the early going, but a combination of coldness from the field and a lack of consistent rebounding threw them behind a wide deficit. They were able to connect on but six of 30 attempts in the first half for but 20 per cent, while finishing the second half with 12 for 30 for a fine 40 per cent in field goals.

Hinkley, with 6-3 Phillip tossing them in from just about every angle, roared to a 16-8 lead at the end of the first eight minutes and then Lloyd Thomas took over at the firing line as the second period began and the T-Birds rushed to a nine-point lead at the half.

McCalvey started his driving tactics with the second half and he quickly erased most of that lead with three buckets and a free throw. Just as the third period closed, Fitzgerald slapped in a follow shot to narrow the score to 34-32.

Then, with little over two minutes gone in the final period, McCalvey hustled for a rebound and scrambled right back toward the cords to muscle in a great follow-up crip that tied the score. And he kept coming to steal the ball and rush in to give the Terrors their first lead of the game with just over two minutes left.

The brief brawl soon followed, and Palmer had chalked up the triumph.

Tonight the Terrors are to resume non-league play with a trip to Jefferson County High on the western outskirts of Denver. That will leave just one more warmup game, against Laramie, Wyo., Dec. 29, before entering South Central League play after the first of the year.

Widefield Cagers Record First Win Over Fountain

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Coupled with the shooting and rebounding of Dick Stevenson and the Gladiators' ability to freeze the ball in closing minutes of the game, Tom Petersen's Widefield roundballers recorded their first win of the season Friday night.

The Glads picked up their first non-league triumph in four outings at the cost of the Pikes Peak League member Fountain, 52-44.

In addition to controlling the action in the last five minutes of play on their home court Friday night, the Gladiators stifled Burt Feste's basketballers to a mere three-point final period scoring.

Stevenson pumped in 22 points to spearhead the Widefield win and the rangy Gladiator took control of the backboards to snatch 10 rebounds. Dave Smedsrud collected 10 points for the winning team to round out the double - figure scores on the Widefield squad.

For the Trojans, Terry Kent's 20 points was tops but it was the second - half scoring of Dan Grigsby and Bill Carne that nearly pulled out the victory for the Fountain aggregation.

After taking a 14-10 first period lead, the Gladiators fell short in the following quarter as the Trojans bombarded the nets for a 19-point scoring spree to take a 29-26 lead at intermission.

Both teams played tag with the score during the third period, although the Gladiators managed to enjoy a short-lived margin, but the Trojans pulled ahead, 41-40, as Kent sunk two straight baskets.

With less than six minutes left in the contest, the Widefield five started to stall after running up a 48-42 margin. The Trojans couldn't break up the Gladiators freeze and Eldon Lee sewed up the victory with a charity toss with only 47 seconds left on the clock.

The South Central League team established itself leading contender for the SCL championship last weekend by defeating last year's State AAA finalist, Pueblo Central, for the WRL Tourney crown.

But Friday night the Centennial team couldn't handle the aroused Indians with Ron Graham leading the Cheyenne attack with a 27-point performance. Bill Massarand contributed 17 points to the winning cause.

For the Bulldogs, Abel Fuentes scored 18 points and Jerry Guttierez hit for 16 points. The Indians contained Centennial's 7-foot sophomore Ron Smith to six points.

Finsterwald-Hagge Team Leading Scotch Foursome

SEBRING, Fla. — Colorado Springs' Dow Finsterwald, golf professional at the Broadmoor Golf Club and one of the all-time leading money winners on the pro playing circuit, has boosted his team into the lead at the halfway mark in the Scotch Mixed Foursome golf tournament here.

Finsterwald, who took over duties as pro at the Broadmoor just over a year ago, scored an eagle and had two long birdie putts on the back nine here Friday and the brilliant rally was enough to push his team to the front.

Finsterwald and Marlene Hagge, trailing by four strokes after the opening round, left Thursday's leaders, Julius Boros and Betsy Rawls, two strokes behind in a tie for second.

Eighteen of the 24 teams broke par in the second round and another tied it. The new leaders were the principal par busters as they moved up out of a fifth-place deadlock.

The 35-year-old Finsterwald blasted in a wedge shot from 60 yards out, then ran down two 15-foot birdie putts on the back nine. These, plus another birdie putt by Marlene, gave them a five-under-par 31 round.

This was the best nine of the tournament and their 18 hole score of 66, also the best, added up to a six-under-par 36-hole total of 138.

Boros and Miss Rawls were missing a long strong of birdie putts as they settled for 71 and a 36-hole total of 140.

They were tied for second with three other teams — Mason Rudolph and Kathy Whitworth, Dave Ragan and Mickey Wright, and Frank Wharton and Beth Stone.

Ragan and Miss Wright, the 1961 and 1963 winners of the tournament sponsored by Haig and Haig and the only one pairing top women pros with the men, moved up four notches into the runner-up position with a second round of 68.

Pirates Push Panthers Before Bowing, 75-72

By DICK FOSTER

St. Mary's visited the Harrison Panthers' gym Friday night and Harrison knew it. The Pirates and Panthers battled a steamy first half, Harrison pulled away in the third quarter and the final period erupted into a blazing battle that the Panthers finally won, 75-72. Even the Harrison personnel will agree that it was like squeezing blood out of a turnip.

The Pirates wasted no time in letting Norm Sullivan's cagers know why they were there. Coach Dan Wright's St. Mary's team clamped a full court press on the Panthers and kept right in step with the tall, talented Harrison group. It was a wide open affair, and at times in the first half and again in the fourth period, the small Pirates baffled Harrison with ball stealing and good outside shooting.

The third period, however, was all Harrison. Sullivan's Panthers came out of the locker room with one intent, and the Bucs, who had run all over the Panther planks for the first half, were caught off guard. Harrison batted in 19 points in that frame to St. Mary's low performance of five.

Shooting-wise, the Harrison group held a small edge, with 31-57 or 54.7 per cent, while St. Mary's had an even 50 per cent of 68 shots from the field. Panthers hit 13 of 20 at the free throw line while St. Mary's got 14 of the same number of attempts. When the Bucs used that full court press on the Panthers, they had good reason to pant. Wrights 5-11 overaging aggregation provided a sticky object for the lanky Harrison team to overcome. Their height was a definite advantage in the end, for St. Mary's had a tough time on the rebound side, and Harrison's forwards were able to do damage to the Pirates while shooting.

It was a heated battle, and it moved back and forth rapidly. Harrison took a quick edge with good, precision drilled plays. They held a six point edge in the mid-first period when Wright first gave the word "press" to his cagers. At the end of the quarter, which was a tight battle the rest of the way, St. Mary's was down only two, 20-18.

Wright's team continued to press and press. The second quarter was played at a feverish pace, with cagers running all over the entire confines of Harrison gymnasium. St. Mary's pulled a late burst of small proportions and held a 44-41 edge at halftime.

Either Coach Sullivan had some choice words for his Panthers at halftime, or the Bucs had done too much running and were pooped at the start of the second half. Whatever the reason, Harrison worked right around the Pirates, and the Pirates could do very little work at all. The Bucs had four rebounds in that period, and did not dent the scoreboard until some five minutes had passed. Harrison pulled what looked like the fatal punch. Behind Harold Oldham's six points they surged ahead, 60-49.

St. Mary's didn't think it was over however, and it wasn't. Paced by a net-burning forward, Tom McCarthy, the Bucs regrouped and pressed some more.

McCarthy put on an eight point, late quarter spurt, that brought the St. Mary's team within five points with 29 seconds left. The margin was cut to three, 73-70 when McCarthy sank two more on the double technical which occurred after Carthy exchanged words.

Harrison sank two at the lane though with 11 seconds left, and that pretty well bundled it up

McCarthy was the games high en second talley.

McCarthy was the gam's high point man with 27 points, and Mike Obert finished strong for the Panthers with 22. There were four other cagers in double figures. Harrison's tall forwards dominated the boards, Obert pulling down 14 and Dalton hauling in the same number.

Injury Will Sideline Bob Pettit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Star forward Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association has "a questionable fracture" in his back suffered against the Los Angeles Lakers Thursday night.

Pettit will miss at least the game against Cincinnati Saturday night.

Team physician Dr. Stan London said X rays taken in Los Angeles were negative, but ones taken in St. Louis Friday "showed a questionable fracture of one of his vertebrae."

Dr. London said it might be an incomplete fusion that could resemble a fracture.

"If it is a crack," he said, "it would be minor in nature."

Pettit and Rudy Larusso of the Lakers collided and Pettit fell heavily to the floor. He also suffered a head cut in the spill.

The 6-foot-9 veteran has been fitted with a back brace and more X Rays will be taken in a few days. HE is undergoing treatment for muscle tightness in his back.

Pettit, who will be 32 Saturday, missed five games recently with a pulled groin muscle.

Birds Play West Five Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

CHERRY CREEK — Wasson's Thunderbirds combined a scrambling defense and timely shot making here Friday night to rebound from an opening week loss and rip Cherry Creek of the Centennial League, 68-49 in a non-conference contest at the Cherry Creek Gymnasium..

The victory evened the T-Birds record at 1-1 and sends the Colorado Springs team into a third straight nonleague battle tonight in the Palmer gym against towering West Denver. Tip off time for the junior varsity contest is 6:15 p.m.

Wasson, which could muster only 38 points in an opening loss to Denver Lincoln a week ago, got balanced scoring from a host of players Friday. Coach Dick Westbay used his entire 11-man squad with the majority seeing about equal action.

Bob Lynn., a soft-shooting newcomer to the Thunderbird varsity, became the first Wasson player to break double figures this season by dumping 14 points against the Bruins. But eight others were also represented in the scoring column with Rod Wells hitting nine, and veterans Jim Smith, Rick Pettigrew and Mike Martin dropping eight each.

The lengthy contest was marred by continuous whistle-blowing from the opening tipoff. A total of 68 fouls were tooted with the host team drawing 37.

The Thunderbirds, who had hit slightly better than 20 per cent of their field goal attempts last week, were still spotty from the field but did connect on 21 of 56 shots for 35.7 per cent Friday.

However, they could dump only 26 of 47 from the free throw line, a factor which prevented them from icing the contest much earlier.

Although the offense remained spotty, Wasson roped a solid net of defense around the suburban Denver team. The Bruins finished with just 10 field goals in 39 attempts. However they converted 29 of 42 awards at the charity line and it was there that they managed to keep the battle tight until the final period.

Both teams employed a full-court press from the opening whistle, a factor which contributed heavily to the overabundance of fouls and also to frequent stretches of sloppy floor play.

Wasson trailed only once in the struggle, and that came near the conclusion of the first half. The Thunderbirds took an immediate lead on a jump shot by Pettigrew just eight seconds into the contest and quickly constructed a 13-6 advantage with most of the points falling from the free throw stripe. They had a 19-12 margin at the quarter.

Cherry Creek, with a string of potent foul shooting, began to eat into the lead in the second period, however, and the Bruins finally edged over the top at 24-23 with 3:10 left in the half. A follow shot by Craig Gillette bounced the Birds back into the lead just over a minute later and although the Bruins forced a tie at 25-25, they were never to lead again.

A jumper by Lynn sent the Thunderbirds ahead to stay with 1:24 to go and they held a 29-27 advantage at halftime.

A spurt, triggered by the regulars in the first three minutes of the third period, spread the margin to 37-27 and the Birds were never in serious trouble again. Cherry Creek closed to within three points at 38-35 late in the quarter but Wasson quickly broke away again and had a 47-35 lead heading into the final eight minutes. In the first ten minutes of that quarter, they rapidly extended the bulge to a healthy 16 points and the Bruins were forced into a futile game of catchup for the remainder of the contest.

Hardin May Be Out at Annapolis

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Wayne Hardin will not be back as head football coach at the U.S. Naval Academy next year, the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot said Friday.

Sports editor Ed Brandt, in a copyrighted article for Saturday morning's editions, said Doug Scovil, coach of the Navy's quarterbacks and administrative assistant to Hardin, has been unofficially offered the job to succeed Hardin and is believed to have accepted.

Neither Hardin, Rip Miller, assistant athletic director, nor Capt. William Busik, Navy athletic dierctor, was immediately available for comment. Miller and Busik are in New York. Hardin could not be reached.

Hardin's Navy team won three games, tied one and lost six, including the big one to Army, in the 1964 season. The newspaper said Hardin's lone loss to Army in his six years at the Academy was not the reason for his leaving, nor was his losing record this season.

Hardin is the only coach in academy history to beat Army five straight times. Last year he was give nthe position of assistant to Miller along with a new five-year contract, of which four years remain. He was believed to be making about $18,000 a years.

Hardin succeeded Eddie Erdelatz in 1959 after Erdelatz was fired by the academy despite a winning record in his nine year.

Hardin's teams have won 38, lost 20 and tied two. He took the Middies to two bowl games. Navy lost to Missouri 21-14 in the 1961 Orange Bowl, and 28-6 to Texas last New Year's Day. Texas was the No. 1 ranked team and Navy No. 2 in 1963.

Patterson Struggles for Heavy Title

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Floyd Patterson continues his long, uphill struggle to regain the world heavyweight boxing title by meeting unranked Charlie Powell of San Diego, Calif., Saturday night at Hiram Bithorn Stadium.

The 10-round bout, figured no more than a warm-up for the ex-champ, is a benefit for the Carlos Ortiz Youth Foundation Inc., which promotes a youth program in Puerto Rico.

A crowd of 8,000 is expected to pay $70,000 at a $20 tops rate. Patterson is guaranteed 35 per cent of the gross. Powell gets at least $3,000.

Patterson, taking no chances, has worked hard for the bout and weighed 198 before his last light workout Friday. His trainer-manager, Dan Florio, said he expected Floyd to weigh in at a lean 194.

Patterson is slated to meet George Chuvalo of Canada in New York's Madison Square Garden Jan. 29 or Feb. 1. The winner may get a chance to compete for the World Boxing Association crown. The WBA

AFA Takes on Iowa State

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

By coincidence, catching the third consecutive Big Eight Conference team, the Air Force Academy will be looking for a second straight victory and a winning record going into the holiday break in the schedule when the Falcons entertain visiting Iowa State University tonight at the AFA's Cadet Gymnasium.

The contest is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the cozy quarters of the Cadets, with a preliminary game betwee nthe Air Force freshmen and Pratt Junior College set for 6 p.m. Tickets are available at the door.

Playing Colorado University, Missouri and Iowa State in a row could almost qualify the Academy as an honorary member of the Big Eight this week. The CU game came in the final night's play of the first yearly Mile High Classic in a bout for third place, then the Air Force registered its second win in four games with an 82-76 decision over Missouri last Wednesday afternoon.

Iowa State will also be eager for a victory tonight after dropping its first three of the season. The last outing was a 100-74 defeat at the hands of Kentucky, one of the top-ranked clubs in the nation. Other losses were to Minnesota, 63-53, and State College of Iowa, 54-50.

In the case of both teams, this has been termed a "building year" as Air Force and Iowa State each are depending largely on newcomers to the squad for this season. The Falcons have but four lettermen and the Cyclones only two guards, Bob Ziegler and Al Koch, who saw service in Big Eight warfare a year ago.

It should be a tossup, with a slight advantage going to the Cadets on their home floor, and another chiller down to the wire is expected. That was the story this week when the Falcons won their second of the season, not wrapping up the verdict over Missouri until the final two minutes of play.

Coach Bob Spear unveiled a couple of new stars in that one, however, and both are expected to get into the dribble derby against the visitors from Ames, Ia., tonight. Sam Peshut, one of the lettermen but not a starter against Mizzou, and sophomore guard Pat Dowling, a hustling rookie from Cleveland, came in to spark the Falcons to the comeback win.

So far this season, the Academy has tabbed itself with an unwanted trademark of a slow starter, and another sluggish beginning could be disasterous against the Cyclones. In the Falcons' last two games, they went seven minutes without scoring the first gield goal against Colorado, and then with Missouri they were nearly five minutes deep into the game before the initial fielder meshed the nets.

But Peshut and Dowling came on to put pep into the AFA offense, with Peshut netting 21 points for a team high and Dowling doing a bang-up job as a play-maker and defensing first half Missouri sparkplug Gary Garner who ended up with 22 points.

Whether or not Spear will do any switching for the starting lineup will be in doubt until the tipoff. However, the best working combination in their last game had Peshut and sophomore Fred Budinger (who dropped in 17 points) at forwards, Ed Sillivan on the post, and Scott Etnyre and either Jerry Yankee or Dowling in the backcourt. This was the unit that won going away against Mizzou.

Iowa State's Coach Glen Anderson, in his sixth season with the Cyclones, lost heavily through graduation, but always has a trouble-making team in the Big Eight. He'll have consistent size on the floor with lettermen guards Ziegler and Koch both at 6-3, and a couple of newcomers in juniors Jerry Closter and Ron Millik at 6-7. But overall, Iowa State will be about the same height as the Falcons.

Following tonight's game, the Air Force will take a break from the schedule for semester final examinations. They will resume action with a pair of road games, Jan. 2 and 4, against Creighton and North Dakota, and then return to the AFA to host Denver University, Jan. 9.

Denver Loses In Overtime

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A sudden death overtime goal by Dean Lucier gave Michigan a 3-2 hockey victory over Denver Friday night.

The Wolverine forward's goal came at 6:56 of the 10 minute extra period after Michigan failed to hold a two-goal lead in regulation play.

Wilfred Martin and Pierre Dechaine tallied first period goals for Michigan.

But Denver peppered sophomore goalie Greg Page in the second and third periods. Jack James and Wayne Smith scored for Denver. Smith's goal came at 9:32 of the final period with team a man short.

Wasson JVs Slap Manitou

MANITOU SPRINGS — Wasson's junior varsity team took advantage of a cold-shooting fourth period by Manitou to ice a 56-37 victory Friday night.

After Wasson took a 29-24 first half lead, the Mustangs couldn't find the bucket and scored only thirteen points in the second half, three in the fourth quarter.

Manitou travels to Cripple Creek-Victor tonight.

Bill Colvin Cage Program Scheduled at Canon City

CANON CITY — The first practice sessions for the Bill Colvin Youth Basketball Program here this year are scheduled this morning, starting at 9 a.m. in the Canon City High School gymnasium. Ray Wheeler, high school coach, has announced that the program will be run again this winter for boys in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

The Bill Colvin Youth program is in memory of the late stellar guard on the 1961 Canon City team, which was Southern League champion and consolation winner in the state tournament. Colvin was the third leading scorer for the team that year and was named All-State and All-Southern Conference guard.

The program started in 1961-62 and was active in 1962-63. The league this year will be divided into two or three divisions, depending on the number of boys entered. It is possible that there will be a division at each grade level.

Today's practice schedule has sixth grade boys at 9 a.m., fifth grade at 10 a.m. and fourth grade at 11 a.m. Each boy should have gym shoes, and preferably a pair of gym shorts. If he wishes, he may take a shower in the high school locker room. However, he should bring his own towel.

Each boy will receive a shirt, with the official "Bill Colvin Seal" on the back and the sponsor's name on the front. Also, each league member will receive a card which will allow him to attend the Canon City High School basketball and wrestling matches this year.

STILL EXPRESSIVE COACHES — Although new rules prohibit basketball coaches from leaving the bench and otherwise dampen their objections to the decisions of referees, coaches of the Air Force Academy still manage to pantomime their disgust. During the AFA-Missouri game one call saw Head Coach Bob Spear rear back in amused disgust while Asst. Coach Buzz Gireillo appears to hide to cover up his astonishment. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Little Box in the Corner Threatens to Swamp Sports

B JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Package television, the little miracle of the electronic age that sometimes gushes gold, is about to engulf baseball.

In January 1964, Columbia Broadcasting System agreed to pay the National Football League $28,200,000 to telecast every regular season NFL game for the next two years.

Shortly thereafter, the National Broadcasting Company gave the American Football League $36 million for the rights to telecast every AFL game for the next five years.

Now along comes Organized Baseball, with an envious glance at pro football, also seeking a piece of the rich pie.

A committee, headed by owner John Fetzer of the Detroit Tigers, has been negotiating with the American Broadcasting Company for a television Game-of-the-Week spectacular during the 1965 season.

ABC is said to be ready to pay $5 million for the package which would consist of 25 Saturday afternoon games to be televised coast to coast.

The revenue would be divided equally among all clubs in the major leagues with the exception of the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies whose television commitments extend through 1965.

There still are some complications that have to be settled, such as blacked out areas and conflicts with local telecasts. Should all bugs be ironed out, the Saturday special will be on a one-year basis only.

The Fetzer committee has hopes of pushing through a $20 million television package for 1966, with the idea of interesting a national network in televising a Monday night Game-of-the-Week.

Other members on the four-man committee include Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Bob Reynolds of the Los Angeles Angels and Roy Hofheinz of the Houston Astros.

Fearsome Boog Rules American Sluggers

BOSTON (UPI)—John (Boog) Powell of the Baltimore Orioles turned out in 1964 to be every bit as fearsome a fellow as he looks.

American League pitchers knew it all along but it became obvious to everyone else Friday with the release of official A.L. statistics which disclosed that the 24-year-old, 235-pound native of Lakeland, Fla., is the new slugging champion of the league.

Topping such better known (and paid) sluggers as Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees and Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins, Powell won the A.L.'s slugging title with a .606 percentage. Slugging percentages are computed by dividing a player's total number of appearances at the plate into his total bases.

The Yankees Mantle ranked second with a .591 percentage followed by Tony Oliva of the Twins at .557, Bob Allison of the Twins at .553, Killebrew at .548 and Brooks Robinson of the Orioles at .521.

First baseman Norm Siebern of the Orioles led the circuit with 106 bases on balls and Nelson Mathews of the Kansas City Athletics led in strikeouts with 143.

With Oliva, Killebrew and Allison showing the way, the Twins won the team slugging percentage over the Boston Red Sox, .427 to .416. They were followed by the Detroit Tigers at .395, the Yankees and Orioles at .387 each, the Cleveland Indians at .380, the Athletics at .379, the Chicago White Sox at .353, the Washington Senators at .348 and the Los Angeles Angels at .344.

The figures compiled by the Howe News Bureau of Chicago also revealed that American League clubs and players equalled or broke a total of 95 major league and league records during the 1964 season.

Among these were 41 years with 100 or more homers by the Yankees, 29 pennants won by the Yankees, 220 homers allowed by Kansas City pitchers, a .985 fielding average by the Orioles, Oliva's 217 hits and 374 total bases for a rookie and John Wyatt's new major league mark of appearing in 81 games as a pitcher.

Swimmer To Start Workouts

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (AP) — Don Schollander will plunge into a pool Sunday for his first swim in two months. It may be his only workout before swimming in a meet in Marseilles, France, Dec. 19.

America's 18-year-old Olympic swimming sensation has been so involved in congratulatory appearances since his return from the Olympics that he has completely dropped training for the first time in years.

In Marseilles he will be facing the great French swimmer, Alan Gottvales, in the 100 meters.

"And if Don gets beat, that will be OK," said Don's mother, Mrs. Wendell Schollander.

"Still, for 100 meters it may be that Don can do it. He has a lot of years of training under his belt."

Mrs. Schollander was spokesman for her son because the trip to France came up suddenly while Don was in Chicago at a Boy Scout dinner.

He will be back at work on his job as a sales clerk in a Portland department store Saturday, his mother said. And he wants to work Monday, too. That may leave Sunday as the only chance for a swimming workout before he packs Tuesday and leaves for New York and Marseilles Wednesday.

Brighton Nips Canon City

BRIGHTON — Despite a 10-point deficit at halftime, the Brighton basketballers stormed ahead in the final two minutes of play to eke out a 55-53 decision over visiting Canon City here Friday night.

The Brighton cagers were down 34-14 at intermission time and the local squad was behind 43-39 going into the final period when they managed to deadlock the score with two minutes left in the game. With two seconds remaining on the clock, the Brighton squad sank the winning basket.

Drew Creek hit for 36 points for Canon City.

Penn State Edges by Kansas

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Bob Weiss hit a shot from under the basket with 42 seconds left and gave Penn State a 50-48 victory over Kansas Friday night in the first game of the Sunflower basketball doubleheader.

Kansas State played Loyola of Chicago in the second game.

Kansas' Al Lopes missed a side jump shot with seven seconds left after the Jayhawks stalled for an easy shot to tie the score.

Kansas went the last 10 minutes without a field goal as the Penn State front line in a zone defense put pressure on the Kansas guards, keeping the ball away from the basket.

The Jayhawkers had led until Weiss put Penn State ahead 46-44 on a lay-up with five minutes to go. At the three-minute mark Penn State started control tactics, trying only for sure shots. K. U. picked up free throws and tied the count at 48-all with 1:29 left. Then Weiss hit his winning basket.

Walt Wesley, 6 - foot - 11, of Kansas hit 23 points to lead the scoring. Carver Clinton topped Penn State with 16.

Penn State has a 2-1 record and Kansas 2-2.

Saturday night the teams will move to Lawrence where Penn State will play Kansas State at 7:30 p.m., and Loyola will meet Kansas.

Hat Trick In Minute Helps MSU

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) Scoring possibly the rarest "hat trick" in hockey history, Michigan State forward Mike Jacobson fired in three goals in one minute in the first period in MSU's 9-2 victory over Wisconsin Friday night.

Jacobson, a sophomore, scored the rare three goals in one turn on the ice, contributing to a 6-0 first-period lead over Wisconsin.

The Wolverines followed up with a goal in the second period and two in the third.

Wisconsin's Jim Petruzates and Ron Leszczynski scored the Badgers' two counters near the end of the game.

Michigan State is 5-1. Wisconsin is 4-1.

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The manager of heavyweight contender Ernie Terrell said Friday a World Boxing Association official has told him it would recognize a bout between Terrell and Eddie Machen for the world championship.

"I've received offers from Chicago, Houston, Miami and San Francisco for a Terrell-Machen fight," said Julie Isaacson who maanges Terrell, rated the No. 1 heavyweight by the WBA.

The WBA declared the title vacant after stripping Cassius Clay of recognition because Clay signed for a return bout with ex-champion Sonny Liston.

"Tony Maceroni of the WBA called me today and told me the WBA would recognize a Terrell-Machen fight for the title and wants it made before Jan. 29," said Isaacson.

Terrell was to have fought Cleveland Williams of Houston for the WBA's heavyweight title but that fight was put off when Williams was shot recently in a scuffle with police. Williams is recovering in a hospital.

"I told promoters Irving Schoenwald of Chicago, Chris Dundee of Miami, and Earl Gilliam of Houston to get Machen signed to a binding contract and then they can see me," said Isaacson. "I've got the No. 1 heavyweight.

"Benny Ford of San Francisco also sent an offer for the fight but he offered 20 per cent of nothing. I prefer the others. Schoenwald offered 27½ per cent of the gate to each fighter, guarantees, expenses and the same percentages of any closed television.

"Gilliam offered Terrell a $25,000 guarantee and Machen $15,000 plus percentages of closed television. Dundee made a tentative offer, too.

"Dundee and Ford want the fight hooked up as a closed circuit doubleheader with the Floyd Patterson-George Chuvalo fight at Madison Square Garden Jan. 29 but I told them that's positively out.

"I want nothing to do with Patterson. He never gave Terrell a chance at the title when he was champion. He just handpicked his opponents, including that amateur, Pete Rademacher, for a title fight. And Rademacher decked him. Patterson never will get a chance at the title if Terrell wins it. Chuvalo is okay. He said he'd fight Terrell if he beats Patterson. So we'll fight him. But Patterson definitely no."

The WBA, in its ratings released this week, ranked Patterson No. 2 behind Terrell. Chuvalo, of Toronto, was ranked third and Machen, now of Los Angeles, fourth.

McCovey in Hospital For Check of Foot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie McCovey, slugging outfielder-first baseman of the San Francisco Giants, will undergo a checkup Monday in New York of a foot ailment that bothered him last season.

Club spokesmen said McCovey's left foot will be checked by Dr. Harrison McLaughlin at the Harkness Pavilion Hospital. The foot has failed to respond to medication.

Redskin Coach Gets Two-Year Pact, Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins Coach Bill McPeak received a new two-year contract and a sizable pay raise Friday.

"I thought it was an extremely fair one," McPeak said. "I feel very good about it."

McPeak said he didn't know what the future held until owners of the National Football League club summoned him to their offices.

There had been speculation the Redskins' coach might be on the way out unless he could produce a victory Sunday in the windup game against Western Conference champion Baltimore.

The Redskins, with six victories and seven losses, have posted their best record in nine years. All their victories have come in the past nine games, and they are tied for third in the Eastern Conference.

Redskins' owners huddled about the coaching situation, decided unanimously to rehire McPeak and said he would get "a substantial increased salary" but gave no figure.

McPeak said he is particularly happy that the contract will cover two seasons. He's been on a year-to-year basis during his four years as head coach.

Redskins' Vice President C. Leo DeOrsey said the owners wanted McPeak to have a two-year contract so he would feel secure in the post.

Announcing the action, the Redskins said:

"The owners have taken this step because they have been completely satisfied with the improvements made under the guidance of Bill."

DeOrsey said the owners are pleased also at the new talent McPeak has developed, particularly rookie of the year halfback Charlie Taylor and defensive back Paul Krause.

Ailing Redskins' President George Preston Marshall, in a wheelchair, was at the club offices for the announcement.

McPeak came to the Redskins in 1959 as backfield coach. He took over as head coach from Mike Nixon one week short of four years ago.

All told, McPeak has been in the league 17 years, also having been a coach and a player with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

McPeak said he is delighted with the Redskins' strong finish after their early losing streak. "I'd like to replay those first four games," he said.

He said the Redskins now are "a good, solid football team" and one that will be in contention for the Eastern title next season.

Razorbacks Get Praise From Broyles as Best

DALLAS (AP) — Frank Broyles says he has his greatest team at Arkansas this year but he isn't sure it can beat Nebraska, a one-time loser, in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

It was that lone loss that made Arkansas' task much more difficult, Broyles, here for the winter meeting of the Southwest Conference, declared in an interview with the press.

"Nebraska is big, strong and tough and its multiple offense makes it something to worry about," said Broyles. "Added to this is the fact that the boys will have more incentive to win because they lost their last game of the season — to Oklahoma. They'll be trying to make up for it."

Actually, said Broyles, Nebraska shouldn't have lost the game, and "I sure wish it hadn't."

"Nebraska played cautiously in the last part of the game when it had a lead. It wanted to finish the season undefeated as we did. But Oklahoma got the ball and didn't make a mistake in 24 plays that ate up a lot of the time. So it scored and beat Nebraska. Now they will be trying to take out their disappointment on us."

But Broyles didn't think Nebraska would be the favorite. "We will be the favorites but the way it looks to me it's a toss up — an even proposition."

Broyles was enthusiastically proud of his team that went through 10 straight games without defeat and was quick to label it his finest team yet and the finest Arkansas ever had.

"It is the first team I ever had that improved every week for 10 straight weeks and never had a bad practice session," he said. "The boys were responsible for it more than anybody. They won the first three games of the season and realized they were only doing what the 1963 team had done.

"But the 1963 team started losing in the fourth game and had a poor season. My boys decided they wanted to do better than that so they just made up their minds they would win more. When they managed to beat Texas they got confidence that they could take them all."

Broyles will not start hard training for the Cotton Bowl until after Christmas.

"I talked to Bud Wilkinson and others who have had bowl teams and found it's not good practice to work too long before the game," said Broyles. "You get ready too quickly and lose your momentum and may grow stale. So we'll go to Houston Dec. 27 for our first real practice."

Mets Can't Spend $500,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Swollen with their success in acquiring a fading super-star in Warren Spahn, the New York Mets have been tossing half million dollar offers around like confetti for some of the top names of baseball. But without any success, says M. Donald Grant, chairman of the Mets' board.

The Mets, last place club in the National League standings but high on the list in attendance and bankroll, have waved the half million bids for Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants; Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers; Han Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves and Vada Pinson of the Cincinnati Reds.

The half-million offer for Mays is kind of low at that. Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, the Mets' multi-millionaire owner, offered $650,000 for the Giants' star nearly three years ago and was turned down by President Horace Stoneham of the Giants. Stoneham has rejected mere money offers for the super-star through the years.

The big money bids make good reading and the New York newspapers have played it up up big, mostly in tongue-in-cheek manner.

As Dick Young wrote in the Friday Daily News:

"At a late hour yesterday, Ralph Houk said the Yankees had not received a Met offer of a half million for Mickey Mantle. Not even for Phil Linz.

"Meanwhile, M. Donald Grant, somewhat frustrated, had hied away to his winter home at Hobe Sound, Fla., for a shot at the golf course. He might offer a half million for Arnold Palmer."

Chicago Mayor Considers New Stadium

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, considering a proposal for a multi-million dollar Chicago sports stadium, envisioned Friday two University of Illinois members in the Big Ten.

The new stadium, Mayor Daley said at a news conference, would be needed if the new Chicago branch of the University of Illinois is to have a place for its football team to play.

"Perhaps they (the Chicago Illini) will become one of the future great Big Ten teams—and even the champions," he commented, neglecting to consider that would make it the Big Eleven.

The Fighting Illini at Champaign, Ill., longtime Big Ten member, won the conference title in 1963.

Earlier this week, a study was presented to the mayor recommending a new sports palace in which the city's professional baseball and football teams presumably would play.

Daley declined comment on public statements by Chicago White Sox owner Arthur C. Allyn and Chicago Cubs' owner Phil Wrigley, who own their baseball arenas, questioning the advisability of such a new stadium.

The Yankees won five straight pennants under Casey Stengel — 1949-1954. They made it five in a row again this year but it took three managers to do it — Stengel in 1960, Ralph Houk in 1961-62-63 and Yogi Berra this year.

Braves Cut Wisconsin Directors

CHICAGO (AP) — Milwaukee Braves' stockholders trimmed the club's board of directors from 22 to 15 members Friday, lopping off seven Wisconsin directors, including the six who voted against moving the team to Atlanta.

Board Chairman William Bartholomay told stockholders at the corporation's annual meeting that he believed six of the Wisconsin directors did not desire to stand for election.

And he implied that the seventh, Vince Lombardi, coach of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, wasn't contacted because it might have embarrassed him.

After the action to reduce the board, stockholders re-elected the slate of directors headed by Bartholomay and Executive Vice President Thomas A. Reynolds Jr.

The Braves are scheduled to move to Atlanta in 1966, but the National League has ordered them to play in Milwaukee next year.

Bartholomay said a tentative audit of the club's books for the 1964 season indicated losses "in excess of $500,000 for internal revenue purposes." In 1963, the Braves reported a net loss of $43,000, but club Secretary Ralph Delforge said that the loss for Federal income tax purposes was about $800,000.

The Braves drew slightly more than 900,000 in 1963. Bartholomay said he felt the club's break-even point was about 1,250,000.

A stockholder asked if there was any remaining chance that the Braves would be sold to Milwaukee interests.

"I would say no," replied Bartholomay. "With Mr. Reynolds and our associates, we own 86 per cent. We have no intention of selling to Milwaukee people or anyone else."

As for a possible boycott of the Braves by Milwaukee fans in 1964, Bartholomay commented, "we are going to try to put the best club on the field we can. We hope the ball club will offset any other negative factors."

The seven Wisconsin directors dropped from the board were:

Lombardi; Edmund B. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee industrialist; Joseph W. Simpson, Jr., and John A. Puelicher, Milwaukee bankers; Carlton P. Wilson, Milwaukee stock broker; Daniel Parker, Janesville maufacturer and Duane F. Bowman, dairy president, Madison.

Remaining on the board are 10 men from the Chicago area, plus John McHale, Elm Grove, Wis., president of the Braves; Charles H. Price II, Kansas City candy company executive; Ruston W. Skakel, New York industrialist; Warren Hellman, New York investment banker and former Braves' owner, Lou Perini, who brought the club from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953.

The Chicago area directors include Chairman Bartholomay Reynolds; Delbert Coleman; H. Mitchell Harper, Jr.; John J Louis, Jr.; Charles W. Olson III; Potter Palmer; Daniel Searle; Charles Smith and John W. Sullivan.

Big Ten Approves NCAA Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten formally approved Friday a declaration of policy ruling any conference athlete ineligible if he participates in an event not sanctioned by one of the NCAA-sponsored sports federations.

The joint meeting of faculty representatives and athletic directors gave automatic approval to the policy originally proposed at the conference spring meeting in May but which required review by the individual member schools.

Thus the Big Ten became a major leader in the NCAA's campaign to conduct its own meets in opposition to the rival Amateur Athletic Union after the first of the year.

The federation movement includes track, gymnastics, basketball and baseball in which sports the AAU has declined to share sponsorship of open meets.

Commissioner Bill Reed reiterated the Big Ten's stand that "we believe that the fundamental objectives of amateur athletic control has not been adequately served by the AAU."

John (Honey) Russell, who gained his fame in basketball, has signed a new scouting contract with the Milwaukee Braves. It runs through 1966.

Will Old Man Save Cardinals From Ruin? Tune in Sunday and See

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Y.A. Tittle comes off the bench Saturday and leads the last-place New York Giants against the heavily favored Cleveland Browns in a National Football League game that has all the earmarks of a Hollywood movie script.

The game will be played before a sellout crowd of 63,000 at Yankee Stadium and televised (CBS) to the rest of the country, excluding the blacked-out New York area. Kickoff is at 2:05 p.m.

Here is the setting for the late-season drama:

The Browns, with a 9-3-1 record, must win the game to be assured of the NFL's Eastern Conference title. A loss, coupled with a St. Louis victory over Philadelphia Sunday, would throw the title to the Cardinals, now 8-3-2.

The Giants, 2-9-2, need an upset victory to salvage some crumbs from their most disastrous season in history.

The Browns, with a powerful offense built around the strong running of Jimmy Brown, are 10-point favorites.

Tittle is the Giants' once feared Old Bald Eagle, now 38, ending his 17th year as a pro and benched the last two games in favor of rookie quarterback Gary Wood, formerly of Cornell.

In a sentimental move, New York Coach Allie Sherman named Tittle, instead of Wood, to start the game against the Browns. It will be the 176th game for Tittle, a National League record.

The bald-pated old-timer until this season was one of the most effective quarterbacks in the NFL, having led the Giants to three consecutive divisional titles.

In 1962 and 1963, Tittle threw a total of 69 touchdown passes. This year, plagued by injury and advancing age, he has connected for nine.

"Frankly, we're afraid of Tittle," said Blanton Collier, the Browns' coach. "He is an old pro, and he's always been great against the Browns."

In an earlier game with Cleveland this season, Tittle hit for 19 of 31 passes for 177 yards although the Giants lost 42-20.

Tittle, who has intimated that this may be his last professional game, is fired up for the occasion, and his teammates have caught some of his enthusiasm.

"I welcome the chance — I wanted to play," Tittle said.

"He's still a great quarterback," said Wood, the understudy who became the regular.

The Giants, hard-hit by injuries, will have a predominantly rookie backfield to go with Tittle — Ernie Wheelwright at full and Steve Thurlow and Homer Jones at halfback. Mickey Walker replaces the injured Greg Larson at center.

Besides the St. Louis-Philadelphia game, other Sunday offerings in the NFL have Green Bay at Los Angeles, Minnesota at Chicago, San Francisco at Detroit, Washington at Baltimore and Pittsburgh at Dallas.

In the American League, New York is at Houston, Kansas City at San Diego and Buffalo at Denver. Oakland and Boston are idle.

Ivy Schools Reject NCAA Ban on Unsanctioned Meets

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight Ivy League colleges, led by Yale, declared their independence of control of competition by the U.S. Track and Field Federation and National Collegiate Athletic Association Friday after their fellow members of the Eastern College Athletic Association made a bid to end the battle between the USTFF and the Amateur Athletic Union.

Declaring that Yale could not yield control of its athletes to an outside organization, DeLaney Kiphuth, Yale athletic director, said a Yale team would compete Friday night in an AAU development meet in New York despite an NCAA directive that college athletes should not be allowed to compete in meets not sanctioned by the USTFF

This declaration came just after the annual ECAC convention had passed resolution called upon the USTFF, the AAU and other organizations to end the scrap by forming a coalition which would take some power from each group.

"Yale does not intend to have its athletes used as weapons in this fight. We will enter the Metropolitan AAU meet at the risk of whatever happens as a result," Kiphuth said.

Jerry Ford of Pennsylvania, speaking for the other Ivy League administrators, said they were in agreement with this principle.

One other college with a team in the meet, Iona, said it would withdraw, but others were undecided.

The Ivy League action apparently was the first defiance of a recent memorandum from the NCAA directing colleges to refrain from entering meets which had not been sanctioned by the USTFF.

The NCAA position has been that the federations have the right to sanction all meets in which college athletes appear. The AAU claims the sole right to sanction open competition.

The coalition proposed by the ECAC would eliminate the touchy problem of dual sanctions. The AAU would retain the right to sanction or approve international events. Open events would be sanctioned by the coalition, in which the AAU and the USTFF would have equal voting strength. Closed events in any category would not require specific sanction or approval.

If the parties involved agree to negotiate on such a basis, the ECAC resolution suggests that the truce in effect from January, 1963, through the Tokyo Olympics should be revived until they reach an agreement.

If they fail to reach an agreement by Feb. 15, 1965, they then should follow the original MacArthur plan by asking the President of the United States to call a general athletic congress to devise a plan for bringing the organizations together.

The ECAC plan calls for the AAU and USTFF to have 10 votes each in the coalition with a total of seven more distributed among the Armed Forces, the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, recreational organizations and church and social groups.

The resolution was passed by a 67-20 vote with 112 of the ECAC colleges represented at the meeting.

Bob Kane of Cornell, who presented the plan for the ECAC Executive Council, said it was based on a similar coalition agreement which had been reached in 1962. This was later rejected by the AAU convention because it did not recognize the AAU control of international events.

The Ivy colleges opposed the new resolution because they said it implied recognition of the power of the NCAA and USTFF to direct them to stay out of certain meets.

Another strong opponent was Everett D. Barnes, Colgate athletic director and secretary-treasurer of the NCAA. He said the colleges already were bound by a pro-federation passed at the NCAA convention in 1963. He said this resolution was contrary to one which the colleges themselves had passed.

The big question to the ECAC delegates seemed to be whether the NCAA was issuing an order or merely making a recommendation in a special memorandum Nov. 12 which said "no student-athlete should be permitted to compete "in outside competition not sanctioned by the appropriate federation.

Yale chose to regard it as a recommendation while admitting the possibility of a penalty if the NCAA took a firmer stand.

In other ECAC business, the basketball tournament committee, planning two years ahead, announced that the 1965 Holiday Festival tournament in New York would include Illinois, Colorado State, New York U., Georgetown, Villanova, Army, Niagara and Boston College and that the guest teams for 1966 will be Brigham Young and Northwestern.

For the Quaker City Festival in Philadelphia, the 1965 entries will be Brigham Young, Minnesota, St. Joseph's, Cornell, St. Bonaventure, Providence, La Salle and Temple and the 1966 invitees will be Bowling Green and Michigan State.

Orioles Announce Profit From 1964

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles baseball club announced Friday a new profit of $301,092 for 1964.

At the same time, stockholders at their annual meeting re-elected Joseph Iglehart as chairman of the board, Robert Gill as secretary and Zanvyl Krieger as treasurer.

The profit, subject to some adjustments, is higher than last year's and is second only to that of 1960 when the Orioles drew 1,187,849 paying customers. Attendance reached 1,116,215 this past season.

NFL Comeback Award Pleases Colts' Moore

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — "Man, that's nice, particularly when things looked so shaky," responded Lenny Moore to his selection as comeback player of the year in the National Football League.

"I had been out of commission for mostly two years, and when you're getting older, you wonder about your ability to come back."

The lanky legged halfback for the Baltimore Colts made it all the way back. And he did it although not entirely free of injuries whic hplagued him for two seasons and led to wide speculation that he was washed up.

The Colt management tried to trade him, and he began the season behind Tom Matte, who had replaced him last year. Not only did Moore regain the post, but he is leading the league in scoring with 18 touchdowns. Along the way he has set a league record for scoring touchdowns in most consecutive back performance of the year by 33 out of a panel of 42 voters for the Associated Press. The other votes were scattered among Ollie Matson of Philadelphia, Sonny Jurgenson of Washington, Alex Karras of Detroit and John Henry Johnson of Pittsburgh.

Moore is the second straight Colt to receive the honor. Last year it went to placekicker Jim Martin who was traded to Washington.

The same AP panel also honored two other Colts this year, voting quarterback John Unitas the most valuable player and Don Shula the best coach.

Moore scored 15 of his touchdowns on runs from scrimmage, and that returned the spotlight to an old debate. When Moore broke into the NFL in 1965, he skyrocketed to fame primarily as a pass receiver out on the flank.

Coach Weeb Ewbank moved him inside, and there was criticism. When Don Shula took over as coach last year he stuck with the decision.

"Other people made the issue," says Moore. "I agreed with the decision since it was for the over-all good and gave us more balance. It wasn't a new position as some people said. I played it at Penn State and also moved in from the flank on many plays here."

Moore does say it isn't as pleasant.

"On the outside, you end up running against guys your own size," he said. "On the inside, you're constantly dealing with 250 and 275 pounders."

Although he says "it's great to be healthy again in this league," Moore hasn't been spared this season. He's played five games with a badly sprained right hand and a couple with a swollen elbow.

He's "really looking forward to the championship game. Even though I've been in it before, it's still the greatest thrill. I may be a little more relaxed about it, that's all."

Brothers on Same Side Finally in Bowl Game

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Two brothers who played against each other this season will join forces in the Blue-Gray football game.

End Whit Canale of Tennessee was added to the South roster Friday for the Dec. 26 all-star game. Justin Canale, a guard for Mississippi State, already was on the rebel roster.

Also joining the southerners was an All-Atlantic Goast Conference tackle, Glenn Sasser of North Carolina State.

Little School Post-Season Games Start

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Small college football teams with impressive won-lost records and national rankings show off Saturday in the first big flurry of post-season bowl activity.

The Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., matches Massachusetts and East Carolina, the seventh and eighth-ranked teams respectively in the small college list. Concordia, Minn., No. 6, faces Sam Houston State in the NAIA Champion Bowl at Augusta, Ga.

Massachusetts and East Carolina each has an 8-1-0 records. Concordia goes into the NAIA games with a perfect 10-0 mark, playing a team that has lost only one of 10 starts this season.

The Junior Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif., matches Camerson State of Oklahoma with Long Beach City College, both unbeaten in nine games.

Other games are:

Pecan Bowl at Abilene, Tex., Lamar Tech, 6-2-1, vs. State College of Iowa, 8-2-0.

Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif., Sacramento State, 8-1-1, vs. Montana State, 6-4-0.

Grantland Rice Bowl at Murfreesboro, Tex., Middle Tennessee State, 6-3-1 vs. Muskingum, 8-1-0.

Dobbs Goes To Texas Western

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Bobby Dobbs, 42, former football coach of the Calgary Stampeders and Tulsa University, was named head coach at Texas Western College Friday.

Terms of the contract were not announced.

Dobbs succeeds Warren Harper, who resigned after his second straight losing season at Texas Western. The Miners were 0-8-2 this year. Calgary, of the Canadian professional league, was 12-4 this year under Dobbs, who quit at the end of the season.

Dobbs, reared in Frederick, Okla., is the younger brother of Tulsa coach Glenn Dobbs.

Bobby was a back on Tulsa's 1941 Sun Bowl team and the 1942 squad which went to the Sugar Bowl. He entered the service and was sent to West Point, after being granted two years of eligibility. He was a starter on the 1943-44 Army squads. The 1944 team won the national championship.

Dobbs coached at Tulsa from 1955-60 and had a 30-28-2 record at the Missouri Valley School. When he went to Calgary, where his teams had a 38-23-3 mark, he was succeeded by Glenn Dobbs.

From 1952-54, Bobby Dobbs was a back coach at West Point under Col. Earl (Red) Blaik.

AFL Makes Plans for Playoff Tilt

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League announced playoff plans Friday in case Buffalo and Boston end the regular season in a tie for the Eastern Division lead.

Such an eventuality is possible only if Buffalo ties both of its remaining games—with Denver Sunday and with Boston Dec. 20. Boston is idle this week.

Two ties by Buffalo would give the leaders identical records of 10-2-2.

The AFL announced that in case of a dead heat, Buffalo and Boston would meet at Buffalo in a playoff Dec. 26. The site was determined by a flip of a coin.

The championship game between San Diego, the Western champion, and the Buffalo-Boston winner then would be postponed until Jan. 3. The title game is now set for Dec. 26 in the city of the Eastern champion.

Longest Met hitting streak went 13 games. It was accomplished by bonus first baseman Ed Kranepool, 19.

NEW ATHLETIC DIRECTOR—Paul Ostyn, Twin Falls, Ida., high school athletic director, was selected to move into a similar post at the University of Idaho. Announcement was made Friday by the university board of regents. Ostyn will succeed J. Neil (Skip) Stahley.

Shantz Hangs Up Spikes After 16-Year Career

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Little Bobby Shantz retired from baseball Friday after 16 years as a pitcher in the major leagues because he felt he couldn't do the job the way he wanted to do it.

Shantz disclosed his retirement in a letter to General Manager John Quinn of the Philadelphia Phillies, who brought him here last August from the Chicago Cubs.

The Most Valuable Player in the American League in 1952 when he won 24 games for the Philadelphia Athletics, Shantz later played for Kansas City, New York and Washington in the American League and with Pittsburgh, Houston, St. Louis, Chicago and Philadelphia of the National League.

The 39-year-old Shantz, for years the smallest player in the big leagues at 5-foot-7, was one of the game's finest fielding pitchers. He won the Golden Glove award as top fielding pitcher every year since 1957.

Co-owner of a bowling alley in suburban Philadelphia with former major league catcher Joe Astroth, Shantz said he would devote full time to the business. He won 119 games and lost 99 during his major league days, finishing 2-5 last year.

Rated the best left hander in baseball in 1952, Shantz suffered a broken left wrist while batting against Washington's Walt Masterson in September of that year.

Although he remained on the scene for another 12 years, he was never the same pitcher after the injury.

Lions' Tackle Has Surgery

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions' offensive tackle J. D. Smith underwent gall bladder surgery Friday in Ford Hospital.

Doctors at the hospital said the surgery was successful, and Smith will be hospitalized from 10 days to two weeks.

Smith, 28, was out six weeks because of a calf injury and was about to return to the regular line-up when it was discovered that he had an inflamed gall bladder.

Though he will not be able to play this season, even if the Lions should qualify for the Playoff Bowl game next month, doctors said Smith would be fully recovered by the start of practice for the 1965 season.

Hornets Hoist Memphis Goalie

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League recalled goalie Bob Schampoux Friday from their Memphis farm club in the Central League. He will replace the injured Hank Bassen, Pittsburgh's regular goalie.

Maccabiah Team Has 200 Members

NEW YORK (AP) — Max J. Lovell, named again as national chairman of the United States Maccabiah Games Team, said Saturday the U.S. squad will number between 175 and 200 athletes for the Seventh World Maccabiah Games in Israel next Aug. 23-31.

Lovell, a New York attorney long connected with AAU and Olympic afffairs, served as chairman of the 135-athlete squad which represented the U.S. in the Sixth World Maccabiah Games in 1961. The team captured 63 gold medal, largest number won by any of 26 nations.

He said Jewish athletes from a record 33 nations are expected for the 1965 Games. The Maccabiah Games are open to Jewish athletes of the world.

Lovell's appointment was announced by Haskell Cohen, president of the sponsoring U.S. Committee-Sports for Israel.

IGNORING CODE's BEHIND LAWSUT, HEDDA SAYS

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood was set back on its haunches when Notre Dame brought suit in New York to halt "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" (that's the one I walked out on), The university says the picture damages its reputation — it damages Hollywood's too. This action followed the Legion of Decency's blistering attack on our industry charging it with moral bankruptcy and saying "vigorous action must be taken to preserve national decency in the face of 'moral Brinksmanship' on the part of Hollywood."

It was one scene in "The Merry Widow" that brought about the Legion. After that we had a code. Today we have no code. Directors and some producers do as they like despite warnings, and J. Lee Thompson went hog wild in "Goldfarb." We'll never learn until we have complete censorship.

Brynie Foy has picked many movie stories from magazines, and has a good one coming up called "No Greater Love," based on the true life story of James Bailey, M.D. A former college and professional football player, Bailey was in an accident four years ago which left him paralyzed from the waist down, yet last June he graduated from Ohio State University as doctor of medicine. It would be a great role for Sidney Poitier.

George Peppard will do the old Kaufman - Hart play, "Merrily We Roll Along," at Metro next June with George Seaton. I thought Peppard had left that studio, but his is an old commitment.

It's a crazy, mixed-up world. Mrs. Joe Hyams got lots of sympathy when Joe divorced her to marry Elke Sommer. So what happens? She fell for Joe's old pal, Richard Gehman who's left his wife. Gehman's been married about six times and has nine children. Ellie has three. Most of them are in Connecticut now.

For a guy who nearly died less than a year ago, Peter Sellers is doing some mighty violent comedy in "What's New, Pussycat?" as a psychotic psychiatrist. But then he's a compulsive worker. Never stops — except when his heart did eight times.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a moderate recovery with trading fairly slack early this afternoon.

Steels resumed their rebound from what analysts called an oversold condition.

Some of the airlines, chemicals, aerospace issues, office equipments, tobaccos and drugs helped lift the averages a bit.

The market was seen as still trying to find a clue as to whether the next sharp move will be a rally or decline to a lower support.

Wall Street viewed the current economic news as favorable but the pace of trading was slower than Thursday's when volume slipped below five million shares. This seemed to reflect a lack of enthusiasm as prices moved up.

Gains of fractions to a point or so outnumbered losers among key stocks. Some of the higher-priced issues made 2-or 3-point gains.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .8 at 322.8, with industrials up 1.7, rails up .2 and utilities up .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.29 at 865.43. This took it slightly above the "support" area of 864.43 reached in the big selloff of Dec. 1.

Prices were mostly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds continued to advance.

STRAIGHT TO TOP WITH SERIOUS PROBLEM

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)—Before Cindy Hartley left for college, her father instructed her to go see President Kelly Thompson whenever a serious problem arose.

Several days later, she wanted to attend a football game at Western Kentucky State College, but already had mailed home her registration receipt. It was to be used until the college could issue her an identification card.

Cindy then called on Thompson, and was invited to attend as his guest.

Java Police Stop Mob at U.S. Embassy

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian security police turned another mob away from the U.S. Information Agency building in the east Java capital of Surabaja Wednesday, but the city was reported quiet today.

Director Paul Neilson flew to Surabaja this morning to survey damage done to the American library two days ago by Communist-inspired demonstrators.

On his return, Neilson said the situation was quiet and that 13 American officials and their families living in Surabaja are safe and their residences are under police guard. The 13 are employed by the USIA, the consulate and the U.S. aid mission.

Neilson said police prevented the building from further damage from an estimated 4,000 demonstrators.

A Communist-dominated postal labor union at the Jakarta post office today refused to handle USIA mail.

The same union boycotted the mail a month ago until the U.S. Embassy asked the government to intervene.

An embassy spokesman said at least two companies of Surabaja police were guarding the American consulate, the USIA facilities and the residence of four U.S. officials.

In Washington, the State Department said it took an "exceedingly serious" view of the Indonesian attitude toward Jones' visit. The department said it was asking the Indonesian government to give assurances of full protection for Jones on official travels.

Mariner 4 to Pass Within 5,400 Miles of Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 4 will pass within 5,400 miles of Mars next July 14, Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists said today after studying the spacecraft's course after a direction-changing maneuver Dec. 5.

Without the maneuver, Mariner 4 would have missed Mars by 151,000 miles — too far for the camera-carrying vehicle to take good pictures.

At a news conference today scientists at the laboratory, which built and is guiding Mariner 4 on its 325-million-mile curving flight through space, said accuracy of the course change will allow the spacecraft to perform an important scientific experiment.

Mariner 4 now will fly behind Mars instead of in front of it, which means radio signals from the spacecraft will travel through the Martian atmosphere en route to earth.

Changes in the signal due to the atmosphere are expected to yield new information on density of the Martian atmosphere and thus provide a clue as to whether the mysterious planet could support any form of life.

On its new course, Mariner 4 will fly past earth's neighbor from above the Martian equator on the leading edge to below the equator on the trailing edge.

Mariner 4 carries cameras designed to televise 22 pictures as it flies past.

22 States Allocated Sugar Beet Acreages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department allocated sugar beet acreages to 22 states from the national acreage limitation of 1,375,000 acres for the 1965 crop.

This will be the first crop in several years to be grown under acreage limitations. The national acreage limitation calls for a reduction of about 11 per cent nationally in established areas from last year's acreage.

The department allocated 1,255,185 acres in established areas in 21 states and then allocated 118,815 acres from the national reserve to nine states to meet previous commitments. Additionally, 1,000 acres were held in reserve to correct errors and meet other contingencies.

Established area allocations (in acres) included:

Colorado 176,101; Montana 63,173 and Wyoming 57,159.

Pacific Storm Rolls Over Colorado

A Pacific Northwest storm front rolled over Colorado late Wednesday and early Thursday, but dropped only light snow, mostly in the mountains, and lowered temperatures just slightly.

Light snow was reported at Colorado Springs, Craig, Eagle, Fraser, and Grand Junction. Alamosa's 18-below was the warmest 24-hour minimum that Colorado town has reported this week.

The Colorado State Patrol said Loveland, Berthoud, Monarch, Rabbit Ears and Red Mountain passes all were snow-packed or icy in spots, as were roads and highways south of Denver, in the Limon, Grand Junction, Blue Mesa, Gunnison Valley, Glenwood Springs, Springs, Hot Sulphur Springs and Alamosa areas, and on Monument Hill.

Forecasters said Colorado would be partly cloudy through Friday with scattered snow flurries in the mountains.

Hearings Ended On Braceros By Labor Dept.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Department of Labor finally concluded its hearings on farm labor problems this week—and denied that Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz already had made up his mind in the case.

One-day sessions of the hearings were held in Washington, Miami and Dallas, but the stormy San Francisco phase was extended two extra days. They were designed to consider criteria by which the department could certify a lack of available farm labor in this country.

However, deputy associate counsel Albert D. Misler described as "completely, totally and utterly without any foundation" a published report that Wirtz already has made up his mind in favor of importation of Mexican workers after the Bracero Act expires Dec. 31.

The act, Public Law 78, has permitted entry of Mexicans and other foreign workers during harvest season for the past 13 years. Growers advocated Labor Department certification of the lack of workers to permit importation under Public Law 414.

The growers pointed out that agriculture is California's largest business and claimed crops will "rot in the fields" without Mexican workers.

But they met strong opposition from labor officials, who said plenty of domestic workers would be available if growers would pay them enough.

CRACKDOWN ON LITTERBUGS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Litter bugs in a growing number of states are facing a new and persuasive punishment.

Judges, losing patience with the purveyors of trash, are sentencing offenders to cleanup stints along state highways in lieu of fines and terms in the jail house, according to Keep America Beautiful, the national organization dedicated to elimination of littering through public education. Highway "cleanup sentences" have been levied by judges in New Jersey, California, Missouri, South Dakota, Maryland and Michigan.

Farmyard Sow Is Described in Election Case

FORT COLLINS (AP) — The farm yard sow came in for attention today when Dist. Judge Dale E. Shannon ruled a provision of the 1963 Colorado election code unconstitutional.

The provision required county clerks to compile a list of registered voters who did not cast ballots in the 1962 general election and submit these to the county chairmen of major political parties 30 days prior to the September primary election this year. The provision was to be effective for only one year.

The judge ruled in favor of Laramier County Clerk James P. Thompson, who did not make the list. Squire Stevens, Democratic county chairman, brought suit for an order to force compliance.

After arguments last Monday, Judge Shannon noted four or five political parties appeared on the 1962 ballot and said the statute would require expenditure of public money for private purposes.

His opinion today was this:

"If a nursing sow allows the two largest of her litter access to her lunch counter while denying lunch to the remainder of her litter, is she guilty of favoritism or special privilege? Or, is she doing the motherly thing in simply raising the two larger of her litter to become pigs? If to pose the questions answers them, then, is there any sensible difference between such a nursing sow and the use of public funds, sometimes referred to by our farmer friend as the 'public teat,' to nurse the two major political parties while the remainder of the political litter go unfed?"

Appointment of State Solon Poses Problem

DENVER (AP)—The appointment of Rep. John Orcutt, R-Holyoke, to a vacant seat in the State Senate posed some legal problems for state officials today.

Orcutt was named by a GOP vacancy committee to the spot left when Sen. Earl Wolvington, R-Sterling, was elected Nov. 3 to the District Court.

Officials pointed out that Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar said in an opinion Dec. 15, 1954 he believed "the constitution prohibits the appointment, during the time for which he was elected of a state representative to fill a State Senate vacancy."

Orcutt's term as representative doesn't expire until 10 a.m. Jan. 6. Some legislative leaders said his appointment to the Senate may have to be made again after that date, then a successor to Orcutt in the House could be named.

Dov's mother, Barbara, wept. She had been saving, little by little, for the time when Dov's father could no longer work.
"Barbara, you and Shep will have to watch the sheep until we return," Dov's father said. "A neighbor boy will help you. We shall be back as soon as we can."
That night Barbara packed a lunch and very early the next day Dov and his father started for Bethlehem. It was still dark, and the stars looked strange.

How Children Fail

by JOHN HOLT

Copywright 1964 Pitman Publishing Co.
(Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

How is it possible for children of only ten to have such strongly developed concepts of themselves, and these unfavorable almost to the point of self-contempt and self-hatred? We expect this of older children; but that it should have gone so far, so soon . . .

Perhaps they are thrown too early, and too much, into a crowded society of other children, where they have to think, not about the world, but about their position in it.

Is it possible that our modern way of teaching, all gentleness, persuasiveness and human contact tends to make children get themselves and their work all mixed up? The first school I went to was very different from this. Even when I was five, the teachers there never called me anything but Holt. Of me, as a person, they seemed to take little notice. I didn't know whether they liked me or not; it never occured to me to wonder. My work was what concerned them. If it was good, it was commended; if bad, it was criticized.

There may be more than we think in this old-fashioned way of dealing with children. Maybe it was easier for children to grow up in a world in which, when the impinged on the world of adults, they were treated firmly, impersonally and ceremoniously, but were otherwise left alone.

There was a word on one of my pupil's report card that he could not understand; he was almost in tears over it. Why should he have assumed that it was bad? Of course, we adults tend to see all small specific failures, of our own or of children, as a proof of general failure, incompetence, worthlessness. Is it a cultural matter? Are there no people in the world for whom it is not a disgrace to do something badly?

Note the danger of using a child's concept of himself to get him to do good work. We say, "You are the kind of sensible, smart, good, etc., etc., boy or girl who can easily do this problem, if you try." But if the work fails, so does the concept. If he can't do the problem, no matter how hard he tries, then, clearly, he is not sensible, smart or good.

If children worry so much about failure, might it not be because they rate success too highly and depend on it too much? May there not be altogether too much praise for good work in the lower grades? If, when Johnny does good work, we make him feel "good," may we not, without intending it, be making him feel "bad" when he does bad work?

Do children really need so much praise? When a child after a long struggle, finally does the cube puzzle, does he need to be told that he has done well? Doesn't he know, without being told, that he has accomplished something? In fact, when we praise him, are we not perhaps horning in on his accomplishment, stealing a little of his glory, edging our way into the limelight, praising ourselves for having helped to turn out such a smart child? Is not most adult praise of children a kind of self-praise?

I think of a marvelous composition that one boy wrote about the dining room in his house. I find now, to my horror, that in thinking with satisfaction about that composition, I am really congratulating myself for my part in it. What a clever boy this is and what a clever man am I for helping to make him so

Missing Constrictor Is Finally Found

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Christine Amluxen reports sadly that she's found her missing boa constrictor.

The 18-year-old student at Port Huron Junior College reported her pet 4-foot boa constrictor missing two weeks ago. She had been keeping it in her apartment.

The manager of the apartment building asked Miss Amluxen to move.

She moved out, and, although she didn't realize it, her snake went with her. She found it dead Thursday, coiled around the tubes of her record player.

Two Kennedy Friends to Quit White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kenneth O'Donnell and David F. Powers, who were two of the late President John F. Kennedy's closest friends, are expected to quit their White House jobs in the near future.

O'Donnell, listed as presidential appointments secretary, plans to leave government service for private employment. Powers, White House receptionist, will join the staff of the Kennedy library.

Another key holdover from the Kennedy administration, Lawrence F. O'Brien, is being urged by President Johnson to remain as special assistant for congressional liaison. O'Brien has said nothing publicly about his future plans.

O'Donnell, recovering from minor surgery performed recently at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital, has not yet discussed his future plans with Johnson. Although the President may ask him to stay on the White House payroll, the 40-year-old onetime captain of the Harvard football team seems determined to leave.

Since Kennedy's assassination, O'Donnell has devoted most of his time to political matters, working out of the Democratic National Committee during the presidential election campaign.

Powers, whose close association with Kennedy began in 1946, will help supervise the collection of documents and papers for the Kennedy library. Until the library building is erected, near the Harvard campus at Cambridge, Mass., Powers will make his headquarters at the National Archives here.

Several Kennedy aides seem almost certain to remain on Johnson's staff. These include McGeorge Bundy, special assistant for national security affairs, and special counsel Meyer Feldman.

Other holdovers include associate special counsel Lee White, assistant press secretary Malcolm Kilduff and the four members of O'Brien's congressional liaison staff.

HOUSE WAS NEVER A HOME

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A house that never served as a home since it was built in 1938 will soon be dismantled.

The two-story home is a pioneering prefabricated structure built by the U.S. Forest Products Laboratory adjacent to the research center's property here. Plywood covers were glued to a lumber framework, a evolutionary process 27 years ago. The concept has been widely adopted by the prefabricated home industry for assembly line production of panelized house parts.

Laboratory staff members have used the house as an office for much of its existence.

The house, described as in excellent condition, will be dismantled to make room for a $4 million addition to the aboramillion addition to the laboratory.

Tax Increase For School Support Hinted

By GORDONG G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Gov. John A. Love hinted today in a speech at a statewide conference on education that he might ask a tax increase for additional support of public schools and colleges.

The governor, in the keynote speech of a two-day meeting which he called, discussed the needs of schools and the increasing expense of them.

"The percentage of our state monies already devoted to this purpose (education), and the forecasts of additional needs, make the problem of financing the most important in our overall state financial picture, and also of tremendous importance in our federal system," Love said.

"There are no magic wands which can be waved. As this vital service requires more dollars, tax-paying citizens will pay for it."

At another point he said the persons interested in education must "concern ourselves with the ability of the economy to sustain the burden."

"As I have mentioned before," Love said, "education in its various forms now represents a very large percentage of our overall government expense. It is bound to become incrasingly large."

At the same time the governor declared that development of education is vital and represents "a real investment in the future and in economic growth."

Serving as moderator of the two-day meeting is Chancellor Chester M. Alter of the University of Denver. Banquet speaker Saturday evening will be Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

Love, in his keynote, said the first state aid to education was $7,041 approved by the Legislature in 1877, the year after Colorado became a state. He contrasted this to apprpriations of more than $56 million for schools this year, adding this represents only about a quarter of the cost.

Love said that Colorado ranks second among all the 50 states in the level of education achieved by its citizens and ranks seventh in per capita expenditures of state and local government for education. Despite this, he said, "Colorado has arrived at a time for far reaching and basic public policy decisions."

Noting that quality of education cannot be related solely to the number of dollars spent, Love outlined seven points which he said must be considered.

They were:

1. Public education is increasingly expensive due in part to increased numbers of children entering schools and an increased percentage of those receiving higher education.
2. The first obligation of the schools is to serve the needs of the individual but there is no consensus at what level this ends.
3. There is a responsibility of schools to meet the needs of the community.
4. It is imperative that the people retain the authority for finally determining educational policy.
5. Costs of education must be studied and new techniques considered including educational television, data processing and new concepts in libraries.
6. Development of the schools can be used to stimulate the economy and build Colorado into a center of research and idea-based industries.
7. Priorities must be assigned to the problems of education because not every program can be developed at one time.

Denver Packer Charged With Violating Act

DENVER (UPI)— Grande Packers Inc., a Denver meat packing firm, has been charged with violating the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced.

The complaint alleges the firm engaged in unfair and deceptive practices in purchasing livestock.

Specifically the complaint alleged that during August and September the firm failed to pay the full purchase price of $64,301 for 253 head of cattle, has failed to pay for the livestock since and has issued $67,555 in "insufficient funds" checks in payment for 292 head of purchased livestock.

The complaint was issued by the Packers and Stockyards Division of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

A USDA judicial officer will conduct a hearing to determine whether the evidence supports the charges.

The Packers and Stockyards Act regulates firms engaged in interstate livestock and poultry marketing and meat packing.

Dr. King to Appeal To Lyndon Johnson

OSLO, Norway (AP) — "I will appeal directly to the President about this tragic miscarriage of justice," Nobel Peace Prize-winner Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said today when asked about the release Thursday of 19 men arrested in connection with the murder of three young civil rights workers.

"I fear that the situation in Mississippi has deteriorated so much," the civil rights leader said, "that I can see no alternative but to launch an economic boycott against the State of Mississippi."

King told newsmen the boycott should be launched by "all men of good will" in the United States and involve all products from the State of Mississippi.

He said he will send a telegram to President Johnson when he returns to the United States.

SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: Tweedleknees gives the Prince, the turtle, and the Snowman magic shoes which will carry them to Fairyland in time for the Music Festival.

CHAPTER EIGHT
WHOMP'S CHANCE

George and the Snowman and the Prince hurried to the forest on the east side of Santa Land. It was a long walk, but Patrick Tweedleknees had warned them not to put on the magic shoes until they reached the forest.

The Snowman carried his new broom over one shoulder and his fine shoes slung over the other. His tall silk hat was cocked over his new emerald eye.

"Suppose it is hot in Fairyland," he though anxiously. "If it is I shall melt away!"

This thought made him sad because he felt healthy and whole for the first time in his life. He didn't tell his friends what was on his mind because he was afraid they would make him stay behind.

George probably would not have heard him anyway. It had been a whole day since the turtle had practiced his singing and he was trying to make up for it now.

"Do re me fa so la te do," he sang as he plodded along. First in C, then F sharp, then B flat and so forth. It was very trying to listen to and the Prince was glad when they finally reached the forest and stopped to put on the shoes Tweedleknees had given them.

This was not an easy task. The Snowman was so large and ungainly he could hardly reach his feet, much less put shoes on. The turtle's feet were so tiny he couldn't keep his shoes on.

The Prince put his shoes on a rock and bent over the Snowman's huge feet. He shoved and pushed and tugged and finally the Snowman's shoes were on.

"Hey! Look at me!" exclaimed the Snowman. "I'm walking on air!"

He took one step, then another, and suddenly his legs went zip, zip, zip like a pair of scissors and swish! the Snowman was gone.

"Oh, dear," wailed the turtle struggling with his shoes. "We should stay together!"

"Don't worry, we'll catch up," said the Prince. He slipped the four little shoes on George's feet and tied the laces tight.

"Good gracious!" cried George. "I feel weightless!" He waddled three steps and then all four feet began to churn and swish! the turtle was gone, crying "Hurry, Prince!" as he sped away.

The Prince hurried to put on his own shoes, but when he went to the rock where he had left them they were gone. He turned the rock over and kicked up the snow. There was no sign of the shoes.

Then the Prince saw foot prints leading into the forest. "Could the shoes have gone off by themselves?" he wondered. Frantically he followed the tracks. On and on they went, deep into the forest. The Prince began to run. His heart pounded. It was growing dark. Soon he would not be able to see the tracks.

He stumbled over fallen logs and crashed into trees. A low limb swept the crown from his head. He left it where it fell and rushed on.

When he felt he could not run another step, the tracks came to an end. The Prince found himself in a small clearing in the woods. Standing waiting for him was Womp, the manwitch, grinning crookedly and holding the magic shoes in his hands.

Colo. Counties To Get Loans Says Official

DENVER (AP) — A federal official said today small farmers in seven counties in south-central Colorado should reap the greatest immediate benefit from a government credit plan.

Howard Bertsch, head of the U.S. Farmers Home Administration, said the plan is part of the newly enacted Economic Opportunity Program.

Bertsch came here to brief 50 FHA staff members from 13 states on how to administer the act.

"We're making character loans, based on an individual's standing in the community and his reputation for repayment," Bertsch said.

FHA will open an office in San Luis in Costilla County shortly after Jan. 1 to process applications. Amer Lehman, FHA state director, said Costilla has the largest number of low-income rural families, followed by Las Animas, Huerfano, Conejos and Archuleta counties.

The plan provides for loans of up to $2,500 for individual farmers or persons operating a nonfarm business in a rural area, and of up to $25,000 for cooperative associations that provide processing, marketing, supply and other services.

'Lili' Now Showing at Cooper

"Lili," one of the most wonderful romantic musicals in color ever made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is now showing at the Cooper Theatre, and both critics and public are tossing their hats in the air again over this heartwarming story of a young gamin who finds love in the midst of a traveling puppet show.

The star, director and writer of "Lili" are Leslie Caron, Charles Walters and Helen Deutsch. They all distinguished themselves on the screen prior to "Lili" and they are currently represented in outstanding pictures.

Miss Caron became an overnight star with her debut in the Academy Award-winning "An American in Paris," went on to win an Oscar nomination for her brilliant performance in "The L-Shaped Room" and will next be seen opposite Cary Grant in "Father Goose."

Both Charles Walters and Helen Deutsch have a long string of hits to their credit, culminating in their most recent association as director and screen writer of the sensationally successful MGM musical, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." But each of these artists hold a warm spot in their heart for "Lili," which they consider to be one of the finest motion pictures on which they were ever represented.

Based on Paul Gallico's original story, "The Seven Souls of Clement O'Reilly," the imaginative "Lili" co-stars Mel Ferrer and Jean Pierre Aumont, with other leading roles played by Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kurt Kasznar.

The memorable song, "Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo," is sung in the film by Miss Caron and Ferrer. The stars first sing it as a duet. Then Ferrer, playing a carnival puppeteer, sings the number by substituting his voice for four puppets, using a falsetto, basso, a squeaky tone and vocal pitched one tone above his natural voice. Finally, Miss Caron returns to sing a verse in harmony with one of the puppets, with Ferrer again supplying the puppet voice.

The settings of "Lili" are equally unusual and colorful. The traveling circus is complete with carousel, ferris wheel, spinning ball, dive-for-life, dancing dogs, hugging bears and the magic tent of Marcus the Magician.

Here the magician pulls diamond bracelets from the air, rabbits from his hat, food from the sky — and clothes off his feminine partner. It is Jean Pierre Aumont and his partner, Zsa Zsa Gabor in the screen's most spectacular striptease act.

'LILI' — Leslie Caron and Jean Pierre Aumont, as they appear in the memorable musical romance in color, 'Lili' Now showing at the Cooper Theatre, the movie is the story of a homeless French waif who finds love in the midst of a traveling carnival troupe.

TODAY'S COVER

That's what they call 'em—fun things and GERALD MAGNUSSON appears to be having just that on today's cover. Actually MAGNUSSON had slipped slightly and according to JOHN KUGLIN who took the photo, was on his way down to meet the snow the hard way. The fun things, in case you're wondering, are snowshoes and KUGLIN tells all about them and winter hiking in today's cover story. We asked JOHN, who is a mountain climbing nut as well as a snoeshoe nut, the same thing we asked him when he did the story on "The Fourteeners" for us several weeks ago — Why? And as with the mountains JOHN couldn't exactly tell us so we figure he goes slogging along snow - covered mountain trails for the same reason we figured he climbed mountains — because they're there. At any rate, JOHN'S excellent story on this fun thing will be found on pages 16 and 17 of today's LEISURETIME, the magazine for you and fun.

BANDITS OF ORGOSOLO — Pepeddu Jossu, an amateur actor found by director Vittorio De Seta, plays the lead along with Michele Jossu in the next film to be seen at the Flick. "Bandits of Orgosolo," a tense story of how poverty and honor in Sardinia create men of violence, will start tomorrow.

'Bandits' Is Next Film at The 'Flick'

One of the most widely acclaimed Italian films in recent years is BANDITS OF ORGOSOLO which opens tomorrow night at the FLICK, Colorado Springs' intimate art theatre.

Winner of four Venice Film Festival Awards, this Italian neo-realist drama also won top 'Sight and Sound' 'polls of the world's movie critics.

Directed by the veteran Italian movie-maker Vittorio De Seta, BANDITS OF ORGOSOLO is the story of a shepard and his younger brother, who by accident become involved in a killing and must flee from the police. Their flight and the escape of their only possessions—sheep—makes for the tense drama which eventually ends in tragedy.

As in the early neo-realist dramas such as BICYCLE THIEF and PAISAN, BANDITS OF ORGOSOLO was acted entirely by amateurs who had never appeared in a film before. The shepard, played by Sardinian Michele Cossu; and the younger brother, played by Peppeddu Cuscu are roles that demand a great deal from a professional actor and yet they achieve immense realism when portrayed by these two non-professionals.

One of the very few winners of the coveted Robert Flaherty Award, BANDITS OF ORGO SOLO will appear at the FLICK in its first engagement in Colorado and its surrounding states.

Fonda Stars At Chief in 'Fail Safe'

Henry Fonda, who lists among his credits some of the most highly acclaimed and moving productions of the stage and screen, probably will rate his present role in "Fail Safe," the Max E. Youngstein-Sidney Lumet suspense drama at the Chief Theatre, as the most memorable. A Columbia Pictures release, "Fail Safe" presents Fonda as the President of the United States, but that isn't why his role is so important; after all, some 25 years ago, the veteran actor appeared as "The Young Mr. Lincoln."

The President in "Fail Safe" is no man who ever was in the White House; he is the man in the Presidency at some future time in American history during those fateful few hours when all life hangs in dangerous balance and only a few people of consequence can do anything about it. "Fail Safe" is the story of people with the power to control the world, and the haunting dilemma in which they find themselves when a plane committed to drop a nuclear bomb goes past its 'Fail Safe' point. In Fonda's case, as President, he must make the greatest single decision ever made by any human being.

As an actor, Fonda is faced in "Fail Safe" by almost overwhelming problems of technique; he portrays a man with grave responsibilities, facing a trying and terrifying situation, and his "stage" is a single, simple room which houses a desk and two chairs. On the desk are Fonda's "props" — a pitcher of water and two glasses, and a telephone set-up through which he can speak to individuals and groups in various parts of the world. Most of Fonda's conversation is over that telephone, some of it is with co-star Larry Hagman, playing the President's Russian translater.

Fonda stars in "Fail Safe" with Dan O'Herlihy, Walter Matthau, Frank Overton, Edward Binns and Larry Hagman and the film introduces Fritz Beaver. "Fail Safe" is the film version of the Eugene Berduck-Harvey Wheeler best - seller adapted by Walter Bernstein. Sidney Lumet directed.

The versatile Fonda is always busy. He appeared in the Broadway smash, "Two for the Seesaw," a few seasons ago, shortly after he formed his own own independent film production company to produce and star in "Twelve Angry Men," with Sidney Lumet as his director. He has appeared in a number of TV specials.

Fonda's long career is replete with great films: "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Ox-Bow Incident" and "Mr. Roberts," to name a few, but Fonda was not always an actor. There was a time when he wanted to be a newspaperman, but couldn't quite make it. After working at numerous other odd jobs, he stumbled into the Community Playhouse at Omaha where he was teased into picking up a script. He quickly became a leader in the Playhouse project, moving from there to the Cape Playhouse, Dennis, Massachusetts. Here he was appearing in a stock presentation of Molnar's "The Swan" when his performance was "caught" by June Walker, who had recently been signed for the lead in Marc Connelly's play about the Erie Canal, "The Farmer Takes a Wife." She saw in Fonda the ideal choice for the man opposite her. He was an immediate hit and Hollywood producers started bidding for his services.

'Moon' At Peak Next Saturday

Green cheese was NOT one of the items used by the highly-skilled group of designers, technicians, craftsmen and scientists working to create the sets for Charles H. Schneer's new science-adventure, "The First Men IN the Moon," opening next Saturday at the Peak Theatre in Luna-color. Pretty near everything else known to modern technology was used to make the "Moon," however.

According to the H. G. Wells story on which the Columbia Pictures release is based, the space-men of 65 years ago made their flight in a huge iron sphere, this was fabricated of fiberglass and wood for the film, but it still weighed more than a ton. On the moon itself, they found grotesquely humanized ant forms they called Selenites; and a strange variety of vegetation. They found huge crystal caverns and a host of other marvels and menaces.

Then, of course, the movie-makers had to re-create the moon's surface, as well, along with the heavens.

"First Men IN the Moon" stars Edward Judd, Martha Hyer and Lionel Jeffries as the first men—and a woman!—both on and in the moon. Nigel Kneale and Jan Read wrote the screenplay for the Ameran film, which was diredted by Nathan Juran in Panavision and associate producer Ray Harry-Hausen created the special visual effects in Dynamation.

HarryHausen won international praise for his work on the last Schneer picture, "Jason and the Argonauts," and he had to do six months pre-production work in "First Men IN the Moon" plus a further four months after the 12 weeks of filming.

"There is no quick way of doing my job," says Harry-Hausen. "One needs unlimited patience and first class assistants." He and art director John Blezard created a complete lunar world including Wells' race of moon creatures and a giant gastropod moon-beast. "Everything had to be minutely planned and scaled and there were hundreds of color and matching tests to be done."

Nigel Kneale's brother, Brian, the sculptor and painter, was commissioned by Schneer to create three dimensional conceptions of the moon animal and plant life.

'THE TIME TRAVELERS' — Starting Tuesday at the Chief Theatre will be the science-fiction film, "The Time Travelers." Shown above is one of the spaceships (or Timeships) that carry men on their weird missions through the fourth dimension. Preston Foster stars as a daring scientist in the film, also starring Merry Anders and Philip Carey.

Foster Shows Versatility In New Role

When critics talk about versatility and an incredible variety of roles portrayed by a single actor, the name of Preston Foster looms large among those few who can claim such a record.

Foster, who has starred in 120 feature motion pictures and an almost equal amount of television shows, creates his newest character as a daring scientist "The Time Travelers".

The science fiction thriller, opening Tuesday at the Chief Theatre, also stars Philip Carey, John Hoyt and Merry Anders.

Born and raised on the New Jersey seacoast, Preston's early life was almost as varied as the roles he later played as an actor. During his early days, while he apprenticed in show business, he earned his way as a shipping clerk, paymaster, bus driver, newspaper ad salesman and dozens of other odd jobs.

Preston began his show business career as a spear carrier for $1.00 a day in the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company. Possessed of a fine singing voice, he soon won performance with the Philadelphia bit roles in the company's operas and later went on to featured operatic roles.

However, he had his heart set on the legitimate theatre and journeyed back and forth to New York for auditions. Finally he got a job as an understudy, then did some stage managing, hit for some bit parts and finally some choice roles, particularly as one of the leads in a play called "Two Seconds".

It was in this play, in 1932, that he was seen by director Mervyn LeRoyand brought to Hollywood to do the screen version for Warner Brothers, with Edwards G. Robinson as co-star.

Cooper Will Show Singer Biography

Starting Friday at the Cooper Theatre, the story of Hank Williams, America's famous country singer-composer, is unfolded in Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Your Cheatin' Heart" in a motion picture which touches the heart. It is a compelling drama, alternating between joy and tragedy, and highlighted by many of the ballads, religious songs and popular country music which Williams sang across the country and which made him one of the most beloved entertainers of his day.

George Hamilton portrays Williams in the film. Susan Oliver enacts Audrey, the girl he met while he was performing in a traveling medicine show and whom he married soon after. At the time he was so broke, he had to substitute an iron washer for a wedding ring. Red Buttons is seen as Shorty Younger, the trouper who became Hank's life - long friend and who tried desperately to rehabilitate him when success robbed him of his touch with the comon folk and he turned to drink. Arthur O'Connell has the role of Fred Rose, the successful music publisher, who gave Williams his first break.

Born into humble circumstances, Hank Williams learned basic country - music chords from a Negro street singer and parlayed his otherwise untutored talent into a major success. Before his untimely death in 1953, at the age of 29, he had written more than 500 songs, sold millions of records and was an international favorite.

The story of "Your Cheatin' Heart "faithfully traces the steps of Hank's eventful life from his beginning as a shoeshine boy, his early success on the popular Louisiana Hayride radio program, his rise to wealth and fame, crowned by his triumph with the Grand Ole Opry, top show in the country-western music field. But although his professional success soared, his personal life and marriage collapsed and even the birth of a son, Hank, Jr., failed to bring him out of his alcoholic rut.

Desperately, Hank tries to get hold of himself and make a fresh start, and almost succeeds. But it is his very popularity and integrity which proves his undoing in the final moving sequences of the story.

'Heights' to Go Wednesday At Broadmoor

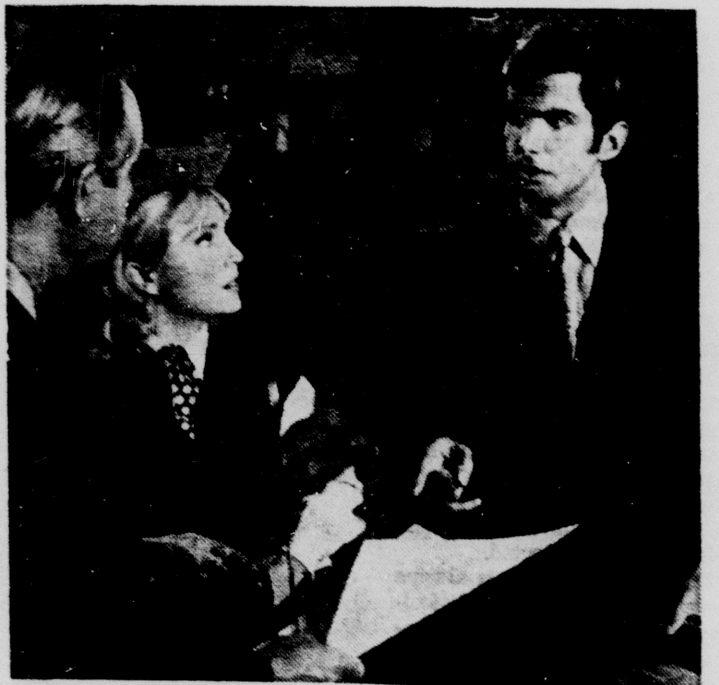
Unchanged, unchallenged and unabated in its seething emotional storms — that's the story of Samuel Goldwyn's timeless and tempestuous masterpiece, "Wuthering Heights," due Wednesday at the Broadmoor Theatre.

William Wyler directed the production from a Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur script of the Emily Bronte classic. Laurence Olivier and Merle Oberon are starred as Heathcliff and Cathy, the famous pair who sealed their fate the moment they shared their love.

The story of "Wuthering Heights" is a story of love and hate, of romance and revenge of beauty and drunkenness. It unfolds on the wild, desolate moors of the Yorkshire country. It peers into the lives of five people whose destinies become strangely entangled through a series of weird episodes. Merle Oberon in portraying the role of Cathy, a highly emotional, high-spirited beauty, turns in one of the most unforgettable performances the screen has offered.



ANGRY BALLADEER — Susan Oliver listens as an angry George Hamilton tells hard-to-convince Arthur O'Connell that he wrote the new song which they have submitted to the music publisher in this scene from "Your Cheatin' Heart," starting Friday at the Cooper Theatre. The movie tells the story of the late country-western singer, Hank Williams, one of the most popular natural entertainers of his time.

'Prairie' Open at Peak On Sunday

Following his belief that what fascinates him is likely to find a ready audience among people who share his interest in little known facets of nature's hidden wonderland, Walt Disney chose the highly dramatic setting of the Great American Plains for his True-Life Adventure Feature, "The Vanishing Prairie," opening tomorrow at the Peak The im 78TNETAOI N TAOOI Theatre. The film, gigantic in scope and epic in proportions, is featured in the sixth and final program of Walt Disney's True-Life Adventure Festival.

Discussing the film, the producer said: "The settlement of the Great Plains region of the United States and the animal life the pioneers encountered identifies a great era in our national history. I feel that the nature and disposition of the vast primeval prairie had a very material effect in the winning and conversion of the midwestern wilderness into the most fruitful use of the earth on this hemisphere.

"This, it seems to me, gives the pictorial record of wildlife as we have gathered and present it in "The Vanishing Prairie" a very wide special appeal. A great deal of human interest is associated with it, even though no human being or his works is ever seen in this or any other True-Life Adventure film.

"The picture was made as sheer informative entertain - ment. In filming the related life drama of buffalo, deer, antelope, mountain sheep, cougar, coyote, prairie dog, sage grouse and many other natives of what is still left of the old wild west, the very character of the plains automatically projects an epoch in human affairs. The ancestors of these animals and birds were contemporary with a tremendous human mass adventure. They are most familiar in our American legend.

"The incalculably vast herds and flocks swept aside in that incredible passion for a piece of virgin American soil have dwindled to small groups. Yet remnant bands, as wild as ever their kindred were, still roam the open range, protected by sanctuaries and preserves.

"Our naturalist cameramen found and assembled an eloquent reminder of a past day in human and natural history in the animal personalities of a not - yet - competely - vanished prairie."

'Lovers' Has Sex Mores as Theme at Ute

The subject of sexual mores among today's college students, a topic which is gaining increasing space in newspaper headlines and editorials, is given a forthright, down-to-earth and compelling treatment sans sensationalism or mock heroics in Samuel Goldwyn, Jr's production of "The Young Lovers," now showing at the Ute Theatre.

The first Goldwyn, Jr., production which he also directed, the picture's leading roles are enacted by a group of highly talented young performers, headed by Peter Fonda in his most ambitious film role to date, Sharon Hugueny, Nick Adams and Deborah Walley.

Filmed largely on location on the campus and surrounding area of UCLA and at Occidental College, the picture gives the viewer a feeling of complete authenticity as it unfolds its story of a vibrant love affair between two attractive and impressionable young students.

The relationship between Eddie Slocum (Fonda), about to graduate and hopeful of an art fellowship, and Pam Burns, (Sharon Hugueny), serious-minded and idealistic, begins innocently enough with casual meetings at the apartment which Eddie shares with his student friend Tarragoo (Adams). But soon they are caught up in a deeper attachment which culminated in trysts, first in a cave on a rugged and lonely California beach (one of the many beautifully photographer sequences in the film), and later when Eddie spends the night at Pam's house when her widowed mother is away.

It is a typical happy, carefree college "affair" until the day comes when Pam discovers she is pregnant. Marrying her seems out of the question to Eddie, who has little money and who feels such a step would jeopardize the opportunity offered him by the fellowship which he can get only if he passes all his courses and graduates. Shocked at his indifference and lack of responsibility, Pam feels that the only solution for her is to face the risk of an abortion and then to put Eddie out of her life forever.

What happens to Pam and Eddie and how they meet their problem head on before the story's conclusion makes for a picture of moving emotional content, in which each of the leading protagonists finds himself a more mature and responssible person nans the result of an experience which comes close to skirting tragedy.

A subsidiary romance between Tarragoo and his fiancee, Debbie (Deborah Walley), also touches on the problem of premarital relations, in this respect that of the girl who faces a two-year separation from the man she loves when he is drafted into the Army.

The principals of "The Young Lovers" are given fine support in the performances of Beatrice Straight in the role of Pam's sympathetic mother, Malachi Throne and Joseph Campanella as professors, and Kent Smith as the doctor whom Pam consults when she decides on the abortion.

"The Young Lovers" is based on the novel by Julian Halevy, with the discerning screen play written by George Garrett. Aid-

Pop Singer Set for Film Special

English pop singer Jess Conrad has been signed to make his motion picture debut in a non-vocal role, appearing with Kim Novak and a stellar international cast in "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," currently filming in London.

Conrad, a contemporary of The Beatles, whose records "Cherry Pie" and "Mystery Girl" have been high on English music charts, was spotted by producer Marcel Hellman and director Terence Young while appearing in a special BBC Television Program.

His role in the film version of Daniel Defoe's classic novel of sin and sex is that of a "Mohock," an 18th Century juvenile delinquent who terrorizes a community.

Salvation Army Presents 'Lucia Festival' Sunday

Star boys will be David Hepperle, Gregory White, Gary Rich and Marvin Clevenger. Attendents will be Linda, Donna, Elise, and Willdonna Rich, Barbara Mills, Loretta Branham, Jean Schmitz, Joann Davidson, Helen Clevenger, Patty and Jean Schmit, Joann Davidson, Vickie Gary and Shirley Bishop.

There will also be several vocal group numbers.

Lucia was a Christian Martyr and in Sweden has become the personification of light, beauty and Christian joy.

In Sweden and other northern European countries, December 13th, is known as the Day of St. Lucia. It introduces the Christmas season which continues until January 13th, which is known as the 13th Day.

In Swedish legend, Lucia appeared in Sweden on a winter night during a year of great famine. She went through the land feeding starving people. She wore a white robe and a crown of burning candles. So today in Sweden early in the morning on St. Lucia's day a girl is dressed in white and crowned with a wreath of lighted candles. Several maids accompany her as she treats the people to coffee before they arise.

Today the custom is not observed in the homes, but Lucia Festivals are arranged in churches and halls as is being done here at The Salvation Army.

The public is invited to attend this interesting and beautiful Christmas program. The traditional Swedish cookies and rolls will be served following the program.

Photo Show

The Wiesbaden Photographers Club will stage an exhibition of photographs contributed by amateurs from all over the world. The show will be held in May 1965 under the patronage of the l'Art Photographique.

Heavenly Hash Was Born In a Cloistered Nunnery

Years ago the Visitation Convent in Mobile, Ala., was a school for proper young ladies. But after many decades of educating young girls, the sisters closed the convent's doors and it became a cloistered nunnery.

The bishop decided to turn the convent into a retreat house for the women of the diocese so it became necessary to remodel the spacious classrooms into small bedrooms.

This required a lot of money for the convent was more than a century old. But it was ideally suited for such a purpose as the buildings were situated on spacious grounds shaded by giant oaks.

One of the nuns wanted to do her part in raising the necessary funds, and since she was famous to the other sisters because of her prowess at making candy, this appeared to be a natural.

So Sister Louise, well into her 60s, cooked up several small batches of her most popular candy and prevailed upon some of the local merchants to stock it in their candy counters.

The candy was an immediate hit with Mobilians and soon Sister Louise's fame had spread all over the Gulf Coast region. Her orders increased and a candy manufacturer donated some modern equipment so the sister could keep up with the demand.

The candy Sister Louise made is famous all over the Southland, especially during the Christmas season. The nums package it in white boxes tied with Christmas red ribbons and it's called quite naturally Heavenly Hash.

HEAVENLYHASH

3 cups sugar
¾ cup cocoa
½ cup light corn syrup
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup pecan meats
½ pound tiny marshmallows
½ cup chopped cherries

Blend the first four ingredients and cook over low heat until the sugar dissolves. Increase heat to medium and continue cooking, stirring often, until the mixture reaches the soft ball stage.

Remove from heat, add butter and cool to lukewarm. Add the vanilla and beat until creamy. Stir in the pecans, marshmallows, and cherries. Beat until thickened and pour into a buttered pan. When the candy is completely cold, cut into squares.

I once did a piece about Sister Louise and her Heavenly Hash when I was on the Mobile Press-Register. Because the convent is cloistered, a photographer was not allowed to take the nun's picture, but another sister took a snapshot of her which we used to illustrate my article.

The day following the article's puglication, Sister Louise phoned ve and said the other nuns were having a grand time teasing her about her "debut in society." And indeed, they had cause for the picture we used of the buxom Irish lady showed her wearing a giant-size black checkered apron over her black habit.

Opera Garage

An underground garage providing parking space for 440 cars was recently complete in Munich. Situated beneath Max-Joseph-Platz in front of the State Opera, it has direct access to the theatre.

Butte Offers Special Ski School Pack

Starting Monday the Crested Butte Ski School will run a special five-day instructional week.

Open to intermediate and expert skiers, the course will center around the instruction of short-swing and wedel skiing. Under the direction of ski school head Robel Straubhaar, the course will offer classes daily Monday through Friday. All students will receive their Professional Ski Instructors Association rating card, which will state the student's ability as determined by a professional skier.

A special package plan at a reduced rate of $79.50 is being offered to those skiers who wish overnight lodging, according to Al Fisher. He said the special package includes six nights lodging, six days of lift tickets, and five days of lessons. The special rate offers the skiers choice of any of the six lodges at Crested Butte, Fisher said.

Those interested can contact the lodge of their choice, or write Crested Butte, Ltd., or call 349-5326.

'The Vip's' Is Next at Arts Center

"The V.I.P.s," an absorbing modern drama which explores the private lives of the world's important and pampered people, will be shown at the Fine Arts Center Tuesday at 2:30, 7 and 9:10 p.m.

Starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, the movie is a finely-acted piece by a galaxy of top stars. In addition to Miss Taylor and Burton and Louis Jourdan, Elsa Martinelli, Margaret Rutherford, Maggie Smith, Rod Taylor, Linda Christian and Orson Welles.

The story itself, written by the noted playwright Terrence Rattigan, concerns the effects on the lives of an assorted group of people when a heavy fog delays their departure from London Airport. The most dramatic, of course, is the conflict of Miss Taylor as the beautiful and spoiled wife of a shipping millionaire (Burton) whom she is leaving for an international playboy (Jourdan).

The importance of time is elemental in all situations. Orson Welles, as a bombastic movie producer, must be out of England by midnight or face paying a ruinous income tax. Rod Taylor, cast as the ambitious, self-made Australian business tycoon, must be in New York for a Board meeting or see his company lost

'Deep Fund of Humanity' Enriches Zorach's Work

Friday, a sculpture by William Zorach entitled "The Family" was dedicated at the Columbia Savings and Loan Association Building in Downtown Colorado Springs.

It is a sensitive and impressive work by one of the world's leading sculptors and it is typical of the kind of work the artist prefers to do. He has said that art must express emotion and his work is filled with this quality.

A deep fund of humanity informs the sculpture of William Zorach — a largeness of spirit which is reflected in the amplitude of his forms, the harmonious rhythm of his designs. His is a sculpture of repose rather than strife, an affirmation of life's simplest but deepest forces: the love of man and woman, the nurturing tenderness of of motherhood, the unconscious grace of children and animals. These are the themes which Zorach has treated again and again, but always with freshness of insight and feeling and a new sense of their sculptural possibilities.

Zorach is primarily a direct carver who believes in cutting his design with his hands out of the log or boulder, evolving his forms in harmony with the shape and nature of his material, and utilizing its intrinsic beauty of color, markings and texture. His work is sculptural in the oldest meaning of the word: it looks and is hewn from the solid block, compact, massive and a pleasure to touch as well as see. The artist was, indeed, a pioneer in re-establishing this concept of sculpture in America early in the present century at a time when it had virtually disappeared from our art.

Born in Lithuania in 1887, Zorach was brought to America at the age of four and grew up in Cleveland where his father was a junk dealer. The family was poor and Zorach was forced to leave school after the eighth grade to support himself as a journeyman lithographer. Evenings he studied at the Cleveland School of Art, later — on his scant savings — in New York and Paris. His first intention was to be a painter, and in Paris he was captivated by the fauve and cubist movements, then just emerging. Returning to his country in 1912, he exhibited his own fauve and cubist paintings in the famous Armor Show of 1913 and the Forum Exhibition of 1916.

Zorach began to carve in 1917. By 1922 he had become so interested in this branch of art that he gave up working in oil for good, although he has continued to draw and to paint his sparkling watercolors of the Main coast throughout his career. His reputation as a sculptor grew rapidly and won him many important public commissions, including the Benjamin Franklin in the Benjamin Franklin Post Office in Washington, D. C., and the big reliefs on the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. He is represented today in most of the country's leading museums such as the Metropolitan, the Whitney and the Museum of Modern Art.

The idea was initiated by playwright Elmer Rice, who found wide interest in American drama but a dearth of material about it during a recent tour of Eastern Europe.

'Les Gemmaux': the Art Of Glass, Color, Light

"Les Gemmaux" is a new art form — contemporary both in its source and its expression. It's French and it has to do with glass, color and light. So far so good, but what is it? "Difficult to explain — impossible to phog9vgjqm.4' says art. Another more explicitely suggests that "Gemmaux" compared with the traditional strained glass is like a comparison between Cinemascope and the old flat screen. Others say this doesn't help at all, but most agree it's beautiful — unique.

Cut, shaped and assembled, fragments of multicolored glass of varying thicknesses are temprarily held firm by clearn adhesive. If the artist himself, the "Maitre d'Oeuvre" and the designer of the cartoon are satisfied, the adhesive is solidified gradually heated to perfection. Cooling is done by slow degrees, to avoid damage.

For all its history and antiquities, the French town of Tours in the Chateau Country has proved a contemporary spirit in its enthusiasm for the "Gemmaux" ("Gemmaux" being plural for "Gemmail"). It calls itself the "City of Gemmail," and has established the "Prix International du Gemmail" annual award, presented each October to the creative artist, French or foreign, who most effectively realizes an original cartoon specifically for the new medium.

The prize of $2,000 is admittedly attractive, but the excitement and challenge of this unique means of expression have a vital attraction of their own for the dedicated creative artist. The great French master, Braque, was so captivated he exclaimed: "If I were thirty years old I would be the 'Gemmiste Braque'." Among other great names of celebrated artists who encouraged the early Gemmistes are Picasso, Matisse, Rouault and Jean Cocteau, all of whom have had their works interpreted in Gemmail. Besides being on display at the Musee de la Lumiere in Tours, the "Gemmaux" can be seen in the Paris Metro station at Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt.

New Gallery Features Photography and Art

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfestures

An unusual exhibition gallery, featuring photography as well as art, is one of the newest attractions on New York City's elegant Fifth Avenue. The Hallmark Gallery, designed by architect Edward Durell Stone, is the latest prestige addition o the trend of providing exhibition areas in buildings primarily intended for business use.

Some years ago the IBM Corporation converted a street - level annex next to its showroom into an attractive art gallery which displayed many outstanding photographic exhibitions. The IBM Gallery's latest show featured Ernst Haas' color photography in an exhibition aptly called "Poetry in Color."

The Lever Bros. Building was the first of several new buildings on Park Avenue which designed its lobby area for use as an exhibition gallery for art, photographic or public service shows.

The new Hallmark Gallery, however, is architecturally different in its conception and treatment. Its Fifth Avenue front consists of three glazed arches, 24-feet high. From the street, passersby can look down into an open end of the gallery itself. Entry to the gallery is through a center arch over a red - carpeted bridge into the Hallmark store. A double circular stairwell goes down to the exhibition area and leads to a fountain softly splashing into a little pool. The gallery can be partially screened off into three separate areas or opened up to form one large exhibition room of 2,100 square feet.

Currently featured in the gallery is the life story of Sir Winston Churchill, a tribute marking his 90th birthday on Nov. 30. Some 300 photographs, mounted on panels in chronologilogical order, span his monumental career. Pictures of Churchill with world leaders and major historical events of the past 75 years play a prominent part in the pictorial collection Some of the photographs are displayed in public for the first time.

Photography's ever - present role, in recording the achievements which account for Churchill's world stature, is a remarkable accomplishment in its own right. It has documented those achievements not only in still pictures but in movies.

"The Finest Hours" is a current motion picture of one of the greatest men of this age. Producer Jack Le Vien combined historical films unearthed by painstaking research, animation of still pictures, paintings and rare mementos and in addition photographed a great deal of original footage at Chartwell, Churchill's home. The film, released by Columbia Pictures, reveals Churchill's humor, wit and eloquence and traces Britain's road from the depths of disaster to its hour of triumph under his leadership.

Some of the photos and memorabilia unearthed by producer Le Vien are included in the exhibition in the Hallmark Gallery. These exhibitions, of course, are open to the public hours. Itiis unfortunate that many people who go to work or attend school can spare only their evenings or Saturday or Sunday to visit museums and see exhibitions. However, these "business galleries" have given shoppers the stimulus of a gallery-break to relieve the strain of shopping.

'Glory Guys' Filming Is Done in Durango, Mexico

By DICK KLEINER

DURANGO, Mexico (NEA) Long before daw breaks over the rugged mountains, the city of Durango is awake. If it isn't, it soon will be. The bells of the ancient, pale orange cathedral ring, sounding like somebody banging on a dishpan with a wooden spoon. And the barefoot newsboys range the streets, with their endless, monotonous shout, "El Sol," the name of the local paper.

The average American tourist, should he get so far off the beaten track as to reach Durango, would be upset at all the middle - of - the - night clatter. But the Americans who are here shooting "The Glory Guys" don't mind. They've left an hour before, heading for the location 20 miles southeast.

Most of the company is up at 5, breakfasted and gone before the first clunk of the bells and the first yell of the newsboys. They won't be back in the city until darkness falls.

When they come back, most of them gather in the dining room of the ancient Posada Duran, Durango's best hotel. And they eat a leisurely dinner while they discuss the day's work and, joined by the camaraderie of their near-exile, joke about their rather dreary living conditions.

Most, they exchange the latest rumors about when they would be back home — "I heard we'd make it for the holidays" — and reminisce about how nice it is in Los Angeles, or any place.

Senta Berger talked dreamily this night about Christmas customs in Vienna, and something called "hot apples" which she'll miss this ytar.

That started Tom Tryon and Harve Presnell talking about foods they'd eaten and exotic wines they'd drunk around the world. This, as they sipped a white wine which Tryon said was surely the world's worst. Doc Wylie, the company auditor, tried to get a Spanish omelet without potatoes in it. A Spanish omelet in Mexico is nothing like the ones north of the border. It has no onions or tomato sauce, but is generally chock full of potatoes. Wylie sent his back a few times before surrendering.

Presnell, originally a rancher's son from California, said he finds this part of Mexico terribly depressing.

"All this poverty," he said. "And it is so needless. The land is good, there's plenty of water. But nobody knows how to cultivate land. When there is a crop, it's poorly tended."

Arnold Laven, the director and Jules Levy, the producer, talked together. Mostly, of course, it was about money. "The Glory Guys" is budgeted around $2 million. Laven told me the cost would have been about doubled if they had shot in Hollywood.

The Mexican government, anxious to lure U. S. productions, had bee n very co-operative. They had, for example, given the company 400 Mexican soldiers, complete with horses, for $4 a day per man.

"And no overtime," said Laven, still awed by the deal.

There was a burst of laughter from the group. They were recalling the day Andrew Duggan, no great horseman, had led a charge. And his white horse, which he has come to hate passionately, dumped him with a stirrup broke. Duggan fixed the stirrup, remounted and, with aching shoulder, reshot the scene five times.

"Death," Duggan said, "could be no worse."

Focus Club Members Focus On Humorous Slide Titles

Members of the Focus Club at a recent meeting all seemed to be focusing their slides on humorous titles.

There was "Lady Bird's Nest" — a picture of the White House; a close-up of a deer was entitled "Wonder What Kind of Camera He's Using?"; "God Mend They Every Flaw" was a uniquely blurred picture; "Dos-A-Dos" was a photo of two peacocks and "Look Out Kentucky Derby, Here We Come," was a shot of three small children on a wooden horse.

After the laughs died down, members gathered around for the awards for the November competition. Theme was America The Beautiful.

First place in color was shared by Lena Stinnett for "Above the Fruited Plain," and Olive Davis for "Purple Mountain." Second place was awarded to Betty Fowler for "Amber Waves of Grain."

"Who More than Self Their Country Loved" won third place for John Bryant.

Honorable mentions went to John Fowler for "In Shining Sea;" Betty Fowler for "Brotherhood," and Annella Bryant for "Purple Mountain Majesty."

In open color, first place went to Rosemary Landon for "Nature's Toys," second place to Harold Wilcox for "Piano Virtuoso," and third place to Charlene Wolfe for "Wonder What Kind of Camera He's Using." Honorable mention went to Lillyan Jefferies for "Let there be Light," Harold Wilcox for "Study in Red and Green," and John Fowler for "In the Wake."

In black and white, subject, was Charlotte Stevens' "Beautiful for Spacious Skies."

In open, first place went to Charlotte Stevens with "Mast" and second place to DeRoy Stevens for "Footprints."

The main program was centered around the slides that were entered in the October Salon. These slides were shown and Bill Bowers along with a panel of members gave comments on the slides, telling their good points and how they might be improved.

Role Brings Back Old Memories

Time did a flashback for Bill Ewing, popular editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, when he went before the cameras as a war correspondent in the Otto Preminger film, "In Harm's Way." He appeared with John Wayne, Kirk Douglas, Burgess Meredith, Dana Andrews and George Kennedy in scenes filmed at Sand Island depicting naval preparations for island invasions during the Pacific conflict.

Looking around at the familiar camouflaged quonset huts, gun emplacements and the pontoon pier where an ancient Coast Guard Albatross came in for a landing, Ewing told Preminger, "I feel right at home. This looks just like it did at Peleliu when we invaded the islands.

Ewing had gone in with the invasion forces as a war correspondent. The action was designed to protect MacArthur's landings in Leyte.

Included in the all-star cast of "In Harm's Way" are Patricia Neal, Tom Tryon, Paula Prentiss, Brandon de Wilde, Jill Haworth, Stanley Holloway, Franchot Tone, Patrick O'Neal, Barbara Bouchet, Hugh O'Brian and Henry Fonda. The film will be a Paramount release.

The Trouble With Africa Is It's Cold

Africa is generally thought of as having exclusively a tropical climate. However, Edward G. Robinson, who stars in "A Boy Ten Feet Tall," found out soon though that he would be in for more than just a hot time.

When Robinson first arrived in Nairobi, before going on to Mombasa, he sweltered in the tropical heat anticipated. Then he traveled to Momella in Tanganyika for four weeks filming.

What Robinson didn't know until he arrived there was that Momella, which lies beneath the towering crags of the 14,900 foot extinct volcano Mount Meru, is 6,000 feet above sea level. And it is mighty chilly — especially at night.

The curious paradox:—just 20 minutes flying time away from the heat of the equator, Edward G. found himself freezing with the cold. Robinson, the rest of the cast and crew, and director Alexander Mackendrick had to bundle themselves up in thick sweaters. They all gathered around a blazing campfire to ward off the chill.

"A Boy Ten Feet Tall," which is a Seven Arts-Bryanston production, will be a Paramount release.

Movie Gets Publicity From 'Hams'

During the filming of "The Naked Prey" in Northern Transvaal, Cornel Wilde received an unexpected publicity assist from his sound man, Jim Chapman.

A radio ham and one-time radio broadcasting news commentator, Chapman carried along with him a portable, completely transisterized, short wave transmitting and receiving set. Every night he contacted "hams" in various corners of the world. Invariably the air wave conversations turned to movie-making and particularly to "The Naked Prey."

Before many weeks of shooting had elapsed, hams from as far separated global areas as uutralis, Singapore, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu, Manila, London, Cape Town, Beirut, Chicago and ships at sea were making inquiries regarding "The Naked Prey" and filming progress, with the result that each night after work Chapman found himself conducting a virtual short wave movie fan magazine seminar, all concentrating on Cornel Wilde and his activities.

One-Two Punch

Why is Emily McLaughlin "up in the air" these days? Could it be that her husband's (Robert Lansing) success as star of ABCs' Friday night hit, "Twelve O'Clock High" continues to soar or is it that she has re-signed for her starring role as nurse Jessie Brewer in the highly popular ABC-TV day-9 mei drama, "General Hospital."

When Diogenes lit his lantern and went hunting, he was searching for an honest man, according to tradition.

Restored

The oldest town hall in Germany, in the town of Fritzlar, Hesse, has been restored to its griginal appearance. Dating from the early twelfth century, the building is composed of a two-storied Romanesque base supporting 15th century half-timbered upper stories (restored). A copy of the original slate-shingled roof completes the picturesque and now authentic structure.

RED'S GUESTS—The Youngfolk, popular singing group, are guests on 'The Red Skelton Hour" Tuesday, on Channel 11.

Disney Plans Less Shorts And More Full-Lengthers

By DIC KKLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Walt Disney or after Poppins, what?

Walt Disney lit a thin, small cigar and puffed out a cloud of smoke. Being in the Disney studio, where magic is commonplace, I expected the smoke to rearrange itself into some curious, living shape. But it didn't.

" 'Mary Poppins,' " he said, "is spoiling us. After that, nothing else we're doing looks very good. Of course, I had the same problem years ago with 'Snow White,' so I know I'll get over it eventually, but it sure exists today."

We were in Walt's office, where he works at a low, square desk, sitting amid his wall-to-wall Oscars and other awards which clog walls and tables and bookcases. A few more plaques and Walt will have to move out and let the awards take over.

This was one of Disney's infrequent interviews. He had agreed to let me talk to him about his coming plans. And, between his movie productions, his television series and that little nation called Disneyland, there are plenty of plans.

The animated cartoon short subject, which is the basis of Disney's fame and fortune, is almost a thing of the past. Walt says it costs as much, nowadays, to make a 20-minute animated short as it does to make a full-length live action feature film. So they only make two or three a year, generally to be programmed with his own features.

But they are still working on animated feature films. One based on Kipling's "The Jungle Book" is in the works and perhaps will be followed by "Winnie the Pooh," although that is doubtful.

Next feature on the Disney schedule is Hayley Mills' "That Darn Cat," now before the cameras.

"It'll be good," says Disney, "but it's no Poppins."

After that, sometime in May, production will begin on a movie being written for Dick Van Dyke, who, Disney says, is itching to do more features and less television after his "Mary Poppins" experience. The film is "Lt. Robin Crusoe, U.S.N." and you can pretty muchtell by the title what it's about.

Van Dyke plays a modern naval aviator, marooned on a desert island, who goes through much of the same adventures Robinson Crusoe did. One major difference is that, instead of a Man Friday, he comes up with a Girl Wednesday-Tuesday, whose odd name, Disney says, is occasioned by the proximity of the international Date Line.

The Sunday night television series will continue over NBC, pretty much as it now stands—a happy mixture of nature and adventure films and an occasional cartoon show. Next season there will be a six-parter (and that's pretty close to being a series of its own) about two boys in the Civil War.

One thing Walt says he'd like to see improved is the color on his show. I told him I thought he had the best color on television, but he said it wasn't.

"I keep after my boys," he says, "because I think Bonanza's color is better than ours. We have to improve, that's all."

Disneyland? Much, much more is being planned. Walt says the improvements set for next year—the tenth anniversary of the huge amusement park— will cost more than the original cost of the place.

So Disney and his enterprises keep rolling along. Maybe it'll be a long time until another "Mary Poppins," but Walt's elves will keep on turning out treats.

Eight Nobel Prize Winners Set for Special

The eight distinguished 1964 winners of the world's highest award, the Nobel Prize — three Americans, two Russians, a German, a Frenchman and an English woman — will be seen on an hour-long ABC-TV special program, "The Nobel Prize Awards," on today at 7:30 p.m. EST, marking the first time the Nobel awards and ceremonies have been featured on an American television program.

Climaxed by the formal pomp of the award presentations at Stockholm's Concert Hall, the Nobel Prize program narrated and written by famed commentator Alistair Cooke will recount the story of how the awards were started in 1901 by a legacy from millionaire Alfred Nobel, show some of the outstanding Nobel winners over the years from Theodore Roosevelt to Marconi and Einstein and for the first time listen in on the secret deliberations of the learned scholars who choose the winners.

In-depth interviews with the 1964 Nobel laureates and graphic demonstrations of their accomplishments will spotlight the significance of the Nobel prizes prior to actual presentation of the awards in Stockholm by the King of Sweden and in Oslo by Norway's Parliament. Ceremonies, filmed by cameramen who have to wear white ties and tails along with the audience of 1,000, are held on Dec. 10, just 48 hours before airing of the Nobel TV program, being produced by Walter Schwimmer and sponsored by Zenith Radio Corp.

The two American winners in physics and medicine, Dr. Charles Townes of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Dr. Konrad Bloch of Harvard University, will receive their gold Nobel medals and diplomas from Sweden's King Gustav Adolph. Nobel Peace Prize awarded to the Rev. Martin Luther King of Atlanta will be presented the same day in Oslo. Dr. King will get $53,000 in Nobel prize money, while the two U.S. science winners will share the prize money in their fields with a German and two Russians.

Dr. Townes won half of the Nobel physics prize, two Russians getting the other half, for devising the maser and laser (short for microwave and light amplification of stimulated emission of radiation) which became a basic tool in developing the Telestar communication satellite which allows a million phone conversations to ride a light beam. The maser idea also was used to help surgeons perform delicate eye operations, to develop a beam of light that cuts through steel, and to measure the temperature of distant planets accurately. Co-winners with Dr. Townes were two Russian physicists, Dr. Aleksandr Prokhorov and Dr. Nikolay Basov, who will be interviewed by Alistair Cooke for the special ABC-TV Nobel program in the Soviet embassy in Stockholm. Dr. Townes will be interviewed in his M.I.T. laboratory in Cambridge and demonstrate some of his scientific work, his newest research being on a way to make sound waves destructive.

The other U.S. scientific winner, Dr. Bloch, will also be interviewed in his lab in Cambridge and explain his research on the nature of cholesterol, suspected cause of heart disease, which won him a Nobel prize in medicine along with Dr. Feodor Lynen of Germany. Dr. Lynen will be interviewed in his Munich home and lab on the Nobel television program. In the 63 years of Nobel awards, the U.S. has won the most prizes of any nation in medicine and physiology, a total of 28, while Germany has taken the award 10 times and Britain 15 times.

An English woman, Dr. Dorothy Crowfoot Hodgkin, who won the chemistry prize for X-ray studies of the molecular structure of vitamins and penicillin to allow their manufacture synthetically, will be interviewed in Ghana for the Nobel show. Now teaching at the University of Ghana, she is the third woman ever to win the Nobel Prize in chemistry, the others being Marie Curie and her daughter, Irene Joliot Curie, for their studies on radium and radiation.

The 1964 Nobel Prize winner in literature, famed French author and philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre, has refused to accept the $53,000 prize because he believes a writer should express himself only through "written words," but he will still be honored in the Nobel ceremonies in Stockholm. Host Alistair Cooke plans an interview with the French novelist-playwright in Paris to explain his rejection of the Nobel honor, given 11 times to Frenchmen compared to six each for the U.S. and Britain. The one Russian who has won the Nobel award in literature, Boris Pasternak, first accepted but then was compelled by Soviet officials to reject the prize.

Actually the first man to reject a Nobel prize was President Theodore Roosevelt, who won the peace prize for helping to settle the Russo-Japanese War and turned it down because he felt no one should be honored for making peace.

In narrating the Nobel television program, host Alistair Cooke will emphasize the human elements involved, seeking to capture the excitement of Nobel Week in Stockholm when many social functions are planned, and portray graphically in lay language the scientific achievements which have brought Nobel honors to the winners.

"While capturing the pomp and majesty of the Nobel spectacle at the ceremonies, we want essentially to picture the human drama of the greatest honor our civilization can bestow on the achievements of man," declares producer Walter Schwimmer. "The Nobel Prizes have always been front page news all over the civilized world, yet in the past the lay public has not been privileged truly to meet the Nobel laureates, to see and hear them intimately as personalities who reflect the touch of greatness.

"There have been newsreel shots of the Nobel Prizes seen before but no TV program has ever reported in depth on the background of the Nobel Prizes and the winners of the highest honor any man can achieve."

"What a natural for a TV show this seemed to me!" said Schwimmer. "Here are the greatest names in the world receiving the world's most important single prize. Why no attempt to capture this drama on television has been attempted before, I do not know, but I do realize now that we have worked on this program for some months, that it will be one of the really significant television programs of the year."

To produce the show Schwimmer had to get special permission from the Nobel Foundation to go into the private sessions at the Royal Academy of Science in Stockholm to film deliberations of professors choosing Nobel laureates. Working first through the Swedish embassy and then making a personal trip to Stockholm, Schwimmer finally won full cooperation for his projected program.

Alistair Cooke was chosen as writer, host and narrator for the show based on his similar role in the popular Omnibus program of some years back, which won an Emmy award. For Cooke, who is U.S. correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, the program represents "a thing of joy, a delight to do." Cooke in interviewing Dr. Bloch at Harvard was enjoying a homecoming since he was graduate student there 30 years ago. Born in Manchester, he came to the U.S. on a Yale fellowship and stayed to become a U.S. citizen in 1941. He has been chief U.S. correspondent for the Manchester Guardian since 1948 and a commentator on U.S. affairs for the British Broadcasting Co.

For the Nobel program, Cooke has conducted interviews in five different cities and wrote much of the commentary for the show.

THE NOBEL PRIZE — World's highest award, the Nobel Prize, will be presented to three Americans, two Russians, a German, a Englishwoman and a Frenchman in elaborate ceremonies in Stockholm and Oslo, which will be telecast in an ABC-TV hour-long special on Saturday, December 12. Gold Nobel medallion and $54,000 in tax-free prize money will be presented to winners on the program.

Music From Rigoletto Is Part of Our Heritage

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"Rigoletto," this week's Texaco opera broadcast from the Metropolitan is such a part of our musical heritage that many of us hum and whistle the melodies without even knowing they were written by a man called Verdi. It will be broadcast at noon today on KOA.

It was the maestro's sixteenth opera. "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata," "Aida," and those two towering peaks of operatic literature, "Otello," and "Falstaff" were yet to come.

No one knew the value of a first rate melody better than the man who composed "Rigoletto," and he did not allow the tenor to see the music for "La donna e mobile" until two days before the premiere in case all the gondoliers in Venice would be belting out the aria before opening night.

This is one of the reasons why musical snobs look down on the work. It sends everyone out of the theatre humming "the tunes," some of the best tuns ever written. Such an attitude is ridiculous. If "Rigoletto" had been an inferior opera it would not have remained in the repertoire for over a century playing to full houses whenever it was given.

The work is filled with music which goes swiftly and surely to the core of 'the dramatic situation and what drama, though melodrama, in its best sense, is a more accuarte description — immorality, deformity, assassination and a father's curse, it was strong stuff for 1851.

Take the Duke's gay, bouncing "Questa e quella" in act one. All women are the same to him providing they are pretty, and he has no intention of becoming permanently involved with any of them, he sings. Here is a perfect reflection of that wenching nobleman's character, surely a first cousin to Mozart's Don Giovanni?

In the final act he sings of the fickleness of women in "La donna e mobile," the pot calling the kettle black, as he makes a heavy play for the street-dancer Maddalena while the betrayed and broken-hearted Gilda listens outside the inn.

Yet before Verdi has finished with this melody, he has used it with telling dramatic effect and it has far transcended a mere show piece for the tenor.

Rigoletto has had what he believes to be the body of the Duke delivered to him in a sack by the murderer Sparafucile. Suddenly the voice of the Duke is heard off-stage gaily singing a snatch of "La donne e mobile." In a frenzy Rigoletto tears the sack open and finds his daughter, Gilds, stabbed and dying. It is a tremendously effective dramatic device.

What of Rigoletto himself? In act one he is a throughly nasty, malicious, cringing and even evil creature as he taunts the elderly nobleman, Monterone whose daughter has been ravished by the Duke and who is now about to be taken to his death.

But when Monterone curses him the character of Rigoletto changes before us. His self as-surance and impertinence crumbles until he is groveling before the courtiers imploring for the return of his daughter abducted by the Duke. The poor hunchback's agony of mind and spirit comes across to us vividly in his passionate aria, "Cortigiano, vil razza dannata," roughly — "vile and damned race of the courtiers."

Sometimes the writer feels that Gilda, the cause of all this contention, is something of a ninny. This is probably personal prejudice based on the Anglo Saxon belief that anyone who dies for love is a damned fool. It is probably the reason why Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatra" has always been more highly regarded on the Continent than in the poet's own country. The French and Italians have a different way of looking at such matters.

But this is a digression. Verdi's music for Gilda does portray the utter innocence and purity of her character, particularly in the aria, "Cara nome," dearest name, when she sings to the still night air of her love for the Duke whom she takes to be a young student.

Frequently the aria, with its brilliant coloratura passages, is used as a show piece for the soprano and it is presumably difficult for a soprano to resist showing off when she can get her teeth into something like this. It is a pity however that so many of them persist in singing high E's where the composer specifically wrote low E's. Moreover Verdi specified Gilda complete the aria off-stage on a low E which is infinitely more dramatic that the high E usually sung in full view of the audience. But many sopranos are more interested in applause than drama.

Verdi based the opera on Victor Hugo's drama, "Le Roi s'amuse," which had created a scandal when it was first produced in Paris in 1832.

Hugo in turn had based his play on Triboulet, the court jester of Francis the First of France, Francis himself and Blanche, one of his long and apparently interminable line of mistresses.

In the original draft of the opera's libretto written by Francesco Maria Piava, the names of Triboulet, Frances the First and Blanche were all retained. But Venice was still under Austrian rule and the authorities flatly refused to permit the performance of a work showing such dubious behaviour on the part of royalty.

For a time there was a dead lock and then assistance came from an utterly unexpected quarter, a man called Martello and the chief of police. He suggested the names of the characters be changed and leave the plot intact. He even created the names of the new characters.

Piave agreed and Verdii then wrote the music in 40 days, a remarkable feat but not a record. Rossini took 13 in which to write "The Barber of Seville."

So on March 11, 1851 "Rigoletto" was presented at the Teatro la Fenice in Venice and was an immediate success.

They're Fun Things but it Takes

TAIL SNOWSHOES—These aren't particularly short girls. The snowshoes are just tall. Holding a pair of the trail model is Karen Fleury, left, a Colorado College coed. Sharon Brown, who works in the Ft. Carson PX, sports catfish snowshoes. On the ground is a pair of bear paw snowshoes.

OUTSIDE DECORATIONS—Colorado College Mountain Club snowshoers flop along a scenic trail above North Cheyenne Canon. This slow way of locomotion allows them time to admire the view. There are hundreds of miles of trail suitable for snowshoeing in the Pikes Peak region, including 317 miles in Pike National Forest. This particular snowfall decorated the region a little more than a week ago.

Snowshoes were an Indian invention.

Canadian Indians made "bear paw" snowshoes by heating and bending a willow branch, tying the ends, then lacing the hoop with rawhide.

Iroquois Indian tribes improved on the bear paw shape. They introduced the long trail snowshoes.

Webster labels the snowshoe "A contrivance attached to the foot to enable the wearer to walk on deep snow without sinking in . . ."

Most skiers agree that snowshoes are contrivances.

"They're awfully slow," is a typical reaction to snowshoes from skiers.

Some persons mistakenly believe trail snowshoes are merely fat, webbed skis. However, you don't glide with snowshoes — unless you are out-of-control and heading downhill.

Local snowshoe addicts—who believe snowshoes are fun things, even though it takes a long time to get somewhere—include the Pikes Peak wing of the Colorado Mountain Club and the Colorado College Mountain Club.

Popularity of the sport is indicated by rising prices for used snowshoes in military surplus stores. New snowshoes may cost as much as $30, depending on the model.

There are three types of snowshoes: bear paw, trail and catfish. Each shape was built for a particular job. All snowshoes have three things in common: bindings, wooden frames and varnished rawhide webbing.

Bear paws are stubby and maneuverable. They were designed for rough, steep trails. The trail model, sometimes called trailmasters, have turned up tips. They were designed for speed on flat trails. Catfish snowshoes are a compromise between these models. They are fast and maneuverable.

Beginning snowshoers and greenhorns in the saddle have something in common. Both walk bowlegged.

Powder snow is easy to glide through with each step, slows shoers navigate about eight inches below the surface. The best powder snow is formed when "large flakes come down like big white horseflies," a snowshoer from Manitou Springs once said.

Wet snow works up through snowshoes meshes and slows progress. A thin crust on the snow, which must be broken through with eact step, slows a snowshoer to a crawl. Rocks must be avoided. They damage the webbing.

Some snowshoes are modified. The standard binding is a laced instep with a heel strap. Some persons add another strap to keep their heels down.

Snowshoes require a little maintenance. Rawhide lacings should be painted with spar varnish. This protects them from wear and soaking up water. Bindings should be liberally dubbed with dressing.

Some snowshoers learn, to their regret, that if the webbed things are dried too close to heat, the rawhide shrinks.

There are hundreds of miles of trail suitable for snowshoeing in the Pikes Peak region. In Pike National Forest there are 317 miles of trail.

For short trips there are trails in Palmer Park, the Garden of the Gods and the three-quarter Cutler Trail in North Cheyenne Canon.

A more ambitious route is the 2.2-mile trail to Jones Park. mile Cutler Trail in North Cheyenne Canon, off the Gold Camp Road.

The Municipal High Drive, closed in winter, usually has enough snow for snowshoeing. This starts at the top of North Cheyenne Canon, off the Gold Camp Road.
ends in Bear Creek Canyon after winding down past Captain Jack's, a collection of vandalized cabins.

The network of local trails are mapped in the "Pikes Peak Atlas" by Colorado College English Professor Robert M. Ormes.

Perhaps there are still a few of the snowshoeing trappers glamorized by novelist Jack London. In Colorado snowshoes are used by the Forest Service and water boards to measure the snowpack. Game wardens frequently use them when taking winter game censuses.

There's more snow on Pikes Peak this year than at this time last year. If more snow falls on the Peak before New Year's, the AdAmAn Club trail leaders will probably take to snowshoes to break trail for the rest of the holiday celebrants.

BINDING ADJUSTMENTS—Karen Fleury, a Colorado College coed, stops to adjust the bindings on her bear paw snowshoes. Binding are hinged on this model so it is possible to lift the heel. Watching Karen is John Auld

SINGLE FILE—Snowshoers from the Colorado College Mountain Club last weekend took a trip along the trail system above North Cheyenne Canon. Trails in the area include a two mile one to Jones Park and three-quarters mile stomp to the top of Mt. Cutler.

TRAIL WITH A VIEW—Snowshoers admire their aerial view of the Broadmoor Hotel from the ridge between North and South Cheyenne Canons. To their right is a free view of Seven Falls.

KRDO TV Launches Brand New Festival of Music Series Sunday

The "Festival of Music" is KRDO TV's newest addition to the Sunday afternoon schedule of television entertainment.

Featured in this engaging series of thirteen hour long programs will be the outstanding musical organizations from throughout the Channel 13 viewing area. Each has been allowed the greatest freedom to choose and to develop that particular musical facet it wishes to explore. For this reason a wide variety of musical moods will be presented; classical and semi-classical compositions, spirited jazz and popular music of the day are all within the scope of "Festival of Music."

Each of the thirteen programs has been designed especially for the television audience. To insure the finest fidelity in sound reproduction, the concert bands and orchestras will play in an auditorium of empty seats; this will allow for the proper placement of technical sound equipment which would otherwise interfere with the enjoyment of a live audience. The television cameras can also be moved about for greater and far more interesting picture angles.

The series commenced last Sunday with the musical presenation of the United States Air Force Academy Concert Band under the direction of Captain Herman Vincent. Featured in this initial presentation was a medley of popular television theme songs familar to most TV viewers. Also included in the program was a look at the so-called "good-guy" and "bad-guy" themes, a technique used by noted musical composers and arrangers in the motion picture industry t establish a particular mood.

In a later program recently taped at the Air Academy, this same organization will present a special abridged version of "Tribute to John F. Kennedy" that drew one of the largest audiences ever to assemble at Arnold Hall for a concert.

The initial telecast will be followed Sunday at 3:30 with the presentation of the Palmer High School Symphonic Band and "Little Concert Band." Viewers will be treated to lively renditions that range from the music of Richard Rogers and Henry Mancini to the Latin stylings of Lecuona's well know piece, "Malaguena." Such song titles as "Circus on Parade" from the Broadway musical "Jumbo", "Fantasia on the Dargason" (better known as "Greensleeves") and "Bil Bailey" will also be featured among the selections.

Following weeks will highlight the concert bands of Cheyenne Mountain and Harrison High School. The Fountain High and Junior High combined orchestra will be represested as well as the Wasson String Quartet, Brass Sextet, and String Choir. Musical groups from Pueblo and southern Colorado have also been invited to participate. Additionally, guest soloists will appear with the featured group.

Each of the music department heads has been invited to outline the progress that has been made through the years to developing local musicians compotent in many fields. The recent surge of interest is part of an overall program of amateur participation and an important step in establishing a firm base of artistic excellence in the future. Much of the interest can be attributed to the late President Kennedy's enthusiasm in the arts.

The "Festival of Music" is an integral look at the foundation of the great contribution made in the realm of community music. New repertory new artists, young talents: each Sunday afternoon, they will have kaleidoscope of musical moods, from Brahms to the Beatles, on Channel 13.

Symphony Band Sets Spring Tour

Western State College's Symphony Band will present 12 concerts in nine Colorado cities during its 1965 spring tour.

Featured concert of the tour will be an appearance Saturday, Feb. 20, at the 8 p.m. final concert of the Colorado Music Educators Association convening in Denver.

The Band will also present an evening concert in Cortez, a benefit for the Montezuma County High School Band to raise funds to transport that band to Indianapolis, Ind., in May, 1965, during the 500 mile auto race.

Concerts before high school assemblies have been scheduled: Feb. 11, Gunnison; Feb. 15, Craig (morning), Meeker (morning), Glenwood Springs (afternoon); Feb. 16, two programs before Grand Junction High School; Feb. 16, Cortez (night); Feb. 17, Cortez, two assembly programs (morning); Feb. 17, Mancos; Feb. 18, Durango.

The Band will return to Gunnison the evening of Feb. 18 and will travel to Denver the morning of Feb. 20.

'Love' Hits Big Jackpot

Joseph E. Levine's "Where Love Has Gone" grossed a torrid $316,702 through Sunday at 21 New York theatres, making it one of the top "Showcase" successes of recent months. The smash total covers seven full days at Loew's Capitol and the Festival in Manhattan and six and a half days at the 19 other houses, which started their showings of "Where Love Has Gone" at 5 p.m. Election Day Eve.

Susan Hayward, Bette Davis, Michael Connors and Joey Heatherton star in the Paramount Pictures release. Edward Dmytryk directed from John Michael Hayes' screenplay, based on the best-seller by Harold Robbins.

Reverse Skater

Former world champion skater Donald Jackson, featured on ABC-TV's hour-long, holiday special. "Wintnerland On Ice," performs his brilliant five-minute solo in reverse direction to most skaters — Don is left-handed.

SPECIAL FILM—The American GI Forum of Colorado Springs will present a special Mexican film, "Los Laureles," Thursday at the Fine Arts Center. The film stars Demetrio Gonzalez and Elvira Quintana. Performances are scheduled for 7:30 and 9 p.m.

ARTS CHRONICLE by John Fetler

Tyree Writes About Cosmos for Christmas

COSMOS, CHRONUS AND THE BRIEF CANDLE — Ruth and Woodson Tyree have sent us the following Christmas greeting, in the form of a poem:

1. Who has not taken a clock apart . . . Flipped its mainspring across the room . . . And ended with a bowl of cog wheels . . . But could not find TIME anywhere?

2. Chronus grinds the treadmills of days . . . As Earth's astronauts orbit . . . The unconquerable SUN, these countless centuries . . . And disappear into timeless time . . . .

3. Science is only a stone hatchet . . . A boomerang or a bow, . . . a teapot, or a watt, or an apple . . . Falling out of Eden into knowledge from . . . A key on the tail of a kite, to . . . Lightning and flame and endless countdowns . . . Belching into space, prickly pear needles . . . Against the hide of that ancient dinosaur, Cosmos . . .

4. There is no computer that adds faster than death, . . . And no anti missile missile, missile, . . . Other than the Spirit of something shaped like . . . A heart.

COLLEGE MOZART — A performance of the Grand Mass in C Minor by Mozart was given an impressive presentation by the Colorado College choir last Sunday afternoon at Shove chapel, with Donald P. Jenkins as conductor. Mozart prelude was played by Dr. J. Julius Baird.

The event was mostly a college effort, with some augmentation by community talent. osephine Estill was the first soprano soloist, performing with her usual grand vocal quality. Georgia Holtorf had the second soprano role; Carol Parsons was the mezzo soprano; Rex Andrews was the tenor, and James Clamp was the bass.

In addition there was an orchestra, composed to a large extent of college personnel.

The chorus was a massed chorus, and the excellent training was in good evidence, although the vocal balance was to some extent thin ninn the lower ranges, which cannot be helped with student choirs, the only remedy being that of adding mature men's voices, which is important in such works where greater, deeper, richer vocal power is required.

Even so, Jenkins produced good dramatic effects, although he conducted Mozart in what may be called a "classical" technique, emphasizing more the smoothness of performance rather than the qualities of rhythm and accents. He emphasized fine dynamics.

Fortunately, Jenkins arranged his chorus in front of the choir loft, instead of in it. We listened to the music from all the possible vantage points of the chapel, in the back balcony, on the floor, and on the sides, and there is no doubt that this arrangement, although it crowded the performers considerable, is of greater advantage than leaving them in the sound - deadening choir loft behind the chancel.

KEN GOEHRING — A one-man show of paintings by Ken Goehring of Colorado Springs is being currently featured at the Colorado Springs National Bank, sponsored by Al Wynne, director of the New Art-Crafts school of the Black Forest.

The exhibit shows that Goehring has continued his development in the abstract field into starker shapes and colors. The paintings in this exhibit all show a thorough-going style, whether they are the smaller paintings on the north wall of the main office, or the large paintings on the south wall, and in other portions of the lobby. Goehring, who has painted in a succession of styles, uses bolder design and bolder colors, so that the design and colors have a stronger impact on the viewer.

AL WYNNE EXHIBIT — A one-man show of paintings by Al Wynne, who is the director of the New Art-Crafts school in the Black Forest, is currently on view at the Southern Colorado State College Student Center. The show opened Dec. 1.

ART GUILD — The Colorado Springs Art Guild has again elected perennially popular Earle Gardner as its new president. First vice president is Helen K. Haughton; second vice president is Marian DeNoya; treasurer is David Roberts; assistant treasurer is Marion Steavenson; recording secretary is Ethel S. Brown and corresponding secretary is Nell McGinnis.

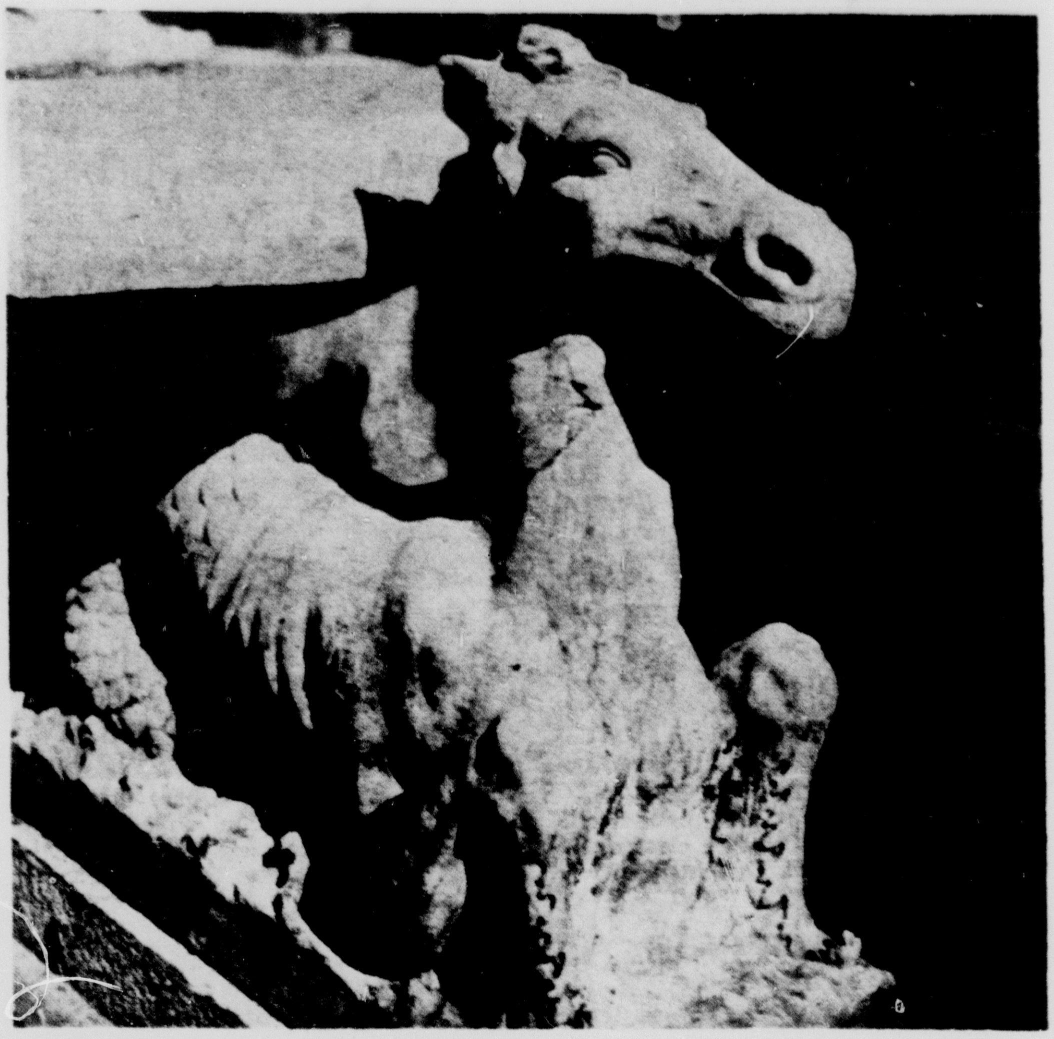
PUEBLO SHOW SUCCESS — Jeanette Ward of the Air Guild reports that the Pueblo "Own Your Own" art show was a resounding success, with sales amounting to some $2,900. Among those who participated in hte Pueblo show were the following Colorado Springs artists: Pat Green, Alyda Powell, Helen K. Haughton, Sydell Sellman, Nell McGinnis, Dorothy Young, Jeanne LaMarr, Louise Geer, Marian DeNoya, Dorothy Schafer, Donna Rosser and Jeanette C. Ward.

SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED — For the 15th year, the Kscioszko Foundation of New York is offering a $1,000 Chopin scholarship award to highly talented pianists aiming at concert careers. More information may be obtained from the foundation at 15 East 65th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

COMPOSITION EXPERIMENT — Edgar R. Summerlin, composer and saxophonist, will conduct experiments in the composition of contemporary music and its performance during the current academic year at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N.Y., under a grant made to the college by Broadcast Music, Inc. Two large projects are involved. 1. A large-scale oratorio for chorus and jazz group. 2. A complete vocal service for chorus and organ. Summerlin will also compose two groups of hymns, using jazz groups, chorus and organ. This is a very interesting experiment. Previous experiments have been made with church services and "masses" in the jazz idiom, but so far nothing which has gained great popularity. It stands to reason that the use of a jazz combo offers, in a way, easier opportunities for church oratorio performance, instead of having to deal with the financial difficulties of a large orchestra.

FIEDLER ON MUSIC — "There is such damn snobbery in music, you know," says Arthur Fiedler, white - haired elegantly tailored conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, who is turning 70 one of these days, "some people go on forever listening to baroque music. I con't see how they can, as great as some of it is. There isn't very much variety in rhythm and tonality. And jazz snobs can be just as bad, listening only to jazz. I happen to agree with Rossini, a very smart man, that all music is good except the boring kind."

Fiedler knows whereof he talks. Earlier this year, Fiedler went out on a limb with the Beatles. He made an orchestral arrangement of their song, "I Want to Hold Your Hand" and conducted it wearing a Beatle wig. He didn't hang himself; he was a smash hit. Says he: "I've been getting calls all over the country to come and conduct it. The Pops recorded it and they tell me it's the first time a 45 r.p.m. record by an orchestra has reached the 100 best sellers in this country."



IT'S ALL AROUND—Art is where you find it and it's all around if you look. Staff Photographer Jerry Ryden found this weather-beaten, stylized horse supporting the fountain at the entrance to the Broadmoor Hotel.

National Forests Are Natural Grounds for Skiers Winter Fun

Winter is just around the corner, and the 166 ski areas on National Forest land are ready once again to greet the millions of sports enthusiasts who turn to the National Forests for winter fun. Seven and one-half million visits were made to the National Forests last year for some of the best skiing, tobogganing, snowshoeing, dog-sled racing, sleigh riding, and ice skating in the country.

"Everything for everyone" — this impossible promise becomes a reality for skiers who turn to the winter playgrounds of the National Forests for a ski area which meets their every requirement. Colorado, better known to skiers as "Ski Country U. S. A.," offers low ranges on which the novice can snowplow his way down a gentle slope as well as magnificent above-timberline bowls where even the pro can find a challenge worthy of his skill. The northern Rocky Mountains in Idaho, the home of the first big ski areas, and the Rockies in Montana and the Wasatch Range in Utah have been called the "land of the deep powder snow."

In the Southwest, a skier may rise in the morning to clear sunny skies and green grass and drive an hour out of the city up a canyon to snow in the mountains for a day of skiing. It is not unusual for the radio announcer to give the lowest elevation at which snow may be found on a particular day.

In southern California, as in several other areas, artificial snow is now being used to supplement the natural snowfall and extend the skiing season. In the cold mountain area of New England, the "good hard pack," as the snow is sometimes called, remains good for skiing as late as May 1.

Skiers in the Lake States enjoy god powder snow, and there is no danger of avalanche in this cold hilly country, very different in terrain from the rugged mountain country of the Pacific Northwest. Some of the heaviest snowfalls in the country are found in the Pacific Northwest, where it is normal to have 10 feet of snow or more on the ground at one time. There is year-round skiing on Mt. Baker and Mt. Hood.

More than 80 per cent of the major ski areas in the West are located entirely or partially on National Forest land. They are operated by private concessioners are required to con- a forest-use permit from the Forest Service. These concessioners are required to construct and operate their areas in accordance with Forest Service safety requirements.

A symbol of safety on National Forest ski slopes are the Forest Service Snow Rangers in their green parkas and black ski pants. Often members of the National Ski Patrol, themselves, the Snow Rangers perform a variety of jobs as needed, from checking lift facilities—often by taking the first ride up in the morning—and the condition of the snow to checking sanitation conditions. The Snow Ranger must see that first aid and toboggans are readily available to skiers. Active in avalanche control since 1937, the Rangers cooperate with the ski area operators, the National Ski Patrol men, and others to stabalize the snow and in some instances to enforce closure during critical periods.

The Forest Service is concerned not only with the safety of skiers but also with getting information to them about the slopes. In Salt Lake City, Utah, for instance, a Ranger gives a 7 a.m. daily radio broadcast of snow conditions at all surrounding ski areas. The forest Service in Colorado works with the local area operators in preparing a series of up-to-date maps of ski areas, and Forest Service Regions publish ski guides giving detailed information about each area.

The Forest Service also furnishes information and technical assistance to operators in construction and maintenance of ski exhibits and trail map boards on which the ski trails are routed and their degree of difficulty keyed in at the bottom. Daily ski conditions are noted. A series of standard national ski area signs has recently been cooperatively devised and adopted by the Forest Service and 4 national ski associations. The signs, showing the difficulty of the ski run as well as other pertinent information, have already been introduced into several ski areas and will be used on all ski areas on the National Forests. They should become a part of the visual vocabulary of every skier and would-be skier.

In these many ways, the Forest Service is continually working for the enjoyment and safety of skiers all over the nation. "Skiing", a Forest Service publication containing a list of the ski areas located on National Forests and the address of each Forest Supervisor who can provide more information about a specific area, may be obtained for 15 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Scale Model

The Transport Museum in Nuremburg has recently unveiled a new scale model of the famous Black Forest Railway. The 400 sq. ft. miniature represents the section between Hornberg and Sommergau, which features the largest number of bends, turnsn, tunnels and steep grades in Germany. The model is supplemented by a large wall map equipped with lights that show the positions of trains using the network of 36 tunnels and hairpin curves.

Hollywood Movie Is Dream Come True for Frenchman

BY DICK KLEINER

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — Alain Delon lined up with the electricans and grips and gaffers for his meal. But he didn't eat with them. He took his tray back to his trailer.

"You will excuse me," he said, "but I cannot eat a meal with a glass of milk. I am a Frenchman. I must have some wine."

He poured a cup of red wine. Then he pulled a big, bone-handled knife out of his pocket, unfolded it and began to eat.

"You cannot know," he said, "what it means to me to be here, making this picture, my first picture in America. You see me sitting here and it seems easy. But 10 years of hard work are behind me.

"This is the dram for me. I have been a big star in Europe, and maybe a few people know me here. But to be an international star you have to be in a U. S. picture. The distribution of U. S. pictures is so big that they can make a person known around the world in one or two pictures. Look at Steve McQueen, at Peter O'Toole, at Ann-Margaret."

DELON IS A DARK-HAIRED, medium-tall and devastatingly handsome man with a quick and easy charm. He is liked by everyone on the set.

He has entered into the crew's kidding — his particular passion is to try and get somebody to try his trick, pepper-flavored chewing gum. He learned to speak English only two months ago, but now is fluent, with very few stumbles.

Once in a while, there is a word he cannot translate. There is, for example, the French word "but." He had considerable trouble trying to explain it to me. Later, in a French-English dictionary, I found it translated as "mark; aim; purpose."

"My 'but'," he was saying, "was always to come here and work. 'But' is not ambition, it is something more. And it is not a goal, but like that. Anyhow I have achieved my 'but'."

He wiped his knife on a piece of bread and folded it and put it away. Then he pured a little "digestif" — brandy — and sipped it slowly.

But the Owners Sometimes Wonder

They Were Leashed to Ten Reluctant Canine Pupils

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Ten persons leashed to ten dogs lined the room above the fire station at 29th and West Colorado Avenue. The persons stood quietly, obediently awaiting directions from the instructor.

Ray Nordstrom, AKC obedience judge and trainer, is conducting a series of classes on dog obedience. The persons who signed up for the classes were enthusiastic about teaching their dogs to behave properly. The dogs, likewise, were enthusiastic, although not along the same lines, perhaps.

Among the dogs present during the second lesson of the series were a drowsy three-month-old Saint Bernard, a Dalmatian, a Poodle, three German Shepherds, an affectionate Weimaraner, a resigned Cocker Spaniel and a couple of animals from less definite origins.

Nordstrom told the owners to line their dogs up along the rubber floor mat lining the room and to tell their dogs to sit. Obediently the owners gave the hand and voice signals. Less obediently, the dogs assumed their positions, facing every feasible direction. A moment of struggle then quiet settled over the room. Suddenly a piercing cry broke the silence.

"Stormy, sit!" a distraught owner cried. "Sit!" "Stoormy!"

Stormy, the Weimaraner, had leaped up placing both paws squarely on the shoulders of his "master," a woman of slight stature. They stood there for a long moment, eye-to-eye. A sudden lick across the mouth and nose, a giggle and all discipline vanished. Nordstrom, with a stronger voice and arm, soon had Stormy sitting quietly again.

After the sitting was accomplished, Nordstrom, told the owners that he wanted them, on his command, to tell their dogs to heel and to parade around the room in a line. A moment of coaxing, and a couple of tugs brought Stormy back to all fours and the parade began in fine order.

Suddenly there arose from the dogs a roaring commotion. Most of them turned toward the door. In walked a most attractive toy poodle. Nordstrom ordered the parade to continue, shouting over the din, and the tiny poodle joined ranks. But with each step she caused a greater commotion. The dog, whose name was Susie, obeyed beautifully, prancing pertly with her head high, oblivious to the fuss she was causing. It seems Susie, the vamp, was in heat.

Gradually the other dogs, encouraged by the voice commands and hands heavy on their collars, relented and got back to business.

It was obvious, however, that there would be little difficulty with the group when it came to teaching them to speak. Several times, an owner's loud, curt command was answered with a bark before it was carried out.

Often, too, the dogs, accidentally, no doubt, managed to take quick steps about their masters' legs leaving the people trussed up like so many Christmas packages.

The next step was the command to lie down. Susie, very close to the ground when she was standing, always appeared to obey quickly; however, it was difficult to be certain.

Stormy, on the other hand, obviously felt it was beneath his station to lie down and he simply refused. His master could convince him to lie down only one end at a time. When his hind quarters were on the floor, his front was up and vice-versa. Several minutes of struggling left him unconvinced and his owner winded and wiping sweat from her forehead. It began to look as if Stormy's master would be down before he was.

Again Nordstrom, with his trained hand and voice, intervened. Stormy put up a valiant defense, but finally was subdued. Of course, he did not simply lie down—he collapsed, stretching each extremity as far as he could. He closely resembled a great bear rug.

Meanwhile, the drowsy Saint Bernard had proved to be the master of the "Lie Down" command. On his feet, he shuffled along willingly enough, but he obviously delighted in relaxing—totally.

One of the gentlemen with a playful German Shepherd, was encountering his own difficulties The dog nipped at him playfully. Although a cute gesture when he was a tiny puppy, the dog and his teeth both and grown beyond it. His hand scratched, the man stopped a few seconds to push his glasses back up to the bridge of his nose and slipped out a handkerchief to wipe his brow. Nordstrom again handled the situation with finesse. He had worked with the dog for only a few minutes when the pup began to calm down and stopped snapping.

Halfway through the hour-long session the dogs obviously were ready to stop. The owners were showing signs of fatigue also. It was than that Nordstrom, with the patience of Job, began calling commands. Both master and dogs, worn by the fight, obeyed willingly. It was then obvious, for the first time, that the dogs understood exactly what they were supposed to be doing. Several of the masters looked amazd, then their eyes narrowed and they clenched their teeth, determined to win.

That was the second lesson. Since then the people in the class have developed more assurance and experience and the dogs show the progress of their work at home and in the class.

LIKE A LAMB—This pup came through the door like a lion at the beginning of the class period, but appears to have lost much of his energy in the closing moments. In like a lion, out like a lamb, just like March in Colorado Springs.

(Gazette Telegraph Photo)

TIRED BEFORE I CAME — This three-month-old Saint Bernard is one of the most obedient dogs at the school. Commanded to lie down, he collapses, and appears exhausted. Instructed to heel, he struggles to his feet looking offended and pads along almost indifferently. He seldom fights a command, perhaps because he's just too tired.

Lewis Stars In 'Orderly' At Ute Soon

Jerry Lewis has finally made a very, very funny movie, or at least that was the comment from the patrons who were treated to a sneak preview of his newest film, "Disorderly Orderly" at the Ute Theatre last week. Not in several months has a comedy 'caved' in the roof from laughter.

In Jerry's new comedy, "Disorderly Orderly" opening Thursday at the Ue Theare, he is a hospital ward orderly who can only get into trouble, and frankly, the only patients who enjoy the deeds of Jerry are the patrons watching the movie. Jerry makes a jumbled mess of nearly every service a hospital attempts to give.

Filmed in Technicolor with a host of supporting actors and actresses, the films list of many hilarious scenes is reminiscent of the 'chase' in the Cinerama film, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" which leaves everyone limp from laughter.

A special short subject has also been booked with "Disorderly Orderly," the Academy Award "Best Live Action Short Subject," "An Occurance at Owl Creek Bridge." Inspired by Ambrose Bierc's novels, the short deals with an incident of the Civil War. It's a drama which holds you spellbound right to the very last second.

WSC Band Set to Perform During 1965 World's Fair

It is now official that the Western State College Sumphony Band will perform at the 1965 New York World's Fair.

Director Robert Hawkins has been negotiating with World's Fair officials for several weeks working out details for the appearance of the WSC Band in New York. Approval of the trip has been given by the Associated Students and college administration.

The invitation came from Robert Moses, president of the N.Y. World's Fair Corporation. Details have been confirmed through Marshall T. Lang, director of special events, and call for the WSC Band of 80 pieces to present six hour long concerts.

The concerts are scheduled Oct. 8, 9 and 10, 1965, at 2:30 and 4 p.m. each day in the Tiparillo Band Pavilion.

Dr. Hawkins reports tentative plans call for the WSC Band to leave Gunnison about Oct. 2, to play additional concerts en route, probably in Chicago, Detroit and Washington, D.C. and to return to Gunnison approximately Oct. 16 or 17.

Negotiations are underway now for transportation, the additional appearances en route, housing in New York, and the many other details involved.

"The dates work out particularly well," Dr. Hawkins states, "for the World's Fair concerts fall on Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Band members will have a fine opportunity to visit many points of interest in New York City."

Maggie and Jo Combine Family Life With Career

"After all," one French legislator said before the French assembly which was debating whether women should be entitled to vote, "There really isn't much difference between men and women anyway!"

The all male assembly rose en masse and chanted:

"Vive La difference!"

We considered this when we decided to study women in Colorado Springs radio. My wife Jackie did the interviewing and I did the writing.

Jo Anne Rowe and Maggie Houston both displayed one quality that a woman must have in order to excell in radio. . . the ability for hard work.

Both women personalities combine a career with a family and Maggie Houston in addition to "taking care of the kids" does all her own sewing, knitting, gardening, cooking, sings in the church choir, makes speeches, attends two PTA meetings, sells, services, and personally goes over all her merchandise advertised, does two on-the-air shows a day, and grants interviews to columnists.

Jo Ann Rowe, now celebrating the 10th year of her popular audience participation show "Party Line" is also an active homemaker as well as radio lady about town. Higher education also seems to have helped both Maggie and Jo Anne who have college degrees. Maggie, daughter of a medical missionary, graduated from Colorado College with majors in chemistry and zoology. Jo Anne who attended Colorado College for two years graduated from Tulsa with majors in English and Psychology.

When asked how they got started in the exciting business of broadcasting. . .Jo Ann Rowe said that she received her first exposure at Steele Grade School . . .performing readings over KVOR. She now works for KSSS from 9:25 to 11:30 a.m. each week day. Maggie Houston said that her first radio show was a matter of being at the right place at the right time. She was selling for KVOR and the manager suggested that she might do a show. The next day she was on the air.

As for the qualities considered most important for radio women. . .Maggie listed: Perseverence, hard work, and genuineness while Jo Ann mentioned desire, personality, and hard, hard work.

Sue Barton, Mrs. Bill Cook, and Jackie Edmonds — to name few — might also be in any list of women in Pikes Peak radio. We'll make the prediction that in the future there will even be more.

'Yum Yum' Is Set to Open At Aircadia

Under the Yum Yum Tree," film version of producer Frederck Brisson's Broadway comedy hit which David Swift directed for Columbia Pictures release, opens at the Aircadia Theatre today. Reportedly witty, urbane and delightfully amour, teeming with fast and funny situations, "Under the Yum Yum Tree" stars Jack Lemmon, Carol Lynley, Dean Jones, Edie Adams, Imogene Coca, Paul Lynde and Robert Lansing.

Lemmon plays a landlord who rents apartments only to pretty girls, and then spends his time in unabashed romantic pursuit. Mi Lynley and Dean Jone are Miss Lynley and Dean Jones are young college student who attempt an experiment in premarital "platonic" togetherness, in one of Lemmon's apartments. Miss Adams. Carol's aunt and a former resident of the apartment, is unhappily aware of the possible consequences of the youngsters' experiment . . . and of Lemmon's single-minded devotion to single blessedness with as many girls as possible. Imogene Coca makes her feature film debut as Lemmon's housekeeper, as strongly disapproving of her employer's amorous antics as Paul Lynde, her screen husband, admires them.

Charlton Heston is starred in the second feature, "Diamondhead." Starting Wednesday, Vincent Price, Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff are starred in "Commedy of Horrosr." Vincent Price is also started in the second feature, "The Haunted Castle."

Dictionary of Opera Provides Entertainment

THE CONCISE OXFORD DICTIONARY OF OPERA — Oxford University Press — $6.50 — Reviewed by Dick Moore — Opera lovers should be delighted with the new, hard cover addition to the range of Oxford dictionaries; namely "The Concise Oxford Dictionary of Opera." The volume meets the need of the ordinary opera-goer or serious student, offering more than 3,000 entries of ample, concise information concerning composers, conductors, librettists, etc.

This handy volume, uniform in format with "The Concise Oxford Dictionary of Music," also covers such useful information as opera synopses, details of first performances, characters in operas, first lines of better known arias plus explanations of technical terms and opera terminology.

Authored by Harold Rosenthal, formerly the official archivist at covent Garden, London, now editor of the Publication "Opera," and John Warrack, formerly associate editor of opera, now opera critic at the London Sunday Telegraph, the edition is available at either local book stores or at the Oxford University Press, 417 5th Ave., New York, N. Y.

Apart from the many operatic reference books that exist, this volume places special emphasis on the entire operatic field, allowing the importance of the subjects to determine the space allotments.

In the authors' words: "Obviously in a volume of this nature more space will be given to Menotti than to Beethoven; by this token we have not on the whole felt bound to use space as a criterion of worth but allowed subjects to find their own length."

The authors reported further on three categories of entry upon which they placed special weight. "We have compiled entries under most countries in the world to show the spread and development of opera from Italy. Special emphasis has been laid on the growth of opera in Eastern Europe, since this is a little-known process; we have not retold the more familiar story of its growth in Italy or Germany in proportionately greater detail, though the reader will find under these and all countries cross-references to the most important operatic centers where local history is given.

"What we have in mind is to provide the ordinary operagoer with a concise but comprehensive work of reference—and perhaps also of some entertainment," they added.

This writer certainly found entertainment in personal remembrances of artists and places described in the volume. Reading of the San Carlo opera house in Naples, Italy, brought back an image of its beautiful interior, recollections of many of the artists who performed there during World War II, and also a rememebrance of the tarry smell of the shipping harbor adjacent to the opera house.

Ferruccio Tagliavnin, on his orerFu ccio Tagliavnin, on his way to establishing himself during the war years as one of th world's great tenors, was then singing in a small theater near the great Naples opera house. The small partially bombed-out building could not contain his great lyric voice as it swelled to meet the demands of Puccini's music.

Tagliavini's story is well and concisely told the volume and that also of Lina Pagliughi, Italian soprano who sang Lucia de Lammermoor in a small theater in Milan shortly after the war's end. The story of her pure, limpid voice and excellent technique is well noted here.

The fine descriptions of these artists and countless more to be found in the volume can provide the opera buff with numerous hours of pleasure and perhaps remembrances of events long past.

From the Broadmoor, we received the following review:

FARE THEE WELL — A Backward Look at Two Centuries of Historic American Hostelries, Fashionable Spas & Seaside Resorts — By Leslie Dorsey & Janice Devine — Crown, $10.

Here is a book that opens the lid on a treasure chest full of wondrous tales and nostalgic recollections concerning the distinguished establishments that offered accommodations to three centuries of traveling Americans. ". . .from the candlelit ordinary of Colonial days to the plush palace hotels of the 20th century."

Tracing the earliest beginnings of inns in this country, the book brings the reader past such interesting "firsts" as the Long Room and communal sleeping, the first curb service, and through the transition from kerosene lamps to gas lamps to eectrlicity.

Three Colorado hotels are spotlighted in the book, The Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, The Brown Palace in Denver and the Hotel de Paris in Georgetown.

The section on The Broadmoor is illustrated with pictures of Count James Pourtales and the casino he built on the rim of the lake where the hotel now stands. Pictures of Charles Tutt, Sr. and Spencer Penrose in Cripple Creek where they made the fortune that built The Broadmoor, and early day sketches of the hotel's main dining room and the lake terrace are shown as well as Maxfield Parish's famous painting of the hotel in which he exercised artistic license to put the lake in front of the hotel.

The book is of special interest to Colorado Springs because its co-author Leslie Dorsey is well known here. A designer of hotel and restaurant interios he decorated the principal public rooms of The Broadmoor and revealed his expert knowledge of by-gone eras in the elegant Edwardian decor of the Penrose Room and the authentic Golden Bee English Pub in the Broadmoor International Center.

He is also remembered for the charming and elaborately detailed Victorian Christmas exhibition he arranged in the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center a few seasons back.

Rocky Mountain's First Ranger Recalls Opening

R. T. "Dixie" MacCracken, first ranger in the Rocky Mountain National Park, began his work with a hatband and a revolver in July, 1915, according to an interview with MacCracken, of Estes Park, Colorado with C. C. Harris, formerly assistant naturalist of the Rocky Mountain National Park.

The first office for the Park, located where the Estes Park Hardware Store is now located, was opened on July 10, 1915. Trowbridge was the first supervisor, and MacCracken, with Rangers Frank Koenig, Howard Beeler, and Reed Higby served the Park Service.

The ranger's annual salary in those days was $900 per year, plus a cabin. Each man had to furnish his own horses. "Dixie" was assigned the Mill Creek Ranger Station. From there he patroled the Park, posted signs, worked on trails, counted game, and even did the monthly reports for the Supervisor. "Dixie would walk over to Grand Lake and back on Sundays, just for something to do.

"Dixie's" parents had homesteaded in the park area in 1902, but they were in Washinton, D.C., when he was born. He was working for the George A. Fuller Construction Company, in Washington, D.C., when the Rocky Mountain National Park was formed. Clifford Pinchot, the head of the National Forest Service at the time, was instrumental in his appointment as the first ranger in Rocky Mountain National Park.

The rangers had to fight fires, too, for it was in the fall of 1915 that they fought the Hidden Valley fire to a standstill. Then there were "lost" hikers. Dr. R. T. Samson was lost on a trip from Grand Lake across Flattop into the Odessa Country. His body is buried on the Fern Lake Trail. It was better to have a guide in the Rockies in those days. Clem Yore, Chicago newspaperman, the poet laureate of Colorado, made his first trip across the Divide in the wintertime with Shep Husted as his guide. The rangers placed cairns on the Flattop Trail after this episode, white at the bottom, black at the top, to aid the hikers and wilderness men.

The rangers strung a telephone line across Flattop from the Jack Woods Camp to Grand Lake, placing the poles, twenty to twenty-five feet high, firmly in the ground. The wind blew the insulators, swinging high on the wire. The rangers patroled the line on snowshoes. They placed trout in the lakes, transporting them from the Fish Hatchery in Estes Park, built with private funds, to the lakes, first in carts and then by horseback.

L. C. Way, hailing from the Grand Canyon, was the first Superintendent of the Rocky Mountain National Park. He and his wife arrived in the village in a Stanley Steamer, bouncing along on the pneumatic tires, filled with 70 pounds of pressure.

A ranger had to be close to animals, in his lonely vigils in the hills. "Dixie's" horse was Tinker Bell, and she carried "Dixie" on many trips over to Squeaky Bob's at Phantom Valley, over to Pingree Park, and from Glen Haven, by the Deserted Village, to Iceberg Lake, the only lake in the Park open only in August. There was his dog, Irie, who was half-coyote and half-shepherd. There were deer, elk, bear, coyotte. The rangers knew the wild ones as well as the domesticated animals.

In the World War I years, Clifford Pinchot asked "Dixie" to go to France to scale timber in the French Pyrenees, with the wood being sent to the boatdocks at Bordeaux. He was in the SOS, the Services of Supply.

Coming home from the war, "Dixie" returned to his duties in the Rocky Mountain National Park. "Dixie" not only was a hardy ranger, but also a writer, and of his many pieces on the Park, "Winter Fun Near Estes Park," was a classic. In the early days, there were many special promotions to encourage visitors to enjoy the Park.

On one occasion, a promotion-minded journalist conceived the idea of creating a leopard-skinned covered beauty, who darted along the paths and through the trees in the Park, eating berries and fish, and living a solitary life. It was "Dixie's" task to take her clothes to her every other day or so in order that she might dress and hike to Long's Peak Inn, Hews-Kirkwood Inn, or one of the other hostelries for a respite from her leopark-skin living. This kind of promotion of the park was more than Ranger MacCracken could stomach, so he resigned from the service.

In the golden year of 1965, the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Rocky Mountain National Park, it is these kind of "golden" memories that make the Park live in the minds of thousands of men and women who have known it most intimately.

CU to Hold Three Nature Seminars

The University of Colorado next summer will help provide instruction for nature seminars at Rocky Mountain National Park.

The three week - long seminars, designed for school teachers and amateur naturalists are sponsored by the University's Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research and the Extension Division, and by the Rocky Mountain Nature Association, the Colorado State Department of education and the Estes Park Chamber of Commerce.

The first session will be on field taxonomy — classification of plants — and will be held June 28 through July 3. The second, on alpine tundra ecology, is scheduled July 5 - 10. The third, on mountain ecology, will be July 12 to 17. Ecology is a branch of biology dealing with the relationship of living things to their environment.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Bettie Willard Scott-Williams, research associate at the Arctic and Alpine Institute, and Mrs. Ruth Ashton Nelson, Colorado Springs botany teacher and author.

Fees are $25 per week, $45 for two weeks and $65 for three weeks. Each session is limited to 25 persons.

Interested persons may write the executive director of the Rocky Mountain Nature Association, P.O. Box 147, Estes Park, for further information.

Newley Back For More

NEW YORK (AP) — Anthony Newley, who scored a major triumph here as the author-star of "Stop the World-I Want to Get Off," returns this season another multiple workout.

He will appear in "The Roar of the Greasepaint," another creative collaboration with Leslie Bricusse, and also direct. The show is scheduled for February premiere.

JUST LIKE THE MOVIES—Just prior to to the first local screening of Columbia Pictures "Fail Safe" at Colorado Springs Chief Theatre here, members of the Westland Theatres Corporation visited the North American Air Defense Command combat operations center here. "Fail Safe," story of a Strategic Air Command systems failure which results in the near triggering of an atomic war, mentions the local NORAD Canadian-United States areospace headquarters prominently during the action. While at NORAD the motion picture officials and theatre managers received an explanation of the many checks and double checks within the nation's strategic and defensive systems which make the accidental start of an atomic war virtually impossible. Left to right: Col. R. T. Greigg of the NORAD staff; John Finn, Sam Dare Mark Sheridan and Bruce Marshall, all Denver representatives of the major U.S. motion picture concerns; U.S. Navy Capt. Richard F. Cyr, NORAD combat operations center senior controller on duty at the time of the tour; and Larry Jensen, manager of the Colorado Springs Chief Theatre.

Program Launched to Aid Resident Pro Theatres

An expanded program to strengthen the standards of resident professional theatres in America was announced today by Oliver Rea, President of the Theatre Communications Group, Inc. (TCG), under the provision of a five-year grant from the Ford Foundation in the amount of $795,000.

The Theatre Communications Group began in 1961 as a four-year experiemental project with the Carnegie Institute of Technology serving as fiscal administrator and with an initial membership of twenty-four resident theatres and university theatre departments. The project was designed to facilitate communication of threatre personnel and to enable the membership group to study each others' methods, with the ultimate aim of making the theatre more professional in training and production.

Rea, in commenting on the TCG's expansion, said, "The active response of theatre leaders across the country to TCG's programs has clearly demonstrated that there is a continuing need for an organization designed to bring resident professional theatres into direct communication with one another. The experience of the past four years has prompted TCG to incorporate itself as an autonomous nonprofit organization which will no longer work within a membership structure but concentrate its facilities on particular resident professional theatres seeking TCG assistance."

The policies of TCG are guided by a Board of Directors drawn from the theatre profession itself and consisting of the following individuals: Rea, Managing Director of the Minnesota Theatre Company (Tyrone Guthrie Theatre), as president; Mrs. Zelda Fichandler, Producing Director of the Arena Stage in Washington, D. C., as vice - president; John Reich, Head of the Goodman Theatre in Chicago, as treasurer; also serving on the TCG board will be Mrs. Nina Vance, Managing Director of Houston's Alley Theatre; Alan Schneider, New York stage director; Nan Martin, actress; Jules Irving, Producing Director of San Francisco's Actor's Workshop; C. Lowell Lees, recently appointed President of the Pasadena Playhouse; Mrs. Pat Brown, Managing Producer of the Magnolia Theatre in Long Beach, California; Mack Scism, Director of the Mummers Theatre in Oklahoma City; and Theodore Hoffman, formerly Head of the drama department at the Carnegie Institute of Technology and currently attached to the University of Minnesota as a research associate in theatre arts.

Michael Mabry, TCG's executive director, described T C G as the product of the growing importance of independent, nonprofit professional theatres in America. "TCG is concerned with those theatres that have been established throughout the country as nonprofit organizations devoted to employing resident companies to perform serious drama from the classic and modern repertoires over a full season. A number of such theatres have established themselves in their communities as successful going operations but they are anxious to continue improving the artistic quality of the productions. TCG will give priority to projects designed to help further improve standards. We hope to be of assistance to some new theatres of demonstrable merit, but we are not set up to function as a general service organization nor do we have resources to provide outright funds to anyone."

TCG's staff has developed a number of projects in conjunction with resident theatres. Its Casting Information Service has been instrumental in arranging auditions for qualified professional actors being sought by resident theatres as well as keeping visible on a national scale those actors who have committed themselves already to seasonal employment with resident companies. Annually, TCG conducts its "Chicago Auditions" which permit outstanding graduates of educational theatre to audition for resident theatre producers and begin their professional careers with established companies. TCG also assists theatres in discovering new directors and other personnel under the TCB Observership Progra.m which enables such talents to investigate the outlook and working conditions of var- Program which enables such ious resident theatres. TCG's Consultant Program has provided theatres with specialists in voice, movement and fencing. One member of the TCG staff, Danny Newman, has worked extensively with theatres seeking to improve subscription and promotion. TCG's major activity will continue to be in the area of direct communication between resident theatres under the TCG Visitation Program, which provides travel funds for theatre personnel to study the work of other theatres in solving their own production and administrative problems.
